ROOSEVELT PUTS CHICAGO TRIP UP TO REPUBLICANS

WILL GO TO CHICAGO IF REPUBLICANS WANT HIM TO ADDRESS THEM

Roosevelt Makes Reply to Telegram of Maryland Senator Appealing to Him to Hurry to Convention City.

ASSAILS WILSON'S COURSE IN BITTER FASHION

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 8.—Col. Roosevelt will come to Chicago if "the republican convention desires me to address it."

This he announced today in a reply made to the invitation he received last night from Senator Wm. B. Jackson, of Maryland, asking him to come to Chicago.

The colonel declared in his answer that he hoped both the republicans and progressive would nominate a man who, if elected, would "place this nation where it belongs by making it true to itself and therefore true to all mankind."

Wilson is denounced. President Wilson, he said, "had rendered to this people the most evil service that can be rendered to a great democracy."

Col. Roosevelt declared that the "differences that have divided not merely republicans and progressives, but good Americans of all shades of political belief," were "sink into nothing when compared with the issues now demanding decision," the issues of unfair Americanism and national preparedness.

Col. Roosevelt further declared that "in the face of the awful world catastrophe, this nation has stood supine and 'less' and that 'no excuse now' can be those responsible for this situation is entitled to serious consideration. It is for you and your associates to show the people that they have a worthy alternative to which to turn."

"Can we not," he asked, "forgetting past differences, now join for the safety and honor of our country, to enforce the policy of genuine Americanism and genuine preparedness?"

Colonel Roosevelt charged that "professional German-Americans" were going to terrorize the republican convention, and that they wished to elect as president a "vicerey of a foreign government."

THEY PASSED IT AROUND.

Borah Would Be in Favor of Inviting Colonel to Come.

RUSSIANS ANNOUNCE CAPTURE OF LUTSK

Petrograd, June 8. The capture of Lutsik, in Volhynia, and also of a series of powerfully organized Austrian positions is announced in an official communication given out here today.

In addition to the Austrians previously captured in the offensive movement recently inaugurated, the statement says there were captured in yesterday's fighting 58 officers and 11,000 men. A large amount of war material also was taken.

U. S. TROOPS IN CHINA

ORDERED IN READINESS TO PROCEED TO PEKING

London, June 8.—(12:32 p. m.)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Tien Tsin, China, says that the United States troops at that place have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Peking.

The dispatch also says French authorities have dispatched a strong force of native troops from the French protectorate at Annam to Peking. A delegation of officers of the body guard of the new president Li Yuan Heng, has assured him of the fealty of the guard.

Progressive Leaders Seriously Considering Immediate Action.

Little Excitement Today as Progressive Delegates Assemble.

CHICAGO, Auditorium Hall, June 8.—(2:07 p. m.)—Some of the progressive leaders, including Chairman Murdock, of the national committee, were seriously considering immediate nomination today of Col. Roosevelt.

Murdock was quoted as saying it might be "too late" tomorrow.

By a vote of 25 to 11, Raymond Robbins today was chosen over Hiram Johnson, by the permanent organization council.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES PRESS WAGE ISSUE

New York, June 8.—Representatives of employees of the railroads of the United States today resumed their conference with the railroad managers, determined to press their questions as to where the roads stand on the wage scale, the objective point of the meetings here.

The managers yesterday declined to reply to the men's queries, Elisha Lee, representing the road, explaining that they were such that they could not be answered offhand. He said satisfactory replies would be given today.

The union men declare today that inasmuch as they have responded frankly to questions put by the managers as to the employees' position in the wage scale question the managers would be considered guilty of bad faith unless they replied with equal readiness to the men's queries.

It was said at the war department Col. Hale might take any part of this force to Peking in an emergency, without to act as soon as he heard of out instructions. He probably pre-

State department advices from Peking indicated a remarkably quiescent state of the Chinese republic.

The suffrage plank. Immediately after the committee reconvened Senator Borah, of Idaho, introduced the following plank in favor of woman suffrage:

for nearly an hour and a half, when a vote was taken and the plank adopted, 26 to 21.

The advocates of suffrage were widely enthusiastic over the endorsement of their measure. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the national association for woman suffrage, declared the insertion of the plank in the republican platform would set suffrage ahead twenty-five years.

Nothing Doing on Prohibition. After deciding on the suffrage plank, the committee took up the discussion of a plank favoring the establishment of an embargo on munitions of war was ruled out of order. Notice was given that the subject would be raised again.

May Reconsider Suffrage. A call for absentees an hour after the sub-committee had acted on the suffrage question was interpreted as indicating a possible reconsideration of the suffrage plank which a sub-committee had rejected before the main body upheld it.

NAMED COLLECTOR FOR ILLUMINATION

S. W. Greenland, of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, has been appointed collector for the fund for the illumination of the statue of Liberty in New York harbor. The proposed plan is to raise $100,000 which will be used to install a permanent electrical illumination of the statue and every citizen of the United States will be given an opportunity to subscribe something toward this fund.

Large contributions are not sought, but there must be many small ones to attain the purpose. A penny, a dime, a dollar will attest the donor's devotion to American idealism.

Men have been asked in all the cities of the country to get subscriptions for this fund. Thus far $1,449.33 has been secured.

FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE, PROHIBITION BARRED

Republican Committee Puts Equal Suffrage Plank in Platform Report to Convention.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 8.—The republican committee on resolutions, by a vote of 26 to 21, decided to incorporate in the platform a plank endorsing, in principle, woman suffrage.

It has also adopted a plank affirming that the United States should maintain perfect neutrality.

The provision adopted by the sub-committee, in addition to its censure of the democratic administration of affairs in Mexico, calls for the protection of American lives and property, not on the Mexican border alone, but throughout Mexico.

The platform especially calls for legislation for the protection against child labor and just as specifically declares for general compensation to workmen engaged in the federal service.

There is a plank devoted to merchant marine in general terms and another calling for the conservation of American resources, but the latter is modified so as to require that such conservation shall not be administered as to interfere with the utilization of the resources by the people of the country.

FLORAL AUTO PARADE WITH TAFT IN LINE

Many Very Gorgeously Decorated Cars in Brilliant Spectacle—Other Centennial Events of the Day.

The big floral automobile parade and the presence of former President William Howard Taft, who is Fort Wayne's guest for the day, were the outstanding features of Fort Wayne's celebration of Indiana's one hundredth anniversary as a state, Thursday.

Thousands of visitors were here—not as many perhaps as there would have been had warm weather prevailed—but throughout the entire day the streets were thronged and especially along the route of the parade.

More than one hundred gorgeously and elaborately decorated automobiles took part in the big parade that had been arranged by the women. The route of the parade touched as near as possible every section of the city, proceeding south on Calhoun street from Harrison street to the pagant grounds. The count by spectators showed 134 machines in line.

Former President Taft occupied the second car and was cheered along the entire route, during much of the time he stood bowing his acknowledgements from right to left.

Rain intervened at the close of the automobile parade and just before Mr. Taft was scheduled to speak at the pagant grounds. On this account Mr. Taft was compelled to cancel the delivery of his address.

Governor Samuel M. Ralston did not come, although the local committee had every reason to believe that he would be here. Although he sent no word he was not coming, it was learned late Thursday afternoon that he was in Philadelphia as the principal speaker at the commencement exercises at Swarthmore college.

Mrs. Ralston sent a telegram early Thursday morning that because of illness she could not come.

The judges of the cars in the parade were Mrs. Carver Wood, Mrs. Gaston Bailie, Mrs. Edward Gilmartin, Mrs.

BULLETIN.

Chicago, June 8.—Late this afternoon in the progressive national convention a conference committee to confer with the republican convention was proposed by James R. Garfield.

"The one thing you ought to send to the republican convention," said Victor Murdock, "is the nomination of Roosevelt." The delegates went wild. Murdock got the crowd again when he said if the progressives want Teddy they "must nominate him" before this day is through.

OPERATE UNTIL 2 A. M.

General Manager Sam W. Greenland, of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, has announced that during the great Fort Wayne Centennial city cars will run on regular schedule until 12 o'clock and that between 12 o'clock midnight and 2 o'clock a. m. fifteen-minute service will be maintained. The last car will leave the transfer corner on all lines at 2 a. m.

Today's War News Given in Summary

Loss of the 26,000 ton battle cruiser Lutzow, one of the big German warships which the British claimed to have sunk in the Jutland sea fight last week, is now admitted by the German admiralty, as is the loss of the cruiser Rostock, a cruiser of 4,900 tons.

The admitted German losses now comprise besides the Lutzow and Rostock, the battleship Pommern, the cruisers Wiesbaden, Elbing and Frauenlob and five torpedo craft.

The British have admitted the loss of the battle cruisers Queen Mary, indefatigable and Invincible the armored cruisers Warrior, Black Prince and Defense, and eight torpedo boat destroyers. They have also admitted that the battleship Marlborough was torpedoed, but declared she was towed to port. Damage to the dreadnought Warspite, which the Germans claim to have sunk, has also been conceded.

Paris today admits the loss of Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun, capture of which Berlin announced in yesterday's official statement. The French still hold the outskirts of the fort and trenches on both sides of it. The fort was abandoned, says the French bulletin, after an incessant bombardment for seven days had reduced it to ruins.

Paris, June 8.—(12:01 p. m.)—Heavy fighting continues in the vicinity of Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun. The war office report of today says French troops still occupy the outskirts of the fort as well as trenches to the right and left of the works.

The loss of the fort itself, of which an intimation was given in last night's report, is conceded. The announcement says the fort was abandoned by the garrison after it had been reduced to a heap of ruins by an incessant bombardment of seven days. German attacks on the adjacent positions, thus far, have been unsuccessful.

West of the Meuse intermittent cannonading was carried on last night.

Republican Convention in a Recess Until Report is Ready.

KILLS TIME IN EARLY SESSION

Mr. Depew, "Uncle Joe" Cannon and Others Heard in Brief Speeches.

OLISEUM, Chicago, June 8.—At 1:31 o'clock the republican national convention recessed until 4 p. m. to await the report of the resolutions committee which still was working on the platform.

The convention was in session about two hours and did nothing more than perfect its permanent organization and listen to some speeches.

Ex-Senator Depew, Ex-Speaker Cannon and Senator Borah were heard while the convention was "killing time."

Rain Was Still Falling. When the doors of the Coliseum were opened this morning two hours before the republican convention was due to begin business the pouring rain which has soaked the delegates and spectators for three days was still falling.

The hall was cold and damp, dripping rain coats and umbrellas soaked the floor but the bedraggled delegates made the best of it. The band up in the gallery enlivened the wait as the crowd began assembling.

The usual line of ticket speculators braved the rain, hawking admissions, the

At Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, on the north bank of the Maumee, Mary Penrose Wayne chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, unveiled at 11 o'clock a great boulder, in which has been placed a tablet setting forth the significance of the spot. The ceremony was one of the most important of the centennial program.

Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, regent of the D. A. R., presided at the ceremonies. There was the rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the Citizens' band, the Fort Wayne hymn was sung by a chorus of school children and Mrs. Henry A. Beck, of Indianapolis, state regent of the D. A. R., spoke briefly after the unveiling, and prior to the address by Robert B. Hanna.

The marker is a huge boulder, nearly six feet high, and the bronze tablet is the work of a Fort Wayne artist, Homer Gordon Davidson.

Mr. Hanna's Address.

Mr. Hanna said:
"Ladies and Gentlemen: We have gathered here today, at the invitation of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to commemorate the revolutionary battle known in history as 'Harmar's Defeat,' and to mark the historic spot known as 'Harmar's Ford.' I am sure that we all appreciate the compliment and the honor of being accorded the privilege of witnessing these pleasing and appropriate ceremonies and helping to do this important and creditable piece of work. The marker which has been planted here today is the only one of many monuments which have been erected by the fair hands of these noble women that the history of the United States, as it relates to the history of Indiana and to the history of Fort Wayne, may be written not only on parchment and on paper but in the very soil of the land itself. I feel sure that all of the people of Fort Wayne will join with me in congratulating the members of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution on the noble, important and patriotic work they are doing in marking the historic spots to be found in and around Fort Wayne—'The Glorious Gateway of the West.'"

Harmar's Defeat.

"It was after the Revolution had closed and the treaty of peace with Great Britain had been signed that the British refused to evacuate the western posts on American soil, including the fort at Detroit, which posts controlled all of the region of the Maumee and Wabash valleys. At this time, the site of Fort Wayne was the location of a strong Miami village known as Kekionga. Its inhabitants were chiefly French fur traders whose success was dependent entirely upon the co-operation of the Indians. The three elements—British, French and Indians—worked together to keep the American colonists from coming west of the Allegheny river. It was a time of seeping raids on defenseless settlements in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Ohio. Prisoners by the hundreds were brought here, captured and burned at the stake.

"In the midst of it all, George Rogers Clark came to the west and captured Vincennes, Kaskaskia and Cahokia on the Wabash and on the Mississippi rivers. Colonel Hamilton, going down through here from Detroit to the south Wabash region, was captured by Clark. The fierceness of the Indian-British hatred of the Americans increased as time went on.

"Washington, determined to open the west to the element of the pioneers, first made offers of peace, which were rejected, then sent General Josiah Harmar to the head of the Maumee river to establish a post. The command under General Josiah Harmar marched northward from near Detroit on October 4th, 1790. It was composed of 1,433 soldiers, with only 320 regulars, the remaining number, 1,113, were militia from Kentucky. Some of the Kentucky militia were 'raw and unused to the gun or the sword.' General Harmar was much disheartened at the kind of people he had received from Kentucky, and he had much trouble, on his march from Detroit to Fort Wayne, or rather what was then Fort Washington and Kekionga, in keeping the officers of his army with their commands, in their proper order. The march was a long and a hard one but on the 17th of October, 1790, General Harmar, after crossing the Maumee river, reached the common fording place, reached the spot on which we now stand, at about one o'clock in the afternoon. Three days of reconnoitering, with some fighting, were spent in this territory. On the 21st of October, we find General Harmar and his army encamped at a point several miles down the Maumee river from this spot. But on that night Major Wyllys and Colonel Harding with a detachment of 400 men, started back and reached this point at sunrise, and it was on the day of this morning—October 22, 1790—that the disaster known in history as 'Harmar's Defeat,' occurred at this place. When those who survived this terrible defeat, of whom Major Wyllys was not one, at the hands of Little Turtle and his band of Indians, returned to the encampment of General Harmar, Colonel Harding requested the general to march back to this place with the army, but General Harmar gave Colonel Harding many good reasons why this should not be done, but as a matter of fact 'The general at this time had lost all confidence in the militia.' On the following day, October 23rd, General Harmar and his army took up the line of march for return to Detroit and reached there on the fourth of the next month, having lost in the expedition, one hundred and eighty-three killed, and thirty-one wounded.

Y. M. C. A. Campaign.
"My friends, I appreciate that only last week, while aroused civic spirit was getting under way, that we raised here in Fort Wayne, by voluntary subscription over $300,000 for a Y. M. C. A. building, but magnificent as that achievement was, second to none in some respects in the history of Y. M. C. A. work, it is not one on which Fort Wayne is willing to rest her oars in community building. In fact, the work done in that campaign has only stimulated us to greater effort.

Civic Work of Women.
"I know of the work that the women of Fort Wayne are doing to help make Fort Wayne a still better place to live in; I know of their practical views, their breadth of vision and their soundness of judgment in matters pertaining to civic affairs, and knowing this, as I do, I feel at liberty to take advantage of this occasion to present for the consideration and judgment of both the men and women assembled here today, a few of the things that I feel might rightfully come out of the public spirit and home pride which has been aroused in the people of Fort Wayne during this centennial celebration.

Assembly Hall.
"Out of this aroused public spirit might come a large assembly hall for Fort Wayne, where the best music might be heard, the best plays witnessed and the best lectures listened to at a cost so small that no man, woman or child in Fort Wayne could afford to miss them; where in keeping with our republican form of government, and in a spirit of true democracy, we might meet to discuss national, state and municipal questions; where national and state conventions of the D. A. R. and other societies might be held, and where meetings and conventions and entertainments of all kinds might be had, to the enjoyment, enlightenment and profit of all the people of Fort Wayne.

Barge Canal.

"Out of this aroused public sentiment might come a voluntary subscription fund of $100,000 with which to conduct an educational campaign, for the next ten years if need be, dealing with the practicability and the necessity of the proposed Toledo, Fort Wayne and Chicago canal. This fund to be started in Fort Wayne and to be subscribed to by citizens of every city and town along the line of the proposed canal, from Chicago to Toledo and on to New York. The building of the Toledo, Fort Wayne and Chicago canal would be a no greater task for the men of today than was the building of the Wabash and Erie canal for the early settlers whose praises we love to sing at every birthday celebration of Fort Wayne and Indiana.

Chamber of Commerce.

"Out of this aroused public spirit might come a union of all our civic organizations, fostered by the Fort Wayne Commercial club, that would foster and encourage and enlarge home manufacturing institutions; that would build the Toledo and Ohio Central railroad from St. Marys, Ohio, to Fort Wayne, as the founders of Fort Wayne built the Pennsylvania line from Ohio to Illinois; that would be prepared financially, and in every other way, to promote and advance the welfare of Fort Wayne at every step along the road of progress.

Sewer-River-Flood Problem.

"Out of this aroused public spirit might come the execution of the plans for the solution of Fort Wayne's sewer-river-flood problem, and it is one problem, not three, and thus guarantee the suburban districts of Lakeside, Spy Run, Bloomingdale and Nebraska against a repetition of the flood of 1913; give Fort Wayne a sewer system in keeping with her needs and her growing population and restore our three rivers to their original beauty and usefulness.

New City Charter.

"Out of this aroused civic spirit might come a municipal government more modern in form, more efficient in practice and more progressive in spirit than any yet enjoyed by the people of Fort Wayne.

"I had a small part in framing our present city charter, and I am not here today to condemn that instrument nor to criticize the men working under it. At the time we amended the original and thus secured our present city charter, we said the city council should be reduced from twenty to fifteen members, and it was. In the light of the investigations and reports recently made by the National Municipal League, we might now reduce the city council from fifteen to six or nine members, with three elected at each succeeding election, and make still further reductions in the number of city officials, and still other changes in our present city charter, along the same line and for the same reason that we amended our original city charter. We said at that time that most kinds of work could be done better by a small than a large body of men, and so we took from the old council of twenty members the work now done by the board of public works, public safety, and by still other boards and individual officials. We abolished the office of city treasurer and made all city duties payable at the office of the city treasurer. We afterwards wiped out the board of water works trustees, who its work to the board of public works, which meets every day, and which board, by the way, is the only municipal board the members of which are required to devote all of their time to the municipal duties assigned to them. By way of suggestion merely, for that is all one can possibly do in so short an address as this dealing with so many important questions, I feel it not bad, now that our city has grown from 45,000 to 80,000 in population since our present charter was secured, to do away with some of our numerous municipal boards, with their numerous members and appoint in their stead, for example, a director of health, director of works and director of safety, who would not only devote all of their working hours to the business of their respective departments but who would devote their lives to the study and solution of municipal problems. These directors, with the city attorney and city civil engineer, could be required to sit as a board, with the mayor at the head of the table, when the action of a board under the law is required. The combined salaries of the present numerous members of our numerous boards, would go a long way to paying the salaries of these directors and the additional sum needed, if any might be made up by appointing instead of electing the city clerk, whose salary is larger now than it would be if he was not put to the expense of an election every few years, and by abolishing the office of city judge and allowing the work now done by him to be performed by the two justices of the peace of Wayne township.

"All appointive municipal officials and employees should be protected in the security of their respective positions by a civil service law.

"I feel that Fort Wayne should secure at the hands of the next session of the Indiana legislature not only the amendments to her city charter to which I have hinted, but also, all powers relative to city planning, flood prevention, drainage and similar municipal matters, which powers she may need and does not now have. For instance, she might secure the creation of a drainage city of Fort Wayne, the same as we now have the school city of Fort Wayne, with power to issue bonds, to the end that this generation may not be called upon to pay the entire cost of Fort Wayne's proposed sewer-flood-river improvement. The officials of the city of Fort Wayne, proper, could be made ex-officio officials of the drainage city of Fort Wayne, and thus put the tax payers to no additional expenses by reason of their securing these additional rights and powers. I know of no provision of Indiana's state constitution that stands in the way of securing any of the amendments to our city charter which I have in mind.

A $4,000,000 Loss.

Just to show that the founders of Fort Wayne had some little idea of city planning, let me call your attention to the fact that when Barr and McCorkel laid out the original plat of Fort Wayne, that they donated all that part of Fort Wayne bounded by first alley west of Calhoun street on the west; Wayne street on the south, Barr street on the east, and the first alley north of Berry street on the north, together with all of the city block on which the court house now stands, as a site for public buildings—as a civic center. This land which today is worth, exclusive of improvements $4,000,000, was sold by public officials for from $10 to $100 a lot and at a time, too, when taxing and borrowing power of the local government was greater than its real needs. For the want of this civic center, for the lack of city planning you and I have seen Clinton street destroyed for both residence and business purposes, by erecting thereon a few public and semi-public buildings, and we may yet see Berry, Wayne, Washington, Jefferson and Harrison streets go the same way.

Next Centennial.

"My friends, you and I have been strutting around during this centennial celebration in the garb of the fathers; have been singing their praises, orating about their virtues, erecting monuments on their battle fields. Why? Because the spirit of their courage, their wisdom, their virtue, abides with us today; because they made it possible for you and me to live here in the grandest country in the world, the greatest state in the Union, the best city in Indiana. Because we love our country, state and city and love to honor those who brought peace and prosperity and happiness to these lands of ours.

But how about a hundred years from now? What will the life of the next century bring forth? The history of the past century has been made; the story of 'The Glorious Gateway of the West' has been written and played and sung. We look now toward the rising, not toward the setting sun. With pride in the present and faith in the future, we believe that the historical pageant that will be played on the second centennial birthday of Indiana, will tell a story more glorious than the story told today, glorious in peace not in war; glorious in comfort not in hardship; glorious in happiness not in sorrow; glorious in national patriotism, state pride and love of home city; glorious in wisdom, enthusiasm and achievement; glorious in love, honor and virtue; glorious in the judgment of man; glorious in the sight of God."

100 AUTOS PROMISED FOR THE HOME TOUR

County Agent Henry announces that more than 100 automobiles have been promised to take part in Allen county's home tour, which will be conducted June 14 and 15. This will be the biggest tour ever held in Allen county and with the itinerary announced, everything is ready for the event. The county made a name for itself when it gave the alfalfa tour last year, but this year's tour will surpass the one of the preceding year in many respects.

The purpose of this tour will be to acquaint the people of the county with the many splendid homes which are located in this district and to learn the methods of arrangement and management of various farm places.

Mrs. Sewell will be the guiding spirit of the tour and many other state leaders will be here for the occasion.

Visitors From West Virginia.

T. A. Coleman, assistant county agent, of West Virginia, has written County Agent Henry that he will be in this city Friday. He is coming to get ideas of the work that has been accomplished by the county agent of Allen county.

PIONEER SCENES

MOST ACCURATE

Chairman Miller Thanks the Public for Support and Co-operation.

Before an audience of 11,000 people at Reservoir park the first of the three performances of Fort Wayne's pageant was given Wednesday night.

From the time the band started the introductory music until the grand finale the production was unhampered by delays. If the plot of the pageant had been omitted entirely there would be left beauty and simplicity in every scene.

The pioneer scenes were most appreciated by older persons. In every instance the reproduction of pioneer life was made as accurate as possible. Many descendants of the pioneers who took part in the original scenes years ago produced the incidents as they took place at that time.

The attendance was more than up to expectations considering the cool weather and everybody is pleased beyond words. With half-way decent weather there is every reason to believe that the seating capacity of the pageant grounds will be taxed to the limit Thursday and Friday nights.

The large crowd was handled without the least confusion. Hereafter, however, spectators must be in their seats before 8 o'clock, the time for beginning the first act, or must wait until the beginning of the second act.

Chairman Miller Speaks.

Chairman E. C. Miller, who is in charge of the Centennial celebration, spoke briefly between scenes 1 and 2. "I do not see why I should be asked to speak," he said. "This is not my show; it belongs to the people of Fort Wayne. I want to thank you for your splendid support and co-operation. I hope that Fort Wayne will put on something of this kind each year."

Too much space would be required to give each actor individual mention. They all performed most creditably. Donald Robertson, director of the pageant, was given a round of applause when he made his appearance as "Thunderhead," a Prophet of the Miami. Throughout the entire production the history of Fort Wayne is brought forth with a vividness that cannot be told in words.

Summary of Six Scenes.

The pageant is in six scenes, opening with the coming of French traders to Fort Wayne and closing with a scene on Barr street, when the news of the firing on Fort Sumter was received. A summary of the six scenes is as follows:

Scene 1.

The first scene is most picturesque. In the virgin forest, beside the St. Mary's river, where the Indians have chosen to locate their village and where their groups of teepees form a snug and cozy stage picture, are gathered the tribes living in their primitive state, while at the other side of the picture are two log huts of the French traders, illustrative of the coming of the first whites. The story of the first scene is that of the coming of the Jesuit priests to the wilderness, their great object being to make of the undeveloped savages a great Christian race.

Scene 2.

The second scene discloses Fort Miami, the French post on the bank of the St. Joseph river, as it appeared on the afternoon in the year 1763, shortly after the French and Indian war. A quarrel between Donaldson, an English settler, and Godfroy, the Frenchman, who seeks the destruction of the garrison, reveals the coming outbreak. Then follows the thrilling story of the betrayal of the commandant, Ensign Holmes, and the sensational capture of the post by the Indians and their French cohorts.

Scene 3.

This scene is in two parts, the first part bringing the audience into the forest on the night of August 10, 1794, on the eve of the battle of Fallen Timber. The chiefs of the Miami, Delaware, Shawnee, Potawatomi and Wyandottas are gathered about an immense council fire in the forest, with their British allies. Braves with war drums beat the instruments at the close of each of the fiery speeches of the chiefs who proclaim their readiness to go to war with General Anthony Wayne, whose army has approached within a few miles of the camp. Little Turtle leads the savages as they disappear into the forest to meet Wayne and his army. The climax comes with the appearance of General Wayne, mounted, as he dashes to the front of the stage surrounded by his victorious followers.

Scene 4.

The fourth scene opens with a view of the fort as it appeared on the morning of September 10, 1812. The audience is given a view of the interior of the fort, with the anxious members of the garrison and the women enjoying a brief respite from the severe attack of the savages on the fort. Interest in the opening of the scene centers strongly upon the women of the fort who appear less alarmed than their husbands. Suddenly one of the soldiers, severely wounded by a shot from an Indian rifle from without, falls from his place on the platform, which forms his post of sentry. The garrison is called out. A savage is seen crawling toward the fort from a distance. A shot from the fort fails to reach the approaching red man. Suddenly, a shout goes up from the garrison. "It's Logan come back! Logan come back!" Truly it is the faithful Shawnee brave returning with the message from General William Henry Harrison that his troops are on the way to save the garrison. Logan is received into the fort, and soon the relieving forces, under General Harrison, ride into the fort amidst the cheers of the garrison, which had striven for many days to avert the loss of the fort and the destruction of the lives of the men and women.

Scene 5.

Scene five opens with a view of Fort Wayne as it appeared on the afternoon of April 19, 1819, the day of its abandonment as a military post. Around the fort, evidences of the coming town and city, are the few houses erected by the coming of peace with the savages.

Introduced in this scene is the great "Ball of Fort Wayne," in which a company of one hundred and forty beautiful young girls in the costumes of the nationalities which form the greater elements of the city of Fort Wayne, give a dance which was one of the most spectacular presentations ever seen in the midwest.

Scene 6.

The sixth and final scene shows a busy scene on Barr street, Fort Wayne. The old fort has disappeared and newsboys cry the startling news that Fort Sumter has been fired on. Henry W. Lawton, William P. Segur, William H. Link and George Humphrey meet and discuss the news from the Carolinas. The crowds grow in numbers and patriotic enthusiasm. Among the citizens who thrill the throngs with fiery speeches from the street corners are Mayor Franklin P. Randall, Hugh McCulloch, Allen Hamilton and others. The scene closes with the appearance of a great army of volunteers, in full uniform, marching in review as they leave for the front and with a beautiful tableau, "The Spirit of 1916," bringing to an end the series of wonderful pictures which tell with vivid word and action the thrilling story of two hundred years of progress from savagery to peace and enlightenment.

WIL BE ONE BIG DAY.

Friday promises to be one great day.

The doings begin with the opening of the Industrial Exposition and Hippodrome at 9 o'clock. Band concerts galore will break loose shortly afterward, and music will fill the air until 3 o'clock when the great demonstration of physical culture by 1,500 pupils of the schools will be given on West Wayne street, between Harrison street and Fairfield avenue. The pageant (Elks) band will furnish music for the children's demonstration of physical training. The thousands who witness this display will appreciate the work of Prof. Henry Meyer in charge of the department in the schools, and of Miss Carrie Snively, assistant, upon who falls much of the responsibility for the instruction of the boys and girls in this important branch of modern school work.

Pageant at Night.

At 8 o'clock in the evening, the pageant will be given in full. This is the night for which those who hold tickets for last Tuesday night, June 6, will be admitted. There are some good seats left, and all who are prompt will be able to secure seats for the evening presentation. Many who have already seen the pageant will see the great spectacle at least once more. If this is impossible tonight, the opportunity to go tomorrow night must not be neglected.

LOYAL SOUTH BENDERS.

Remain Over to the Great Historic Pageant—Are Delighted.

It will be remembered that a great delegation from South Bend came to the city to witness the pageant on Tuesday evening and were compelled to return home without satisfying their desire to see the production on account of the postponement because of rain.

Not all of them went away, however. Rotarians Frank C. Toomp, D. L. Gilfoyne and E. J. Twomey, with their wives, decided to stay with the pageant and witness the performance if the weather man would consent. They were there last night, and came away with such a delightful report that the entire South Bend delegation will doubtless return for the Friday night presentation of the play.

South Bend puts on its pageant in October, and the business men of that city are determined to learn from Fort Wayne just how to do it right.

BOY SCOUTS

They Did Splendid Work Last Night at the Pageant Grounds.

W. C. Schwier and E. J. Ehrman, head ushers at the pageant grounds, are delighted with the splendid work of the boy scouts who served as ushers in seating the vast first-night audience.

"I don't believe there was a mix-up during the entire evening," said Mr. Schwier. The rain washed off all of the markers on the chairs, which necessitated labeling all of them anew, but the work was completed in time for the reception of the audience. The ushers, ticket-takers and all other connected with the care of the audience will be on hand hereafter at 7:30, to take care of the people. The gates did not open last evening until 7:15. They'll be open half an hour earlier hereafter.

DELPHOS MAN STABS WIFE

Harry Vondram in Van Wert Jail for Assault With Scissors.

Van Wert, O., June 8.—For stabbing his wife in the jaw with a pair of scissors while in an intoxicated condition, Harry Vondram, of Delphos, was placed in the county jail on his failure to provide a bond of $500 when he pleaded guilty at a hearing before Mayor Leasure, of Delphos. Vondram is alleged to have been taken to his home by a friend and soon after his arrival there to have accused his wife, Leota Vondram, of intimate relations with the friend and then to have stabbed her with the pair of scissors. The wound is not serious. Mrs. Vondram appeared before Mayor Leasure and swore out a warrant for his arrest. When he was given a preliminary hearing in mayor's court, he pleaded guilty, was placed under a $500 bond, which he was unable to furnish and was bound over to the grand jury. He was brought to Van Wert by Chief Thompson of Delphos.

YOUTH DRINKS SULPHURIC ACID.

Clayton Gerst, Kendallville, Tries Suicide, Following Quarrel With Father.

Kendallville, Ind., June 8.—Clayton Gerst, age 19, son of Charles Gerst, 616 South street, is lying at the point of death at his home, with two physicians making strenuous efforts to save his life, the result of taking four ounces of sulphuric acid, apparently with suicidal intent. It is said the young man went upstairs shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon and drank the acid. His groans soon aroused members of the family, who found him struggling on the floor. Neighbors were called who administered medicine which created nausea, while awaiting the arrival of Drs. H. O. Williams and C. B. Goodwin. The young man got in an altercation with his father in the morning, which, it is said, prompted his rash act. He left a note, the contents of which have been withheld.

WARREN BOARD DEADLOCKED

Warren, Ind., June 8.—After balloting the greater part of the night, the town board of Warren could decide on but one of the two library board members which it must appoint. Mrs. Vienna Laymon, wife of Dr. H. E. Laymon, of Warren, was the selected member, but the board split on the second selection over the names of Calvin Perdue and E. M. Mossburg. The ballot stood two for Perdue and one for Mossburg until the end of the session. Four persons constitute the town board, and but three of them were present. A majority of the board is necessary, voting on a question, to pass it. Thus the two votes for Perdue were not enough to elect him. The school board, which will select the two remaining of the seven members of the library board, will meet for that purpose near the end of the week.

COUNTY WOULD SELL HEAT.

Auburn, Ind., June 8.—The members of the county board of commissioners are informally discussing the proposition of making an offer to the city of Auburn to furnish heat for the city hall and to the corporation owning the Court theater and the new Commercial club home to heat up those two buildings. The capacity of the county heating plant is great enough, not only to heat the court house, the new jail and the sheriff's residence, but also the other buildings. The heat can be furnished to the city, the theater and the Commercial club at a rate much below what it would cost these three individually to heat their buildings. The overhead expense would not be increased by the heating of the additional buildings and at the same time would yield a profit to the county.

LADY AGENT AT PONETO SUES.

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—Mrs. Ida Ramseyer today filed suit for divorce from John Ramseyer, alleging cruel treatment and failure to provide. In her complaint she recites that she is ticket agent for the interurban company at Poneto. The complaint recites that the couple were married September 19, 1885, at Tipton, and separated during the past winter. To their union was born one son, Bryan Ramseyer, aged 19. Mrs. Ramseyer charges her husband with habitual drunkenness, alleging that he is continuously under the influence of liquor and that he has so been during the past two years or more. She alleges that he has cursed her and called her names unfit to be put into print, also that he has an ungovernable temper and has threatened her with personal violence.

VAN WERT'S NEW SCHOOL HEAD

Van Wert, Ohio, June 8.—David B. Clark, of Milford, Ohio, was elected to the superintendency of the Van Wert city schools at a meeting of the city board of education. The election of Prof. Clark was by the unanimous vote of the board. In selecting a man to succeed Prof. Sharkey, the school board thoroughly investigated a field of nearly 35 applicants for the position. It is believed that in Mr. Clark a thoroughly competent man has been secured. He was highly recommended for the position by the authorities in every place he has been located. Prof. Clark is a graduate of Ohio State university.

DECATUR SCHOOL ELECTION.

Decatur, Ind., June 8.—By a vote of four to one D. B. Erwin was elected a member of the Decatur school board for a term of three years from the first of August 1916. The selection was made by ballot, without nomination and only two persons were voted for. Mr. Erwin and O. L. Vance. Neither of the gentlemen were candidates for the place, and it was purely a case where the council did the selecting on its own initiative and without the least outside influence being brought to bear. For two terms, a total of six years, Mr. Vance had faithfully filled the position.

PIERCETON GIRL INJURED.

Warsaw, Ind., June 8.—Margaret Bonar, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bonar, of Pierceton, was seriously injured when she stepped in front of an automobile, driven by Frank Gilbert, who resides four miles northeast of Pierceton.

The front wheel of the machine passed over the child fracturing her right arm and leg. The little girl was rendered unconscious and was carried to the office of Dr. Long, where, opiates were administered and the fractures reduced. Dr. Leedy assisted.

ROANOKE WILL CELEBRATE

Roanoke, Ind., June 8.—Roanoke is planning for one of the biggest and best Fourth of July celebrations ever to be held in that town. The Fourth of July committees are working untiringly to give an entertainment for the day. The committees assure the people races, ball games, horse shoe contests, fireworks and other sports. Special care will be taken for the comfort of all visitors and automobilists and facilities to feed all horses. The advertising committees are laboring to secure the best attractions.

ALMOST $200,000 FOR ROADS

Portland, Ind., June 8.—The improvement of ten Jay county highways with brick or stone, under the three-mile road law, was ordered by the board of commissioners before they adjourned their session. The estimated cost of the improvements, which are situated in Richland, Pike, Greene, Noble and Wabash townships, is $181,409. Action on thirteen brick and stone road petitions was continued because the townships are now up to the limit in taxation allowed for improvements of this character.

RAISING MONEY FOR COLLEGE

Huntington, Ind., June 8.—Over $4,000

has already been raised toward the $50,000 financial campaign for Central college. Practically all of this money was raised from members of the faculty, the present student body and those who attended the exercises held at the college in connection with the opening of the summer term of school. The campaign for raising funds to be used in the erection of several new buildings at Central college has been under way for two weeks.

DEKALB ROAD ELECTION JUNE 8.

Auburn, Ind., June 8.—County Auditor Stanley P. Nelson was ordered by the board of commissioners to give notice of an election by publication in the Auburn Courier for three weeks that such an election will be held on July 25, 1916, and the voters of said township will decide whether the road shall be built as provided in said viewers report. S. P. Nelson, auditor, and Charles Newcomer and Robert L. Haverstock are named as election commissioners.

OSSIAN SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—Professor Charles G. Pepe, who was principal of the schools of Monroe, Adams county, last year, has been engaged by trustee Ward Fryback as principal of the Ossian public schools for next year, as successor to Prof. Aaron Deich, who resigned. Prof. M. A. Aldred, who had charge of the English department at Ossian, has been tendered the principalship of the Petroleum schools, but he has not yet signified his acceptance.

WHERE PURE FOOD LAW HIT HARD

Portland, Ind., June 8.—The Bourne and Hopkins meat market at Pennville, the only establishment of the kind in that town, was practically put out of business when an inspector of the state food and drugs department, condemned meats on hand and demanded that material changes be made looking to better sanitary conditions. A milk dealer was warned of changes necessary.

LINN GROVE BANK ELECTS.

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—The stockholders of the bank of Linn Grove held their annual meeting Tuesday and officers and directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, L. O. Bears; vice president, Oral Huffman, and completing the board of directors are Albert Kindle, John Brown, Michael Miller, Andrew Souer and Michael Gottschalk.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Psalm 1:6
 1 When the Lord turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream.
 2 Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for them.
 3 The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.
 4 Turn again our captivity, O Lord, as the streams in the south.
 5 They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.
 6 He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

Can you recall any compensation after severe pain? Is there any delightful calm in the relief of perfect rest? There are times in life when we must be "doing something," when activity spells joy; but these moments of peace after pain are such supremely delightful experiences, marked only by the haunting dread that the troubling agony may recur again. Happily in sorrow and disappointment seemed to shadow much of your life? Remember, this is but a pilgrim life, only a span measured out of eternity. If marked by chasing shadows, the light shines more and more unto the perfect day, when there shall be no more pain, no more tears, no more shadows, for the glory of God did lighten it, and the lamb is the light thereof.

Reckoning With Roosevelt

The outstanding feature of the political hurly-burly at Chicago on Wednesday when the republican and progressive national conventions held their opening sessions was clearly and unmistakably the frenzied demonstration for Colonel Roosevelt which characterized the gathering of the progressives. Temporary Chairman Robins had spoken but three sentences of his keynote address when he made mention of the colonel's name and there instantly burst forth a pandemonium of blended applause, shouts, cheers, roars, chants and militant melody that utterly refused to be stilled until more than one hour and thirty minutes had elapsed. Devotees of Col. Roosevelt's cause marched and surged and swayed about the Auditorium hall giving vent to enthusiasm that would not longer be denied. Doubtless much of the show was staged—that is, the leaders had calculated upon and encouraged something of the sort as an object lesson to the republican assemblage in session but a few squares distant. The moral effect of a demonstration of this character is unquestioned, but it is to be doubted if even the most devoted adherents of the colonel's cause had correctly gauged the extent or the fervor of what followed the first out-break of the pent-up devotion.

All this is especially interesting because of the talk of peace between the republicans and the progressives—because of the effort to heal the old breach left by the secession of the progressive republicans from the convention which renominated Mr. Taft. It is interesting, too, because of the fact that from many quarters we have heard the preaching that Colonel Roosevelt was politically dead and that he had been duly and decently entombed in the political cemetery. It has a further interesting significance, too, from the fact that the colonel's adherents are by no means confined to the progressive organization. It will transpire that he has no inconsiderable following within the republican convention itself, even his enemies conceding him from 150 to 200 votes there. The progressive demonstration Wednesday makes substantial and definite the claim stoutly maintained prior to that time—that the progressives have no second choice; that they will have Roosevelt or nobody. The task of reckoning with Colonel Roosevelt is a job that will be extremely distasteful to the majority of the gentlemen who make up the republican national convention, but it is a job that cannot be dodged. It is today the biggest element in the Chicago situation.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to deny the Twelfth district what it goes after in a political way. Alfred L. Moudy, of Waterloo, has just been nominated for governor of Indiana by the prohibitionists, and it is worthy of note, too, that he won the place at the head of the ticket after a contest with other aspirants for the honor. Mr. Moudy will probably not be elected. Indeed, it is doubtful if he is deluding himself with any impression that he will be victorious at the polls in November, but he will go into the fight with positive convictions and make the race as earnestly as though his chance were as good as an even break. In recent years, especially, the prohibition organization in Indiana has been putting no end of "pep" into its work, and it is insisting upon a serious hearing.

Vice President Marshall, who is enjoying a brief vacation at Indianapolis, refuses to be disturbed over the prospects for or against his renomination at St. Louis next week, and the statement is given out that "the political situation is not on his nerves at all." Throughout his political career Mr. Marshall has demonstrated the happy faculty of equanimity, and he has allowed the other fellow who believed worry were necessary to go to it and to do all of it. He has merely applied to politics a pretty good philosophy for other activities of life as well—a philosophy which all of us admit is excellent, but which not all of us are able to firmly and consistently put in daily practice.

Former Senator James A. Hemenway has been selected as republican national committeeman from Indiana to succeed Mr. Goodrich, who will be reasonably busy for some months running for governor. Well, it must be admitted that there is shown in the selection of Mr. Hemenway not the slightest disposition to put anybody but the old guard on guard. He is entirely free from even the faintest suspicion of any taint of bullmooseism.

Unofficial returns indicate that at the special election held in Iowa Monday the constitutional amendment providing for woman suffrage in that was beaten by about 4,600 votes. Hereafter we shall be under the painful necessity of ceasing to point to Iowa as a model of statehood. She has simply lost all caste by her latest performance.

Senator Harding in his keynote speech declared that the republicans and the progressives did not divide in 1912 on "fundamental principles." Perhaps he's right. At least, the progressive description of the occasion for the break sounded a good deal more sulphuric than "fundamental principles."

CHURCH OF BRETHREN GATHERS AT WINONA

Many Thousand Members in Important Church Conference.

Warsaw, Ind., June 8.—Many thousand members of the Church of the Brethren and their families, gathered at Winona Lake today, when the largest and most important conference in the history of the church opened.

Detailed plans for the advancement of one of the greatest foreign missionary projects ever attempted by the church will be worked out at this conference. A new system of unified Sunday school work will be another problem of the conference which will bring delegates from all parts of America and several from abroad.

Among the prominent men of the church who are on the program for addresses are Martin G. Brumback, governor of Pennsylvania; H. C. Early, head of the Church of the Brethren in the United States; D. L. Miller, of Mount Morris, Ill., and J. L. Cunningham, of Indiana, secretary of the conference. Mrs. L. M. Neher, Warsaw, believes in "preparedness." She is president of the Sisters' Aid society of the church and in expectancy of the immense number of persons to be fed has already contracted for 150,000 buns, five hundred pies and meat by the hoghead for one of the big open air lunch counters alone. Every hotel, boarding and lodging house at Winona is making preparations for the coming of the Dunkards, and hundreds of residents of Warsaw are making arrangements to house and feed many of the visitors.

The conference this year will be the third held at Winona, the annual meetings having been held here in 1913 and in 1910. The conference will be in session from June 8 to 16.

GRABILL NEWS.

Grabill, Ind., June 8.—Miss Rosa Schertz, of Berne, is visiting her brother, Joseph Schertz, and family. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Conner, of Hopewell, were here on business Saturday.

Mrs. Laura Howey, of Fort Wayne, is helping to care for her mother, Mrs. Nettiehorst, who is quite seriously ill. The Missionary church has been moved on the new foundation and will soon be remodeled.

Miss Lydia Conrad, who is attending the Tri-State college at Angola, has been home for a few days' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Steiner made a trip to Toledo in their touring car. While there they called on Mr. Steiner's sister and family.

Mrs. E. Coy Martz and children returned from a week's visit with her mother and other relatives at Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Goldsmith and Irven Klopstein and family spent Sunday with Samuel Witmer and family at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Frank Holloper and children left for Decatur, where they will visit with relatives for some time.

Mrs. Harry Zent and daughter, of Huntington, spent a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Tope and other relatives.

Howard Klopstein made a business trip to Fort Wayne Tuesday.

"Wild Bill" Heath and his airship caused quite a bit of excitement here Monday when he landed on the C. C. Page farm adjoining town. The whole town turned out and he was quite effective in his Centennial advertising.

The Ohio-Indiana Sunday school convention of the Mennonite church will be held this coming Sunday all day in the town hall. The following speakers will be present and give talks on various subjects: Forenoon session—Levi Melinger, devotionist; Jacob Sumner, address of welcome; E. S. Gerig, "The Lesson Taught"; Aaron Souder, "The Child"; and Mrs. Oswin Hilly on "The Primary Class." In the afternoon Andrew Gerig will have charge of devotionist; Aaron Roth, E. M. Slagle and Rev. J. K. Gerig will be the speakers. In the evening session Noah Stuckey will have charge of the Young People's meeting; Eli Lantz will have the devotionist, after which an evangelistic service will be delivered by Rev. J. K. Gerig, of Chicago. Special music has been arranged for the various sessions. Everybody is welcome to attend.

WHO WILL BE THE EIGHTEEN PRIZE WINNERS IN THE SENTINELS BIG PRIZE CAMPAIGN?

Exciting Race for $5,000 Prizes Closes Week from Saturday—All Prizes Ready to Be Turned Over to Honored Winners—Race Promises to Be Close and Exciting.

The one big problem that is now confronting the people of Fort Wayne and surrounding territory is, "Who are going to be the four automobile winners in the most exciting and interesting Sentinel campaign?" Scores and scores of solutions to this problem have been presented and astrologers, palmists and exponents of the occult sciences have been consulted by some in an effort to find out just how the campaign will result. All of these quests have been fruitless, for no one knows who the winners will be until the judges make their final announcement after they finish counting the votes. Meanwhile every candidate entered has an equal chance of winning one of the cars. Practically every young woman in the list is really trying during these last few days, and many who apparently have no show whatever, according to the standing in the paper, will spring surprises that will leave the too-confident ones to go down to defeat. Over-confidence is the biggest handicap under which a contestant could labor. This unwelcome attribute causes more disappointment than any other thing in a contest of this sort. The only way to be certain is to spend every possible moment in securing subscriptions, which, as far as the campaign manager can judge, every contestant is doing.

Subscriptions under the prevalent scale count up faster than your would imagine. Just stop and think—during this offer, which closes next Saturday evening, for every combination of $25 worth of new subscriptions, the candidate turns in, she will receive $8,000 extra votes. These votes are in addition to the regular number. Consider what is in store for the contestant who finishes first in the race, the handsome seven passenger, six cylinder Paige. Every minute that you can possibly spend at your quest, coupled with energy, will put you in position for one of the autos. You will never regret the minutes that you spend in getting subscriptions that will win one of the eighteen prizes for you.

Opportunity knocks at your door but once, according to the old adage, and this opportunity is the biggest one of your life, no doubt.

Realizing the immense value of the rewards in store for them and knowing that real effort during these last few days means, practically, victory or defeat, contestants all over the territory covered by this campaign are engaged in a big battle of ballots, assisted by their friends and relatives, and in many cases have an array of supporters behind them that will, no doubt, spell "Paige Six" for one of them.

The spirit of rivalry, which has been rekindled in a pleasant way between the various candidates and towns, is going to mean a great deal to the respective communities when the close draws nearer. Many of the towns have drawn to a man behind their favorite candidate. Some of the towns have the utmost pleasure in coming out a head in various enterprises. The race promises to be a close one in each district, and victory will probably be snatched by a single subscription in some cases, as had happened heretofore in previous campaigns.

National T. P. A. Convention at Lafayette Goes on Record.

Lafayette, Ind., June 8.—A resolution was passed by the delegates to the national convention of the T. P. A., in session here, endorsing the merchant marine and urging immediate action by the government to enlarge the shipping facilities of the United States. Routine work of the convention was completed and officers will be elected at the concluding business sessions Friday.

An elaborate pyrotechnical display and water carnival on the Wabash river, which attracted over 20,000 people to Lafayette, was the feature of last night's program.

Lafayette Place Near High School Site

One of the advantages of Lafayette Place, the beautiful new addition on South Calhoun street, is the fact that it is but six blocks south of the site selected for the location of the new high school site. It is understood that this new school will not only include the present high school grades but also most of the lower grades, and parents are realizing that this feature together with the seven acres of playgrounds, parks, etc., which have been laid out in Lafayette Place make the addition an ideal spot for the raising of children. The wholesome surroundings which the restrictions placed upon this addition are sure to bring about are another point furthering this conviction. Additional information about Lafayette Place may be had from the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff Building, or any member of the Real Estate Exchange.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Mr. Taft's Centennial Message to Fort Wayne

FORMER PRESIDENT IS FORT WAYNE'S CENTENNIAL GUEST.

HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Following is the address which Ex-President Taft had prepared for delivery in Fort Wayne on the centennial occasion. On account of the rain which intervened at the close of the automobile parade, however, Mr. Taft was unable to deliver his address.

"Citizens of Fort Wayne, Ladies and Gentlemen:—I am glad to be present at this interesting centennial celebration of the birth of the state of Indiana. It is properly held at this, one of the most interesting historical places in the whole northwest. As early as 1680, now more than two centuries and a quarter ago, it was a gateway for the Indians and travelers from the lakes to the southwest. Here was the beginning of the Maumee-Wabash portage. Here was for a century an important French trading post. Here was the old French and English Fort Miami, and here was Fort Wayne, built by that distinguished American soldier who bore the sobriquet of 'Mad Anthony.' Built in 1794, after he had defeated the Indians at the battle of Fallen Timbers, it remained as a defense against the Indians until after the foundation of the city and the permanent settlement here in 1815. It would be difficult to find a spot about which more Indian associations cling than that upon which we stand today. Here alone we might find reasons enough in your history to give your state the name of Indiana. However much you may value evidences of prosperity in your rapid growth and your importance as a railroad center, you of Fort Wayne are exceptionally fortunate in your wealth of tradition. It is a pleasure to note that you accord to it the importance it deserves.

What Event Commemorates.
"We are here to commemorate the change of the Indians' territory into a state. The territory was carved out of that greater territory northwest of the Ohio river which was given a form of government in the Ordinance of 1787, and to which we must trace the origin of the great states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The present population and wealth of these five states, and the high standard of intelligence of their inhabitants, I need hardly dwell upon. I mention them only to say that they are the normal result of the natural resources of the country and a spirit of freedom and independence in the pioneers who settled there and in the fundamental instrument in which their institutions and government had origin—the Ordinance of 1787. That charter secured a proportionate representation of the people in the legislature, provided a bill of rights, forever forbade human slavery within the territory, and was the first of all constitutions to declare against the injustice of the impairment of contract. The proximity of Indiana to Kentucky and Virginia, where slavery existed, and the migration from those two states into Indiana easily explained the desire of some of the immigrants to bring with them a domestic and social institution which they deemed helpful in the building up of a new country. And so we find that in 1805 there were 173 slaves in Indiana; that a law was enacted providing for a form of indenture which really made slaves of those who were the subject of it, and that in 1810, there were 227 slaves. The indenture law was repealed in 1819 through the activity of Quakers who had settled in the state. Under the leadership of Jonathan Jennings, who was elected a territorial delegate to congress in 1809 and in 1811, and who was the first governor of the state from 1816 to 1822, the constitution adopted in 1816, reiterated the declaration of the Ordinance of 1787 against slavery and the institution soon disappeared.

Suggests a Topic.
"I have read the constitution of 1816 and it has suggested to me a topic for discussion. The indispensable basis of success for what we call a government of the people is certain duties of citizenship which must be fulfilled or popular government will fail. Your constitution of 1816 in its preamble stated the purpose of its framers to be 'to establish justice, promote the welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to the people of Indiana and their posterity,' and in its first article is declared 'that the people are equal and independent, that they have certain natural, inherent and inalienable rights among which are the enjoying and defending life and liberty and of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety.' The constitution further declares that all power is inherent in the people and that all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace and safety and happiness.

Do Not Always Argue Out.
"We do not always argue out why we believe in popular government. We refer to the rule of the people as if it were an end and not a means. We say that the rule of the people brings us liberty and so we treat liberty as an end and not a means. The real end of life is the happiness of all and the happiness of all depends on the happiness of the individuals and the reconciliation of the happiness of one individual with the happiness of another. It is not infrequently happens that what seems to be the happiness of one individual will interfere with the happiness of another. The well known rule of law that a man must enjoy his own in such a way as not to injure another illustrates what I mean. Liberty is not license. Liberty must be regulated by law, that each may secure as much out of government as is consistent with the equal security of another in the pursuit of happiness by both. Why then do we favor popular government? If we can not state why we favor it, we are hardly worthy to deserve it and we certainly shall lack when the test comes meeting the obligation to defend it and sustain it. We believe in popular government because we believe that in the long run a government in which a considerable part of the people direct the policy of the government, representatives of all classes have a chance to be heard, the interests of all classes are more likely to be regarded and taken care of than where the interest is one class is committed to the care and control of any other, no matter how altruistic that other may be. In the long run, it is better for each class of people to have some say, or opportunity to be heard, in the determination of what is to be done by the government and may affect them.

The Second Reason.
"The second reason why we prefer popular government is that where all classes have some say and some right to be heard in determining what the governmental policy shall be, even if their own views are not followed, the fact that they consulted will lead them to support the government and give it solidarity. This solidarity will secure strength to it which makes permanence and stability. Permanence and stability of government are essential to continued peace and order and these are essential to the prosperity of all and to the equal opportunity of all to seek happiness.

Attitude of the Anarchist.
"This conclusion really states the attitude of the modern anarchist. I do not mean that body of men called anarchists who manifest their hostility to society and seek to convince by the use of explosives and blowing their opponents up, but I mean a school of social thinkers who advance the view that we can trace all our evils in society to the restraints of government, and that the perfect state toward which we should work, and to which we should promptly come, is one in which, without government and without any restriction of any sort, each member of society, each child and man, will know what they ought to do in following their rights and fulfilling their duties to themselves and to others, and will conduct themselves accordingly. Following such views unconsciously there are many people who exhibit a dangerous lack of respect for authority and law. Kipling, in his poem on 'The American Spirit,' speaks of the American 'who flouts the laws he makes.'

Held Definite Views.
"Our ancestors who drafted the Declaration of Independence and the federal constitution and the constitution of 1816, of Indiana, had no such erroneous view and did not intend that their declaration in favor of the rule of the people and of liberty of the individual should be construed in any such way. They believed in law and its enforcement.

Small Percentage Govern.
"The total number of people entitled to vote in the United States is probably twenty million or twenty-one million. There were in the election of 1912 more people entitled to vote who did not vote than who voted for the successful candidate. All the people in the United States number about 100,000,000. Therefore, the federal laws and the federal officers selected to enforce those laws were the result of the votes of less than 7 per cent of the whole people. The other 93 per cent were made up first, of women and children who cannot vote; second, of the aliens resident in the country who cannot vote; third, the seven millions who could vote and did not; fourth, the seven and one-half million who did vote, but did not vote for the successful candidate. For the last three and one-half years this 93 per cent have been under an obligation to obey laws which they did not make and to which they did not assent. This is an easy arithmetical demonstration of the fact that if obedience to law were based on consent to the enactment of the law, in a republic or a democracy, we should have anarchy and not government. And yet no one can deny that peace and order as men are now constituted, depend upon obedience to law.

First Duty of Citizen.
"Therefore the first duty of a citizen is to obey the law, because it is a law, and because it represents the state which must be higher authority than the individual citizen and indeed higher authority than a majority of the people because under our system, considered from an arithmetical standpoint, the majority do not rule. Only a majority of the electorate rule, and they may take a different view from the majority of the people. In this respect, for the reasons I have heretofore given and possibly for other reasons, we seem to be falling away from the standard of respect for law that must be maintained if we are to be an effective government. Our children are not disciplined in the family as they used to be. They are not taught to treat their parents with the respect that they were once obliged to show. We have not thought it worth while to take the trouble to instruct and shape those whom we bring into the world and for whose character and usefulness in the community we are responsible. We consult their tastes and preferences too much. The kindergarten for children who have not reached an age of responsibility, and who are under six years, is a good thing, in that its methods are adapted to attract the child into attention to that which it is hoped he will study. His senses are gratified. He is amused in order that his intellectual process may be more or less stimulated.

Mistake We Have Made.
"But the mistake we have made is in having introduced, or continued kindergarten methods into the years of childhood and youth and budding manhood and womanhood when in order to frame character, discipline must be enforced. It is often a good reason for insisting that a boy or girl shall study a particular subject that he or she does not like the subject. It may and often does prove that this is the particular field for intellectual training that he or she should be compelled to enter and cultivate. There seems to have been encouraged in our public schools the idea that they are democracies and are to be controlled in their policies by the will of the pupils. We see this in the strikes of pupils against the removal of superintendents or of teachers who are favorites. Such rebellious attitude and disrespect for authority is encouraged by the foolish parents and the sensational newspapers. The children ought to be spanked and sent back to school and made to realize that the teachers who are put over them according to law are entitled to their obedience and respect because they are so appointed; that a school is not a democracy but a place for educating children and youth to become useful members of society and citizens of a democracy, and that they cannot become so unless they first learn the principles of obedience and respect for authority that lie at the basis of all successful governments and especially of the government of the people.

Error of Labor Leaders.
"We find the same error in the anxiety of labor leaders to prevent the enlistment and maintenance of an adequate militia or of a state constabulary because they think it will be used to suppress effectively disorder and lawless violence arising in labor controversies. Their course is merely an effort to prevent the enforcement of law by taking away the instrumentalities by which the officers of the law are to enforce it. It is really a reliance on force to accomplish economic victories rather than upon peaceful lawful methods.

Duty of the Majority.
"But while there is a duty on the part of all citizens to respect authority and obey the law, there is a corresponding quite as important duty on the part of the majority or plurality of the electorate to be broad, judicial, patriotic and unselfish in their regard for the welfare of all the people in deciding what the laws and governmental policy shall be. The justice of the law, its equity, the absence from it of tyrannical and arbitrary discriminations are ultimately the strength of the law and of the government that enforces it. Continued inequality and injustice in its operation, the granting of undue privileges to favored groups or persons, are certain in the end to create such bitterness in the minds of those unfairly treated by the operation of the law as to lead to rebellion against its authority, and this even though the group or class complaining are small as compared with the numerical strength of the remainder of the people. The majority of the electorate may not exceed 8 or 10 per cent of the whole people. They are not voting, when they vote, for themselves alone. The ballot is not for them to use in an arbitrary way. The ballot is not their property or an instrument with which to wreak vengeance to gratify their personal wish or to enrich themselves unjustly at the expense of their fellows. They are representatives of the whole people in casting their ballots. Men who vote forget this. They often do not have clearly in their minds that they are merely acting as agents for all, that they are trustees upon whom rests the obligation of doing which is in their hands, to wit, that of serving the welfare of the whole people. Unless they exercise this power that they have, equitably and justly, unless they restrain themselves from gratifying their personal desires and deal justly with those who are opposed to them politically, unless they approve measures and elect men constituting a government which, by and large, has only justice for its aim, then they will drive the minority of the electorate and possibly the majority of the people into revolution, and an instability of government will follow which will injure all.

Self-Restraint and Justice.
"In other words, the great duty of the electorate in a republic is to exercise self-restraint and to do justice to all in the votes cast. And this duty cannot be performed unless the voter realizes his responsibility to all the people and understands that it is not his government alone, it is not the government of his party alone, but it is the government of all, who are entitled to live peaceably and prosperously and happily under the government and not to be discriminated against because they don't happen to belong to his party or his group.

When Feeling Sweaty.
"But even among the most intelligent people there are times when justice and equity and fair dealing are departed from in the heat of partisan feeling and in the passionate emotion to which human nature, no matter how trained and cultivated, no matter how intelligent is sometimes subject. A majority no matter how normally patriotic and just and equitable, may in moments of intense feeling be willing to adopt methods to achieve an end that are not just or fair to the minority or to the individual. Our ancestors knew this and knew when they were clothing the majority of the electorate with wide control over the affairs of the whole community and therefore over the welfare of the minority and the individual, that there was danger at times that the majority would forget the path of justice and depart from it. They therefore in a period of calm deliberation, when they considered only general principles and not the special instances so likely to arouse emotion, passion and prejudice, framed the constitution which besides providing for the organization of the government, imposed limitations upon its action which were in effect limitations upon the action of the majority of the electorate: in favor of the minority and in protection of the rights of the individuals. They made these guarantees written, and they entrusted their interpretation and enforcement to a tribunal as independent of popular appeal and governmental control as possible. They vested in the supreme court the function and power to say within the limits of the action of the executive and legislative branches must be when dealing with the minority and in dealing with individuals. They thus deliberately imposed upon themselves as the people, restraints to keep themselves within the path of justice in exercising the power of government. We have lived under such constitution for 125 years, and we have vindicated to the world the rule of the people by the restraining use of the written constitution and its enforcement by an independent judiciary. These two things have secured us against the defects and passions of human nature and a departure from equity and fair dealing in the exercise of governmental power, and this result is what has given solidarity and permanence to government and has retained the support of all in the maintenance of lawful authority.

Hasty Action Unsafe.
"I wish to emphasize the fact that this written constitution providing just limitations for the exercise of governmental authority toward minorities and individuals, if not adopted and can only be adopted in the nature of a compromise of the people in periods of calm deliberation, that hasty action in the adoption of such fundamental law is unsafe, incongruous and inconsistent with any wise theory of government organization.

Error of Judicial Recall.
"Herein is the fundamental error made by those who advocated the recall of judicial decisions and the recall of judges. Their argument was that people made constitutions and people understand how they ought to be enforced. Therefore, courts enforced them with a different result from that which the people intended, in particular cases, it was the right that the people should accordingly be given an opportunity at once to reverse the decisions of the courts and set aside their erroneous interpretations. Such a view ignores entirely the fact that these self-restraints in a written constitution are safe and effective because they are imposed when the people are in a deliberative state of mind as embodying general principles, in order to control the passions and restrain them when they are aroused to passionate decision by particular instances involving personal emotion and partisan prejudices. The secret of the power and force and usefulness of a written constitution is in the fact that it is to be interpreted by an independent tribunal and not by the people in heat and emotion. A history of the supreme court of the United States will prove what I have said by reference to many cases in which at the time of the decision of the supreme court the people have differed from the action of the court and have subsequently been subdued and never disturbed its interpretation.

Need of Self-Restraint.
"There are instances of course in which the people having found what the judicial interpretation of the constitution was changed the constitution in due and orderly method after a deliberation of a decade or more. That was the case with the question of the validity of an income tax levied without apportionment according to the population of the states. It is true that those opposed to slavery did not acquiesce in the justice of the Dred Scott decision, but it is also true that the war which ended slavery and reversed the Dred Scott decision was begun not by those opposed to slavery and differed with the court, but by those who upheld the decision. On the whole the history of the supreme court will show a remarkable acquiescence by the people in the decisions of the court, even though at the time of rendition the feeling may have been bitter and hot against it.

Self-Government Is Character.
"Self-government, as President Wilson has said, is character. It is character that has been hammered out by discipline in the struggle for individual liberty and in the maintenance of it and in the recognition that general individual liberty cannot exist unless it is modified by respect for the rights of others and all obey the law.

"Popular government is a great boon to those who are fitted to enjoy it and so are able to enjoy it, but there are many people who have not been trained and educated sufficiently to understand it and carry it on successfully. Eighty per cent of the inhabitants of Mexico are the Indians whom we cannot read or write. It is impossible to establish a successful popular government with universal adult suffrage in such a country and hope to have it inure to the benefit of the people. The anarchy that now prevails in Mexico is an evidence of just what I say. We must look at these things with a broad vision and a clear understanding of what makes it possible for us to have the inestimable privilege of self-government and to preserve it. We must not be provincial to the point of thinking that all people are adapted to such a government, or that such a government is the best for all people when they are not fitted for it.

Justice Is Taxation.
"Again there seems to be a tendency among legislatures today to find a means of one taxing the wealthy and relieving those of moderate or limited means from paying any of the expenses of government. We have seen this illustrated in the income tax. I fully approve the principle of graduating the income tax so as to make those with the larger incomes pay toward the expense of the government not only a larger amount but at a larger rate per cent, but I think it is a bad principle adopted merely for political reasons, which exempts from the same tax, however small the rate, incomes under $3,000 a year. It was passed in congress that the reason why the exemption was put so high and was not carried down to $1,000 or $500 a year was because those responsible for the law were afraid it would lose them and their party votes. The danger of such a plan is that it takes away from the great body of the people who are in the exempt class a lack of interest in governmental expenses and a lack of responsibility in scrutinizing governmental extravagance. If a man pays no tax, no matter how small, the human nature in him urges him to question how the fund to which he has contributed has been expended, and it creates in the electorate a desire for economy in government that is indispensable unless we go into bankruptcy.

All in the Same Boat.
"Growing out of a just feeling on the part of the people that during the generation just ended we have been in great danger of corporate and corrupt government and a plutocracy, there has been aroused a hostility to corporations and to accumulated wealth generally which has made politicians feel that the way to popular approval and preference is by bitter attack and unjust dealing with all corporations and with all business success. I am hopeful that there has been a reaction from this spirit, but it existed long enough and was intense enough to put on the statute book a number of laws entirely unjust and likely to disturb honest business and to injure the welfare of

"We are all in the same boat and any legislation that gives undue privilege to one or imposes undue restrictions upon another, ultimately and inevitably injures the whole body, public and social. I am an optimist. There is, as I have said, a reaction from many of those injurious tendencies which I have pointed out, and it seems to me that that reaction may be stimulated by examining and emphasizing the fundamental truths that lie at the foundation of our success as a republic and our vindication of the rule of the people as the best source of government, which the people are trained to obedience to law and self-restraint in its adoption and in its enforcement."

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN IS HELD FOR THEFT

Mrs. Philomena Rossetti, of Third street, widow of the late Fred P. Rossetti, a veteran saloonkeeper and politician, was charged in the city court Thursday morning with larceny and her hearing was continued until Saturday. She has been bond of $500 for her appearance in court. Rossetti's store, which has greatly shocked a wide circle of acquaintances, was made late Wednesday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Peter Junk and Detective Shaffer, of the Cincinnati police headquarters, on West Wayne street, after she had committed a robbery in the store of Gates & Co., West Berry street, and another at Stillman's Grand Lender, Calhoun and Wayne streets. Complaint first came from Gates' store, where the pocketbook of a lady customer was stolen from the counter and was later found rifled in the toilet room. A description of the suspected thief was obtained and she was traced to Stillman's. After leaving that store she was questioned by the officers, who learned her name and took her to the Gates store, where she was identified as having been a short time before. The money stolen there was found in her purse and she had a purse taken at Stillman's. She confessed that she had repeatedly committed robberies in this way.

FAVOR MORE WALKING STEPS. Dancing Masters Urge Opportunity for Conversation.

New York, June 8.—Dancing masters attending their annual convention here have decided to encourage their pupils in the practice of more walking steps in learning modern dances. The purpose is to give the dancers a better opportunity for conversation. "Heretofore dancers have been so intent upon thinking what steps are coming next that they have no opportunity to talk to their partners," said Charles McCann, of Philadelphia. "The mental strain of trying to remember how to dance has been so great that it has been impossible to think of anything else. In this condition we are fighting."

WOMEN TAKE IMPORTANT PART IN CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Fort Wayne women worked hard as the men to make the Centennial celebration a success. In the upper pictures, left to right, are the following girls who came to the Woman's building in the attire of their grandmothers Wednesday: Miss Virginia Carey, Miss Marie Landenberger, Miss Irma Cole, Miss Maribel Olds, Miss Phyllis Sedall, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Miss Dorothy Detzer and Miss Margaret Hanna. Miss Lavon Sperry, on the right, was dressed as an Indian and in that costume entertained the guests. In the lower row are teachers, pupils and patronesses of the vocational school girls' exhibit.

WILL GIVE CAMP MEMORIAL

Alumni of Culver End Training and Provide for Monument.

Culver, Ind., June 8.—After stacking arms for dismissal, the eighty alumni who have been in a military training camp here for a week, announced that they had raised money to erect on the Culver academy grounds a suitable memorial to the first alumni camp. The monument will be selected after a consultation with the trustees and superintendent. E. R. Culver accepted the proposed monument on behalf of the trustees and announced that the board would double the contribution by the alumni.

Colonel Gignilliat complimented the alumni on their spirit in the strenuous work of the camp and on the results achieved, expressing the belief that the success of the first camp would insure its repetition and cause other institutions to follow Culver's lead.

The reception at the Woman's building at 4 o'clock this afternoon, at which time the public was invited to meet former President W. H. Taft, Gov. Ralston and other notables was a beautiful affair. There was keen disappointment because of the inability of Mrs. Ralston and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall to be present, but there were a number of honor guests. In the receiving line were, in addition to the Fort Wayne women and Mr. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson and son and Mrs. Wallace Rice, whose work in the Fort Wayne pageant has endeared them to hundreds of citizens: Miss Frances Rice, Mr. Rice's sister, and Father John Cavanaugh, of Notre Dame university. The Fort Wayne women receiving were the committee, of whom Mrs. W. M. McKinnie was the chairman, and included besides Mrs. McKinnie, Mesdames C. S. Knight, S. C. Lumbard, W. H. W. Peltier, C. R. Fairbank, M. B. Fisher, C. D. Gorham, F. J. Hayden, S. B. Fleming, Newton Gilbert, H. C. Paul, J. H. Bass, P. A. Hamilton, R. A. Magee and Miss Sadie Fleming. The reception room was a beautiful spot, for the high window sills were just the place for baskets of flowers, so large they gave a genuine "color scheme" of pink, white and green, all around the two sides of the room that formed a background for the receiving party. Tall brown wicker baskets were filled with branches of syringa, peonies and long stemmed snapdragon blossoms and besides there were big jardinières filled with peonies so that even with many people in the room the decorations were still very noticeable and were the subject of many admiring remarks. A punch was served by another committee of ladies and music was near enough to contribute to the pleasure of the visitors. The building was thronged and every room of the woman's display was seen and admired. The assisting ladies were Mesdames Margaret Olds, C. E. Bond, A. E. Lydon, W. K. Noble, A. E. Faure, J. W. White, Russell Hawkins, H. R. Freeman, Sam Wolf E. H. Olds, W. M. Griffin, M. C. Norton, Lawrence Eberbach, Hal Rehner, C. J. Schoo, Austin Stults, Roger Fisher, Otto Bruggerman, Mrs. F. H. McCulloch, Mrs. F. E. Stander, Mrs. E. G. Hoffman, Miss MacDougall and Misses Josephine Dinnen, Alice Knight, Phyllis Randall, Georgiana Bond, Julia Snyder, Virginia Carey, Dorothy Detzer, Alma Dreier, Helen Peters.

Miss Maude Geake, of Elgin, Ill., is visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Hirsch, of West Jefferson street, are in St. Louis for a few days.

Miss Virginia Olds has returned from visits in New York city and Bridgeport, Conn.

Mrs. Carl Keller and Mrs. James Nelson, of Logansport, are guests at the home of Mrs. C. S. Knight.

Mrs. A. Reichert, of Ann Arbor, Mich., is visiting her mother, Mrs. G. A. Rauh, of Cass street.

Miss Martha Heierlein, who was graduated from Oxford college on Tuesday, has returned home.

Mrs. D. S. Flick and daughter, Gladys, of Bluffton, Ohio, are visiting Mrs. John Mungen and Donald Mungen, of South Harrison street.

A. F. Urbine and family, from Gilman, Ia., are here for centennial week, and are guests of H. A. Miller and family, 315 Second street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Shoron, of Cleveland, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Studer. Mrs. Shoron is a home comer who first settled in this city in 1854.

John Reuss comes home from Notre Dame university, on Thursday, to remain over the week-end, and is accompanied by a college friend.

Miss Rosetta Wenstrup, of Cincinnati, has arrived for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Diederich Meyer, of West Wayne street.

Herman Rensliere, of Notre Dame university, is coming here on Thursday to spend a few days at the home of Miss Bertha Stulle.

Mrs. C. J. Sanger and son, of Detroit, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Striker, of South Calhoun street. Mr. Sanger is to join his family later in the week.

Mrs. H. L. Archbold, of South Pasadena, Cal., is in the city visiting relatives and friends and the guest of her mother, Mrs. Edward Miller, 215 East Lewis street.

Miss Velma Bueckner and Miss Beatrice Hamlett have returned from Chicago, where they have been attending school. Miss Hamlett will spend the week in the city and will then return to her home in Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. B. W. Kover is in Toledo, O., for a few days attending commencement exercises of the Law-Froebel Kindergarten Training school from which her daughter, Miss Esther, will be graduated this month.

Dr. A. K. Zartman celebrated his birth anniversary Thursday and his daughter and her husband, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Diefenbach, of Bluffton, and Dr. C. E. Zartman, of Winona Lake, came to spend the day and assist Rev. Zartman in an observance of the anniversary.

Mrs. W. E. Lipsett, Mrs. J. R. Meriwether, Misses Jane Meriwether and Katherine Cook, Boyd Lipsett and James Meriwether have returned from "Gala week" at Purdue university, from which James Meriwether and Rush McClure were graduated Wednesday.

Mrs. H. W. Luhman, of West Main street, entertained a few friends on Wednesday afternoon at the New Palace entertainment and later at the Anthony hotel, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Oscar Miller, of Milwaukee. The company spent a delightful time.

The Fort Wayne Normal school invites the public to its flower festival at 3:30 o'clock next Saturday, which will take place in Lakeside park. The queen chosen this year will be crowned by Miss Gladys Becker, the queen of the previous year. There will be a program of singing, dancing and dramatics.

Dr. Ray G. Manchester, a son of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Manchester, of this city, was graduated from the Kirkville, Mo., College of Osteopathy last Saturday and has arrived in the city for a short visit with his parents. Roy C. Manchester, another son, from Green County, Ky., has also come home for a visit. The latter young man is secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The S. M. T. club members were entertained recently at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meyer, when the members gave a shower on their sister, Miss Frances Brase, who is to wed this month. There was an elegant luncheon and a beautiful decoration of spring flowers. Progressive buncos was the amusement, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Mahala Drewett. Other guests were Agnes and Edna Meyer, Edna Gutermuth, Fern Ashton, Bertha Imbody, Elsie Ulrich, Mrs. Frieda Voel-ker, Mrs. Mahala Drewett, Mrs. Lena Miller and Miss Brase, who assisted Mrs. Meyer in serving.

Miss Violet Fields is receiving considerable attention in the way of pre-nuptial parties and there have been two this week. On Tuesday evening Miss May Staub and Miss Hilda Pierre united in entertaining for Miss Fields at the home of Miss Staub in Fairfield avenue. When the guests arrived they were supplied with sewing materials and asked to make lovely silk sachet bags for the bride-elect. After that agreeable pastime there was a guessing contest and then refreshments in the diningroom with yellow roses for decoration and tempting things to eat and drink carried out in the same coloring, yellow and white.

Miss Fields received a beautiful gift from her two hosts.

A delightful time was spent on Monday evening at the home of Miss Edna Gutermuth, of Oakland street, in honor of Miss Frances Brase, a bride-to-be of this month. A number of beautiful gifts were presented to her. The rooms looked extremely pretty with decorations of bride roses and ferns. A luncheon was served at a prettily decorated table, with the color scheme executed in pink and white. A large white bell hung over the table and pink tulle bows were tied to dainty baskets of nuts, used also as favors. The guests were members of the S. M. T. embroidery club, and are Miss Gutermuth, Miss Bertha Imbody, Mrs. Lena Miller, Mrs. Frieda Voelker, Miss Brase; guests from out of town were: Miss Margaret Rader, of Muncie, Miss Emelia Billman, of Pittsburg, who are visiting Miss Gutermuth, and Miss Dorothy Smith, of Logansport, and Miss Lola Ford, of Morley, Mich. The prizes were won by Miss Lena Miller, Miss Rager and Miss Brase.

Schaefer-Harmerver.

A beautiful home wedding took place on June 1, at the home of Mrs. Carl Schaefer, when her youngest daughter, Pauline, was united in marriage to William Schaefer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Schaefer. Rev. Paul Miller, of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiated. The bride looked very pretty in a bridal gown of crepe de chine, with an overdrape of marquisette and trimmings of silver lace. Her veil was festooned with bride roses and swansonia, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and swansonia. Miss Hanna Schaefer was maid of honor and she made a pretty appearance in a gown of white with yellow girdle, slippers and flowers. Miss Charlotte Bashel was in white with pink girdle and slippers, and Miss Louise Schaefer, another bridesmaid, wore white, with blue accessories. Messrs. Fred Schaefer and Arthur Bashel were groomsmen. There were nearly three hundred guests present. A bountiful supper was served.

Stock-Schmidt.

A wedding of much interest to many friends of both bride and groom took place on Sunday, June 4, when Miss Clara Schmidt and Rev. Walter Stock were united in marriage by the father of the groom, Rev. S. I. Stock, at 2:30 o'clock at the church. The bride was attended by Misses Martha Schmidt and Emma Meyer and the bridegroom by Messrs. Walter Niemeier and Ed Moeller. The ushers were Messrs. Will Niemeier and Harry Moeller. The bride made a very sweet appearance in a white gown of satin and her veil was caught to her hair with a wreath of flowers. The bride bouquet was composed of white roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in white and their flowers were bouquets of pink and white sweetpeas. At the reception and dinner after the church service, held at the bride's home, about two hundred guests participated. Rev. Mr. Stock and his bride are to leave very soon for their home in Alberta, Canada, where he is in charge of a Lutheran parish. They received the heartiest of congratulations from their many friends.

Lampe-Schmidt.

A beautiful wedding took place on

Sunday afternoon, June 4, at 2 o'clock, in St. Peter's Lutheran church, when Miss Alma Lampe, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lampe, became the bride of Mr. Daniel Schmidt, a son of Mrs. G. Schmidt, of Pomeroy, O. Rev. A. C. Doeffler performed the ceremony in the presence of many relatives and friends of both bride and groom. The bride was beautifully gowned in a white crepe de chine made with satin and silver trimmings. The bride wore a veil fashioned in cap effect that was fastened to her hair with a cluster of swansonia blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses and a shower of ribbon and swansonia. Miss Dorothy Baral, a cousin to the bride, was maid of honor and wore a handsome gown of pale green crepe de chine with trimmings of tiny pink rosebuds and her flowers were pink carnations. The bridesmaids were Misses Josephine Schmidt, sister to the groom, and Bertha Goggin. Miss Schmidt wore a pink silk voile and Miss Goggin wore a blue gown of the same material. Both dresses were trimmed with lace and taffeta and both maids held pink carnations and wore swansonia blossoms in their hair. Mr. Edwin Lampe, brother to the bride, and Mr. Paul Richter were groomsmen. The house was beautifully decorated with white wedding bells, and many peonies, lilies and roses. A reception to relatives and friends was held in the afternoon at the home of the bride on the Hicksville road. There were about 225 guests. An orchestra furnished music during the afternoon and evening. Guests from away were the groom's mother, Mrs. G. Schmidt, of Pomeroy, O.; Mrs. J. Hildinger and children, of Novelty, O. Both bride and groom are highly esteemed by all who know them. For the present the bride and groom will make their home with the bride's parents.

TIME, PLACE AND THE GIRL.

Dressed in faultless attire, the favorite little comedy with lyrics, "The Time, Place and the Girl," is being given a lavish production by the Boyle Woolfolk musical comedy company at the New Palace this week. Fresh from an extended tour as a road company, the LaSalle entourage, is welcoming its six week engagement in Fort Wayne as a vacation and the fact is manifest in the zestful enthusiasm with which the lassies of the chorus and the principals enter into their work. The bright, snappy musical numbers, with which the comedy is invested, are amplified by several selections rendered by the LaSalle quartet of male voices and a number of interesting dance specialties are introduced by Harrie Lee, the dainty little ingenue.

It is a typical Boyle Woolfolk company, brimming over with youth and the splendid beauty of fresh young health, which Mr. Woolfolk has found the American public peculiarly susceptible to. Opening next Monday evening the company will present the recent hit, "The Girl Question." This week daily dime matinees are being given, starting immediately after the parades.

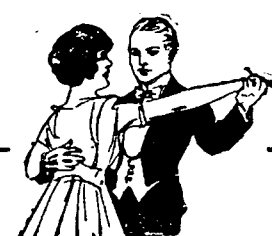

ATTENTION MOOSE!

All Moose members are requested to meet at Moose home at 1 p. m. Saturday, June 10th, to participate in the Fraternal parade.

BIG FETE BREAKS COURTS' BUSINESS

Centennial Affairs Puts a Perfect Muffler on the Sound of Trouble.

Fort Wayne's big centennial-fete put an almost complete muffler on the noise of human strife in the Allen county courts, Thursday. There was nothing. No new suits were filed and the circuit court did practically nothing with old ones. Another half holiday was taken by the whole body of officials, Thursday afternoon, but the building was open and hundreds of visitors from out of town inspected the beautiful structure.

NOTES OF THE COURTS.

The circuit court has reduced to $300 the bond of Walter Wedlaw, negro restaurant keeper charged with keeping a blind tiger. Wedlaw was convicted in the city court and given a heavy fine and sentenced to the penal farm, whereupon he took an appeal to the circuit court in which tribunal he was fined last April and given a suspended jail sentence on a similar charge.

LICENSED TO WED.

J. Earle Black, farmer, and Irene M. Curtis.
William H. Lange, machine hand, and Alice A. Henschen.
George R. Wilden, farmer, and Constance A. Hartle.
Robert E. Anderson, clerk, and Caroline Boegel.

HILBORN.

Seized with a coughing spell while at the supper table at the home of his sister, Mrs. O. C. Brewer, of 629 East Wayne street, George Hilborn, of Chicago, died shortly afterward before medical aid could arrive. Mr. Hilborn, who was visiting here, started to cough during the course of the evening meal and with the help of his sister left the house. When he arrived in the back yard he began coughing blood and a hemorrhage of the lungs caused death a few minutes later.

Dr. Harrod, who lives near by, was summoned, but when he arrived all signs of life were extinct. The deceased had been visiting at his sister's home for the past two weeks and was in poor health. He had been here seven weeks last fall, but returned to Chicago, thinking that his health had improved to such an extent that he could again go to work. However, his condition became worse and he returned to this city.

Besides the sister, at whose home he died, he is survived by another sister, Mrs. A. K. Reed, of Marion.

The deceased was a member of the Rev. Men's lodge, of the Loyal Order of Moose and the Painters' union of Chicago.

SMITH.

Mrs. Beatrice A. Smith, wife of Eugene Smith, died Wednesday evening at St. Joseph's hospital at the age of twenty-three years. The deceased was born and reared in Portland and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hearn, of that city. She had resided in Fort Wayne for the past three years and was a member of the Amaranth circle of the Crescent avenue Evangelical church.

Besides the husband and the parents she is survived by a daughter, aged ten days, four brothers, Wendell, Everett, John and Francis; one sister, Mildred Hearn, of Portland; one step-brother, Roy Miller, of Gary, and a step-sister, Mrs. Kenelken, of Portland.

Private funeral services Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, Rev. C. E. Boyer officiating. Interment at Lindenwood.

Friends may view the remains until Friday noon.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Roussey.—Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Roussey will be held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the residence, 1010 Erie street, and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church. Interment at New Haven Catholic cemetery.

Cutshall.—Funeral services for Mrs. Angeline M. Cutshall will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, Rev. Overdeer and Rev. Grist officiating.

Frazier.—Funeral services for Charles Frazier will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 at Schone & Ankenbruck's parlors.

mittee as permanent chairman of the progressive convention. No ballots were cast for any other official.

Half an hour before the progressive convention was scheduled to assemble, no more than one hundred persons were present. A band played to the empty house.

Little Excitement at Outset.

Although a routine program, including permanent organization, adoption of rules and a platform was the political menu when today's session of the progressive convention opened at 2 p. m., another demonstration for Col. Roosevelt like yesterday's record breaker was thought possible. In marked contrast to the opening session, there was little excitement as the delegates assembled this afternoon. Few delegations marched in en masse and both the delegates and spectators gathered slowly.

Before the convention opened the small crowd of delegates started the enthusiasm by cheering and standing while the band played patriotic airs. Small knots of delegates gathered to earnestly debate when nominations should be made.

velt ardor of delegates who sang "Teddy" songs and cheered Col. Roosevelt frequently while the crowds were filing in.

As they marched into the hall the Massachusetts delegation introduced a new song, the burden of which was that "It will never stop raining until we nominate T. R."

Ramond Robins received a telegram from Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, (democrat) extending congratulations on his speech yesterday as temporary chairman, and proposing "if the progressives fail to purge the republican party of old guard control" that the progressive republicans will join with progressive democrats "and exchange prisoners."

EASY TIME AHEAD FOR WORKS BOARD

Midweek Meeting Will Be Marked by Absence of Kickers.

The regular midweek meeting of the board of works, Thursday evening, will be marked by an absence of kickers and a light schedule of routine matters. There are no hearings booked, but the engineering department may have a plat for the vacation of Greeley street ready for the board's consideration. Centennial week has had the effect of making the routine of affairs rather easy in the city building.

NO FORMAL RENEWAL MADE.

The board of works has not received any formal renewal of the offer made some weeks ago by Messrs. Brothers & Johnson, of Cleveland, to dispose of the city's collected garbage at 50 cents a ton, though the board has been informed that the offer will continue to stand. The board has received other proposals along the same line that it considers more advantageous, if for any reason the project to build a new municipal garbage plant should be abandoned.

THE BIRTH RECORD.

To Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammill, 523 Hough street—a girl.
To Mr. and Mrs. Rhone Zimmerman, 456 Boltz street—a boy.
To Mr. and Mrs. Nicola Malateto, 353 Melita street—a boy.

AUTOMOBILE MISSING.

It was reported to police headquarters at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon that a five-passenger Reo touring car belonging to Samuel Weaver, and bearing Indiana license number 17895, had been taken from in front of the Anthony hotel. All cities and towns within fifty miles of Fort Wayne were notified at once by telephone to look out for the car.

YOUNG LIPPES IS AGAIN IN TROUBLE

Fort Wayne police headquarters has received word that Robert Lippes, aged 16, of 115 Masterson avenue, is under arrest in Michigan charged with stealing an automobile. Lippes was one of a gang of youngsters run to ground here, some three weeks ago, by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel and made to confess a series of automobile thefts. Lippes and Merritt Monroe, aged 17, of 2107 Little street, were fined $25 and costs and given suspended jail sentences by the circuit court, for unlawful possession of an automobile. Lippes, Monroe and some other lads were concerned in the theft of cars belonging to Henry C. Pequinot and John Wilding, of this city, and Henry Roth, of Grabbill. All the cars were recovered. They were prosecuted for taking the Pequinot car.

FORD STOLEN NEAR PAGEANT.

Joseph Hartman, 1049 Tennessee avenue, reports to police headquarters that his Ford car, bearing Indiana license number 13831, was stolen shortly after midnight from the place where it had been parked at Clinton and Sutherland streets, near the pageant grounds.

IN THE CHURCHES

36 Priests Meet Here.

The semi-annual conference in the six deaneries of the diocese of Fort Wayne, was held Wednesday afternoon at the episcopal residence. Thirty-six priests were present at this session, which was presided over by Rt. Rev. John H. Oechtering, moderator of the deanery. The reading of special papers was followed by general discussion of the subjects treated.

Epworth League Meeting.

The Fort Wayne district of Epworth leagues will hold its annual meeting at the Decatur M. E. church, June 20 to 22. An interesting program has been arranged and it is expected that the Decatur society will have the pleasure of entertaining several hundred delegates.

Speaks at Mission Tonight.

Loren Jones, who is in Fort Wayne arranging for the music to be rendered at the great tent revival meetings to be held on South Calhoun street, will speak and sing Thursday evening at the Rescue Mission on East Columbia street.

Social Side of Churches.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Wayne Street M. E. church meets Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the church parlors instead of Friday afternoon.

STRUCK BY CAR; LEG BROKEN.

J. G. Thieme, 816 West Berry street, reported to police headquarters Wednesday evening that while he and his son were riding in an electric car on Barr street, a man named Ralph Carlson got in front of them and was struck, sustaining a broken leg. The man was taken by Mr. Thieme to St. Joseph hospital. Mr. Thieme stated that the man was reading a letter as he crossed the street and walked into the electric.

the rules committee was being read to the republican convention an Associated Press dispatch from Oyster Bay, quoting Col. Roosevelt as willing to come to Chicago if the republican convention wanted him to address it, was handed to Chairman Harding. He showed it to Senator Borah, Murray Crane, Charles D. Hilles and it was then passed around to others. Senator Harding had no comment to make, but Senator Borah said:

"If I were sure that Roosevelt actually said that himself, I would be in favor of inviting him here."

ONLY PASSING INTEREST.

Chicago, June 8.—Col. Roosevelt's telegram created only passing interest among progressive leaders.

"The republicans want invite him to address them," Gov. Johnson commented laughingly. "Why the republicans even are afraid to have Roosevelt's name mentioned in their convention," said George Von L. Meyer.

FLORAL AUTO PARADE WITH TAFT IN LINE

Fifth car—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson and son, Mrs. E. C. Miller, Dr. C. E. Barnett.

Sixth car—Mr. Wallace Rice, Miss Frances Rice and Miss Flora Wilber.

Seventh car—Mr. and Mrs. James B. Crassaw and Mrs. Henry A. Beck, of Indianapolis, state regent for the D. A. R.

Mr. Taft Arrives.

Ex-President Taft was met at the Pennsylvania station at 10:25 o'clock by Hon. Newton W. Gilbert, former vice governor of the Philippine Islands, who is here on a short visit; Hon. Samuel M. Foster and Chairman E. C. Miller.

As he was escorted from the station to the waiting automobile he faced a battery of camera men including the cinema operators that are filming the pageant as a permanent record of Fort Wayne's celebration. The famous Taft smile was very much in evidence.

Speaks to School Children.

The distinguished visitor was taken north on Calhoun street to the south side of the court house on Berry street, where a chorus of over 1,000 school children greeted him with waving of flags and cheer after cheer. After the demonstration had subsided Mr. Taft spoke as follows:

"I greet you with congratulations that you are Americans. I don't have to ask you if Fort Wayne is prosperous now if it has good people because here before me is a demonstration of it. As I am to speak again, I will not tire you with a speech at this time. Good-bye and God bless you."

As the ex-president's car moved slowly away the children sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He was taken direct to the dedicatory exercises of the marker at Harman's ford, Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, Lakeside, where he spoke briefly. From there he was taken to the home of Hon. Samuel M. Foster, on Fairfield avenue, where he was entertained at lunch. During his stay in the city he was entertained at Mr. Foster's home.

Mr. Taft, following his afternoon address, paid a visit to the Woman's building, where he was received by a committee headed by Mrs. W. M. McKinnis.

This evening he will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Anthony hotel, following a reception there.

Will Not Discuss Politics.

Mr. Taft refused to discuss politics. A Sentinel reporter attempted to get an expression from him relative to the national republican convention at Chicago, but without success. The mention of Mr. Roosevelt's name caused him to smile and that was all.

The former president was in splendid spirits, said he never felt better and took occasion to congratulate Fort Wayne upon its magnificent celebration and the most cordial reception that he had received. He said he was glad he came.

The Day's Program.

Dedication of the marker at Harman's ford, Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, Lakeside, by the Daughters of American Revolution, at 11 o'clock; a chorus of 1,000 school children on Berry street, south side of the court house, accompanied by the Elks' band at 9:30 o'clock; floral automobile parade in charge of the women's societies, at 1:30 o'clock; address by former President Taft at pageant grounds at 3 o'clock and reception at the woman's building from 4 to 6 o'clock were the principal features of Thursday's program, besides the big pageant Thursday evening and the exposition.

School Children Sing.

More than 1,000 school children took part in the chorus Thursday morning under the direction of Professor William Miles. The following program was rendered: "The Fort Wayne Hymn," Wallace Rice and D. Parsons Goodrich; "Indiana," C. W. Harlan; "American Hymn," Kellar; "Anvil Chorus," Verdi; "Oh, Italia," Donizetti; "Soldiers' Chorus," from Faust, Gounod; "Pilgrim's Chorus," Wagner; "The Lost Chord," Sullivan; "Blue Danube Waltzes," Strauss; "The Star Spangled Banner," John Stafford Smith.

10,000 See Exposition.

Ten thousand people visited the exposition grounds on North Calhoun street, Wednesday evening, and saw the greatest industrial exhibition ever attempted in the state of Indiana.

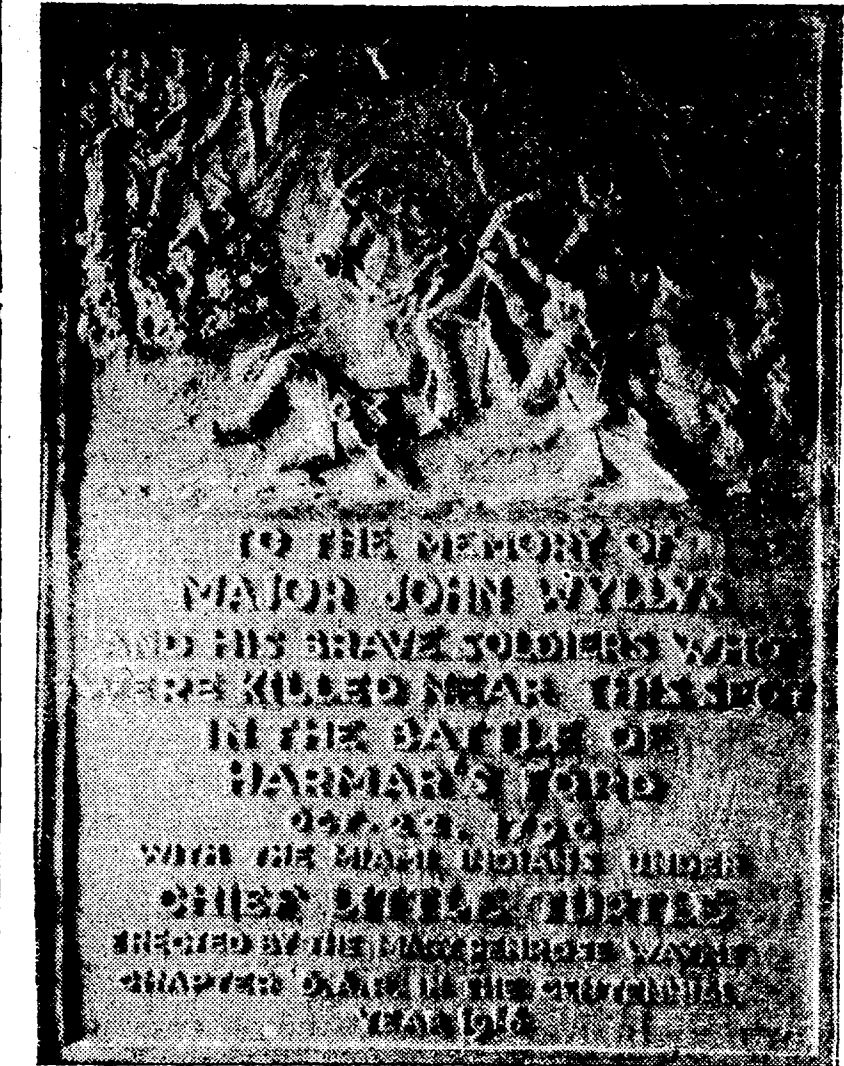

There are over a half mile of booths—two hundred in all—in which the merchants and manufacturers of Fort Wayne are showing the greatness of the city as a manufacturing, jobbing and shopping center.

Besides the exhibits there are fourteen feature acts which alone are worth the price of admission. The Scotch Highlands' band is furnishing the music.

Notwithstanding the rain the forepart of the week the grounds are in excellent condition. Hundreds of loads of gravel and clinders have been dumped along the passageways.

Announcement was made Thursday by Chairman Miller that the exposition will remain open over Sunday.

HARMAR'S FORD MARKER UNVEILED.

The accompanying picture is a photograph of the bronze tablet on the Harman's ford monument, unveiled Thursday morning. The tablet was designed and executed by H. G. Davison, director of the Fort Wayne School of Art.

Mexico, whether distant from or near to the boundary line.

SOME NEW FEATURES IN IT.

Chicago, June 8.—The sub-committee of the republican committee to which has been entrusted the task of drawing a tentative platform for submission to the full committee on resolutions, completed its work early today and adjourned to make a report to the full committee before they convened at 11 a. m. The sub-committee consists of Senators Lodge, of Massachusetts; Borah, of Idaho; Sutherland, of Utah; Fall, of Arizona; Oliver, of Pennsylvania; Wadsworth, of New York; Representative Madden, of Illinois; former Representative Paul Howard, of Ohio, and Charles Clarke, of Connecticut.

The strictest secrecy surrounded the work of the sub-committee, it having adopted a resolution not to divulge anything in connection with the platform until it is submitted to the full committee. It was learned, however, that the committee found little trouble in drafting the declaration of principles, the chief work being in agreeing on phraseology. It was generally believed the platform will reaffirm most of the principles adopted four years ago. The new features will include a declaration on Americanism and the international situation will be touched upon. The Mexican policy of the present national administration will be criticized; it was said. Several members of the committee did not anticipate any difficulty in having quick action taken by the full committee. It was hoped that the platform would be approved and put in shape in time to present it to the convention today. Several members thought it might not be taken up until tomorrow.

Woman Suffrage Rejected.

A proposed plank in the republican platform declaring for woman suffrage has been rejected by the sub-committee on resolutions by a vote of 5 to 4. The fight will be carried before the full committee today. Those voting in favor of the plank were Senators Borah, Sutherland and Fall and Representative Mann, of Illinois. Those voting against it were Senators Wadsworth and Lodge, Charles Hopkins Clark, of Hartford, Conn., former Representative Rowland, of Ohio, and Senator Oliver, of Pennsylvania.

The sub-committee of the republican committee on resolutions adopted a plank respecting relations with Mexico, offered by Senator Fall, of New Mexico, which is a strong attack on the administration's policy. Rejection of a plank offered by Senator Borah probably will result in the question being taken before the full committee.

Other planks touching on labor, Americanism, national defense and other questions have been adopted in form intended to meet progressive sentiment, and will be reported to the full committee today. Planks for the recall, the initiative and referendum have been rejected in the sub-committee.

ATTENTION MOOSE!

All Moose members are requested to meet at Moose home at 1 p. m. Saturday, June 10th, to participate in the Fraternal parade.

AWAITING PLATFORM

price of which steadily declined. The uniformed police were early spread about the floor with the hope of getting the aisles clear and the delegates seated so the convention could begin business at 11 o'clock instead of facing a twenty-five minutes wait as they did yesterday.

Report Alone Remained.

Inasmuch as the temporary organization had been made permanent yesterday, nothing remained but to report the proceeding to the convention and ask its approval.

The continued gloomy weather was beginning to show its depressing effect on all phases of the convention. There was evident among the early arriving delegates something of a disposition to have the proceedings hastened and bring about a final adjournment on Friday, but among the men who control the sections of the convention there was an absence of predilection as to final adjournment.

"Uncle Joe" Early.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was one of the early arrivals. He was having some trouble getting to the Illinois delegation and a big policeman backed the line to let the former speaker through. W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts and other leaders began to arrive as the hour moved to eleven o'clock. Police Chief Henley looked over the hall and reported to Col. Stone, the sergeant-at-arms, that it was the most orderly convention he had seen in thirty years. A view of the big hall confirmed his view. Eleven o'clock passed without a sign of the convention coming to order. The aisles were crowded with delegates moving to their seats, but the hall was only about half full.

Convention Is Opened.

Chairman Hilles finally got in and had a short conference with former Secretary Stinson and Nicholas Murray Butler, of the New York delegation. Chairman Harding also arrived and the platform began to fill.

It was just 11:22 when Chairman Harding brought down the gavel.

His call for order brought almost immediate response and the aisles were ordered cleared.

Chairman Harding asked the convention to rise while Monsignor Francis G. Kelley read a prayer. The convention stood in silence as he read the invocation.

Chairman Harding was ready to go on with the next business, but the band began "Rock of Ages." When through the first bar, however, the band leader saw he was out of order and stopped.

Credentials Committee Reports.

Mr. Harding then called for the report of the credentials committee. Senator Smoot, the chairman, came upon the platform to make the report and was greeted with applause.

The report recommending the seating of 987 delegates was read by the senator with a list of decisions in the contested cases. It excluded two delegates from the District of Columbia, admitted two each from Alaska and Hawaii. Scattering applause greeted announcement of some of the contests. At its close Senator Smoot moved the adoption of the report. There was no objection. A rolling chorus of ayes put it through.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was next. Wm. C. S. Hahn, of Ohio, made the report recommending the temporary organization be made permanent. Former Representative Bennett, of New York, took the gavel and put the question and it was carried.

Harding Permanent Chairman.

Mr. Bennett then presented Harding as permanent chairman. There was quite a demonstration and when he tried to gavel it down the crowd cheered a little louder. Repeated whacks of the gavel only brought more of a demonstration. The delegates rose and the cheers rolled louder. It was the longest sustained demonstration of the convention so far. Finally the crowd quieted and Mr. Harding thanked the convention for its approval.

The report of the rules committee was next, but it was not ready and at the chairman's request the band started up again while awaiting the report.

495 Votes Necessary to Choose.

The chairman stopped the music to recognize Senator Smoot again for a supplemental report from the credentials committee. It proposed to give votes to the six delegates from Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines. It was adopted without opposition. That made the total number of the votes in the convention 989, making 495 votes necessary to a nomination.

Finally the report of the rules committee was ready and National Committee man C. B. Warren, of Michigan, presented it. It was a unanimous report and has been published. Briefly the rules of the convention are those of the house of representatives with certain modifications to adapt them to the needs of so different a body.

The report of the resolutions committee was the next order of business, but the chairman announced that with the arbitrary authority which goes with the gavel he would appoint former Secretary Stimmon and Speaker Sweet, of New

New Discovery Stops Dandruff

"Vola-Vita," Great Hair Discovery.

Vola-Vita kills the dandruff germ quickly and thoroughly. It has been a common occurrence for Vola-Vita in only a few weeks' time to eradicate dandruff in cases so severe that the scalp was one mass of scaly crusts, falling like a snow-storm when the hair would be disheveled with the fingers.

Hair has been analyzed and is found to contain five vital substances. These are in correct quantities, hair loses its vigor, it dies, falls out, turns gray; dandruff and baldness result. When the missing substances are restored, a remarkable change results. Vola-Vita restores a perfect scalp. It restores promptly and surely vanishes, and more remarkable still, the original color of the hair—whether it was black, brown or red—is restored to any gray, faded or bleached hair, without dye or stain.

Vola-Vita contains no alcohol to dry up hair secretions and injure hair growth. There is no other hair treatment in the world like it. Satisfaction guaranteed.

"You certainly have a preparation that performed a miracle in my case. My hair has been a perfect crust of dandruff and when I combed it my wife invited me out on the back porch. After three applications Vola-Vita my head was as clear of dandruff as the palm of my hand."

C. D. C. is sold at all drug stores. $1.00 a bottle, or sent direct by Vola-Vita Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

BREACH AT CHICAGO WIDENS; 2 TICKETS NOW SEEM CERTAIN

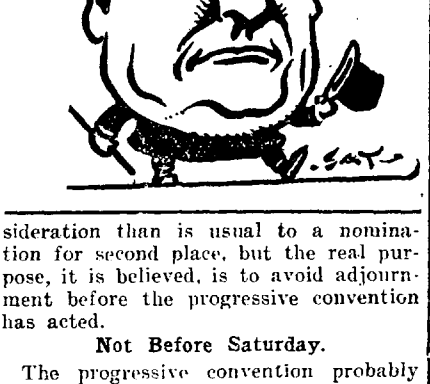

Chicago, June 8.—As political leaders gathered for the second day's sessions of the republican and progressive national conventions it became more and more apparent that there would be two tickets in the field.

Victor Murdock, chairman of the progressive national committee, summed up the whole situation when he said today: "Well, we left the door open and the the convention will adjourn before Saturday. Ostensibly the session will be prolonged to give more deliberate consideration than is usual to a nomination for second place, but the real purpose, it is believed, is to avoid adjournment before the progressive convention has acted.

Not Before Saturday.

The progressive convention probably will not nominate before Saturday. There will be only a few hours' session today and that will be devoted to platform making and other routine. The republicans don't seem to be coming in." That was the progressive leader's reply to inquiries as to whether there remained any prospect for harmony and whether there was likely to be appointed today conference committees representing both parties to receive and pass upon peace suggestions.

Discount Peace Talk.

Republican leaders, too, discounted the success of the peace talk, saying that action had been delayed for so long that a majority of the republican delegates already have decided to proceed without regard for any third party, and nominate Justice Hughes, to whom the delegates are confident that on Saturday they will name as their ticket Roosevelt and Johnson, their standard-bearers of four years ago.

While there has been little real discussion by republicans of vice-presidential possibilities and it is recognized that geographical conditions and political expediency will govern, considerable talk was heard today indicating that there might be concentration on either former most support has been gathered. There are some among the progressives and among Roosevelt republicans as well who still believe that the colonel himself could save the day if he would come to Chicago. Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, who was defeated for republican delegate at large from Massachusetts on a Roosevelt ticket pleaded with progressive leaders to bring Col. Roosevelt on without delay.

Roosevelt Reply Later.

Word came from Oyster Bay, however, that Col. Roosevelt had received the telegram from Republican National Committeeman Jackson, of Maryland, sent yesterday urging him to come here in the interest of harmony. While the colonel announced it was not his present intention to accept the invitation he would make public his reply later, and he did not indicate what its tenor would be.

The republican nomination for president will be made probably in the Coliseum tomorrow but it is not expected

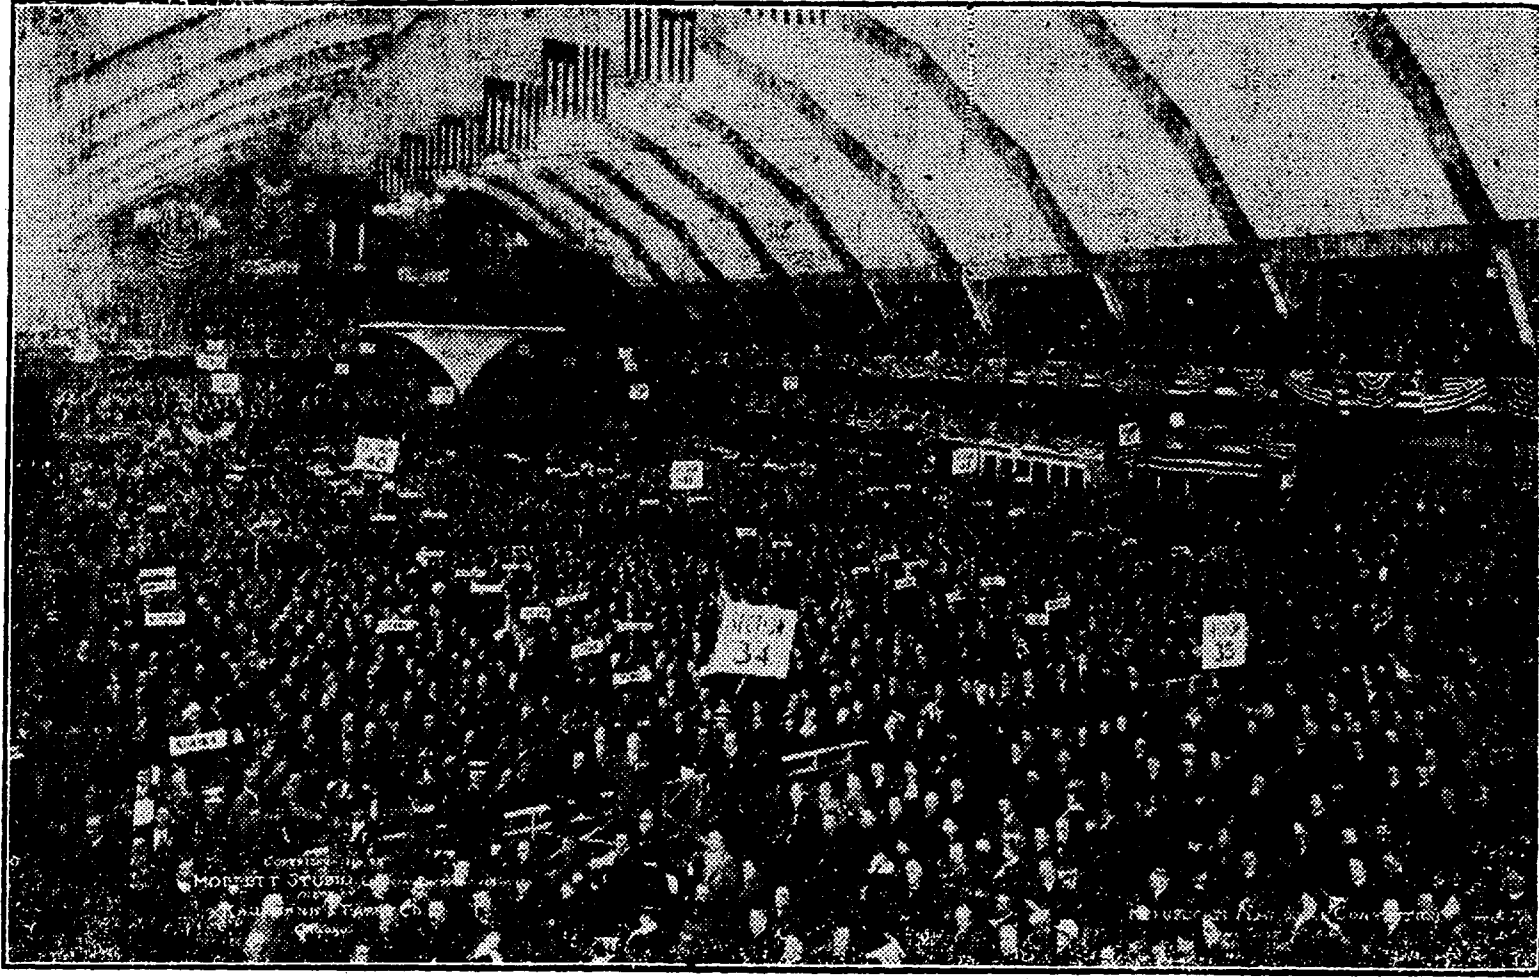

Vice-President Fairbanks of Indiana or former Senator Burton of Ohio.

Not Before Friday.

The developments of the last twenty-four hours made it plain that neither convention would come to the point of making a nomination before Friday, and that it was possible the time of nominating might be delayed beyond that time.

Committees of both conventions named yesterday worked most of the night and this morning endeavoring to clean up their work. The resolutions subcommittee of the republican committee finished their deliberations at 1:30 o'clock this morning having drafted a platform. Other committees pressed forward with their programs, trying to be ready with reports when the convention sessions were resumed.

The Colonel Might Come.

Meanwhile discussions of possible peace and fusion of the two parties assumed a more concrete trend, and the rumor became persistent that Col. Roosevelt might come to Chicago and appear before both conventions in the role of pacificator.

Republican leaders discussed the proposal to invite Roosevelt to Chicago and decided, it was said, that if Roosevelt is prepared to declare himself out of the contest for the nomination and enter into an agreement for the selection of one of the republican candidates the invitation will be forthcoming.

Contrary to this view, leading progressives declared that Col. Roosevelt would be nominated by the progressive convention regardless of what was done at the Coliseum or in the council rooms of the republican party leaders.

White Has It Doped Out.

William Allen White, of Kansas, insisted that Roosevelt would be nominated before midnight tonight and that Governor Johnson, of California, would be nominated for vice-president by the progressives. But the peace plan discussion involved progressives in considerable numbers today. The word went out that a peace conference between responsible parties of both parties might begin before tonight. The conference would take up the suggestion that the republican and progressive conventions name committees to meet and attempt to reach an agreement as to a joint candidate and a joint platform.

Delay yesterday in this matter, some republicans said, was due to lack of rules of temporary organization. Authority is forthcoming, however, it was said, in the new rules.

Call It Mere Subterfuge.

Others state that this was a mere subterfuge, that the leaders in the republican camp have come to the conclusion that Hughes will get the nomination and that there will be no considerable opposition from Roosevelt. From progressive headquarters came information that western delegates were solidly against any plans for fusion and peace. It was said that North Dakota and other progressive state delegations desired a third party above all else, and would do everything possible to prevent the Auditorium convention from entering into or ratifying any sort of peace pact.

Can Block Perkins Effort.

These state delegations, it was reported, were sufficient in numbers to block efforts of George W. Perkins and other progressive leaders from entering into agreement with the republicans.

Three days of rain, putting a stop to nearly all outdoor activities, has had a depressing effect upon many of the delegates, and as a result there has been developed a strain of belligerency in many normally not observable.

There have occurred several personal clashes among delegates in hotel lobbies and last night in the lobby of the Congress hotel Sherman adherents and Roosevelt followers engaged in a free-for-all fight and scramble that involved several score men. Police experienced difficulty in restoring order and several persons were slightly injured.

Germany now has iron money in circulation.

Lafayette Place Company Builds Tennis Courts

Four of what are probably the finest tennis courts in the city have been laid out in Lafayette Place, one of the newest restricted additions of the city, which is located on South Calhoun street, squarely in the path of Fort Wayne's great southward growth.

These new courts are of macadam construction, and are a part of the Lafayette Place Company's plans for the improvement of the addition, which include the building of a $5,000.00 community club house, playgrounds for children, a 210 foot street that will be called Lafayette Esplanade and will be the broadest street in the city. SAYS HE WAS HELD IN DETENTION CAMP

Lured from Buffalo Over the Canadian Line, is the Charge Made.

New York, June 8.—Eugene Stitz, 23 years old, told the officers of the He-brew sheltering home for immigrants today that he had been lured from Buffalo over the Canadian line and interned for nine months in a Canadian detention camp. Stitz, who arrived here last night, said he had walked from Buffalo in twenty-six days.

He declared that he had served for three years in the German army and that he came to America in 1914 and obtained work in a dye works at Buffalo. While he was employed there, he said, a stranger offered him a better position in "another neighboring town" and Stitz accepted it. After a ride of about an hour on a train they alighted and Stitz was seized by six men and taken to a barracks where, he said, he was kept a prisoner of war and made to scrub floors and clean the officers' quarters. He said he thought this was in Toronto.

Stitz asserted that he was released after he had convinced the officers that he was a Rumanian. He rode a freight back to Buffalo, but remained there only two hours. "I was afraid they would catch me and take me back to Canada," he added.

REMAINS ARE CREMATED.

The remains of Mrs. Ellen Ibttinger, wife of Lawrence Ibttinger, of 835 Washington boulevard west, who died Tuesday at the family home, were cremated Wednesday. The ashes were placed in a copper box and buried in Lindenwood near the resting place of her mother, who will be remembered as Mrs. Mary Baker.

Mrs. Julia M. Stapleford and Mrs. J. H. Orr, sisters of the deceased, who were here to attend the funeral, left Wednesday evening for their home in Colorado Springs, Col.

WILSON COMPLETES DRAFT OF PLATFORM

Guarding National Honor and Keeping at Peace Will Be Cited.

Washington, June 8.—President Wilson today practically had completed a draft of the platform to be submitted to the democratic national convention. The principal plank, it is expected, will consist of a declaration of the administration's success in guarding the honor and interest of the United States and at the same time keeping the nation at peace.

Specifically the foreign affairs sections of the platform probably will praise these acts of the administration. Protection of the neutral rights of the United States and other nations. Refusal to allow the country to be drawn into the Mexican internal troubles and prompt dispatch of troops in pursuit of raiders on American territory.

Maintenance of the Monroe doctrine and fostering good relations with other nations of the western hemisphere. Support of the policy of "America first."

The planks on domestic affairs will refer particularly to the merits of the Underwood tariff act, the federal reserve act and the administration's preparedness plans.

didate for the short term as United States senator, and Elwood Haynes, of Kokomo, was nominated for the long term in the senate. The platform was adopted and a state ticket selected. The remainder of the state ticket follows:

Lieutenant governor, Albert Stanley, Indianapolis; secretary of state, Ransom Pope, Elkhart; auditor of state, Harry Peacock, Union City; treasurer of state, A. W. Benham, Crothersville; attorney general, T. E. Ballard, Crawfordsville; superintendent of public instruction, E. A. Devore, Indianapolis; reporter of supreme court, F. Agnew (Gillespie), Indianapolis; chief of bureau of statistics, Mrs. Laura B. Leonard, Indianapolis; judges of supreme court, John H. Parker, of Greensburg, and Benjamin F. Watson, of Indianapolis; judges of appellate court, A. T. Riley, of Greencastle, and Albert B. Kirkpatrick, of Kokomo.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE STILL KEEPING BUSY

Chicago, June 8.—Suffrage activities today will be marked with a public reception tendered the National American Woman's association at the new municipal pier by the Illinois Equal Suffrage association. The national association will also hold informal meetings throughout the day and the congressional union for woman suffrage will hold sessions and informal meetings.

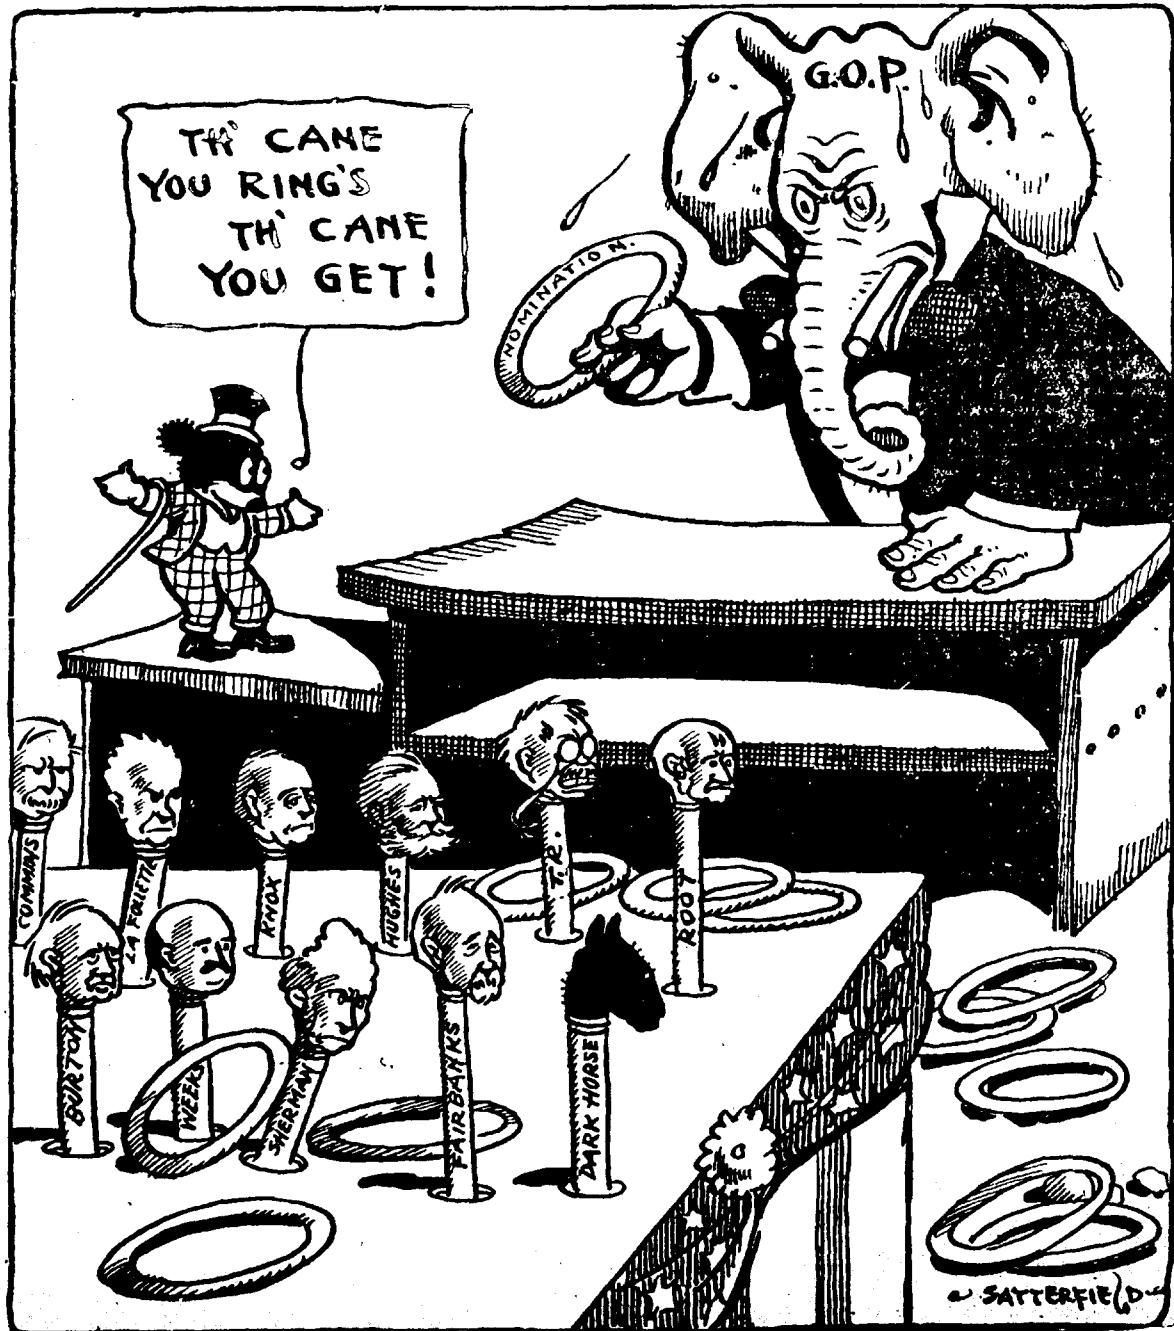

The climax of the suffrage activities came yesterday in the parade in which more than 5,000 suffragists braved a rain and wind storm to march to the Coliseum, where leaders presented to the resolutions committee of the convention a petition.

EX-KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL

King Manuel, of Portugal, who lost his crown on account of a woman, has won a new title with the aid of another member of the fair sex. Paired with Mrs. Lambert Chambers, the former king annexed the Red Cross mixed doubles on the Queen's club courts recently. According to reports of the game King Manuel's share in the joint victory was a powerful forehand drive. However, the strategist of the side was Mrs. Chambers. During his reign Manuel was an enthusiastic sportsman and devoted much of his time to golfing, riding and playing tennis.

SHAKE-UP IN CHICAGO CUB CAMP.

Chicago, June 8.—That a big shakeup is under way on the Chicago Cubs was evident today when President Weegman announced that he had released both Mike Doolan and Steve Yerkes to the Atlanta club of the Southern association and that he would leave tomorrow for New York with the hope of completing a deal that would add a couple of men to the team to take the places of those released.

Both Doolan and Yerkes held iron bound contracts for large salaries, both players having been taken by the Cubs from the Federal league. Doolan had a contract with the Chicago club and Yerkes with the Pittsburgh club in the defunct league. Weegman, of course, carried Doolan on his new club team and purchased Yerkes in the spring from Owner Gwinner, of the Pittsfield.

These contracts will be fulfilled, just as many others of players placed with minor league teams will be paid in full. The Atlanta club will pay an amount in accord with the Southern association's scale of salaries and Weegman will make up the balance. Both Doolan and Yerkes are with the Cubs in Philadelphia, and after the deal was completed over the long distance telephone to Nashville, where the Atlanta club was playing, Weegman notified Manager Tinker in Philadelphia to have the two men report to Atlanta as soon as possible.

So far as Weegman knows, there will be no serious objection on the part of the players, as both realize they haven't been playing up to major league speed.

HERE'S AN AWFUL THING TO HOPE FOR

Twin Cities Wish to Get the Fulton-Willard Fight.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 8.—Hope for a Jess Willard-Fred Fulton bout for the heavyweight boxing championship to take place in the Twin cities was revived today when it was learned there was a chance to obtain a special permit from the boxing commission.

The bout practically had been given up because of the failure to obtain this permit, but upon word today that the commission might grant the permit the promoters, Harry Sherman, Robert Seiberlich, and Jack Elliott, renewed their efforts to land the match.

The option on Willard's services expires Saturday. A meeting took place this afternoon and Sherman will go to Chicago tomorrow to confer with Tom Jones, Willard's manager, relative to renewing the option.

BEN ERLICH IS STATE CHAMPION

Indianapolis, June 8.—Ben Erlich, of Terre Haute, won the state amateur championship yesterday during the eleventh annual tournament of the Trapshooters' League of Indiana. R. H. Bruns, of Brookville, easily won the doubles event and Mrs. B. F. Remy, of Indianapolis, was the winner of the women's championship of the state.

Erlich broke 292 out of a possible 300 targets in his shooting yesterday and today and this brought him the state title. Bruns broke 46 out of a possible 48 in the doubles. Mrs. Remy broke 41 targets out of 50 shots.

RUTH IS MAINSTAY OF BOSTON STAFF.

Babe Ruth's good left arm is doing its share to keep the crippled Boston Red Sox, holders of the world championship, from falling to pieces in the present flag campaign. The Babe rang up his third shutout victory of the year when he fanned Fohl's Cleveland Indians 5 to 0, the triumph giving him a record of eight wins in eleven starts.

The Nationals, Yankees and Indians have been the only clubs to beat Ruth to date. In the 102 1-3 innings he has worked the Boston sidewheeler has allowed 68 hits and 24 runs.

Ruth started with a rush, copping four straight engagements, bowling over the Athletics twice and Washington and New York each once. Washington stopped him May 1 and Cleveland walloped him May 10, but Babe came back and won two straight from St. Louis and Detroit, then lost another to the Yanks. Washington fell before him June 1 and he followed this feat by calumniating the Indians on their own reservation.

LUSTY WAIL DISPELS FEAR

Brazil, Ind., June 8.—A crowd stood in the street watching the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Carroll, playing on the window ledge of a second story room above a concrete sidewalk. The child pushed against the screen in the window and the screen gave way and the baby fell in a heap on the sidewalk. Several persons rushed to him expecting to find the child dead, but a lusty wail dispelled that fear. The baby's left arm was dislocated at the shoulder and the ligaments were torn.

HELEN KELLER HAILS NEW WOMAN'S PARTY

Noted Blind Writer Calls It Dawn of Freedom for Her Sex.

BY HELEN KELLER
(Copyright 1916 by Newspaper Enterprise Association).

Chicago, Ill., June 8.—For the first time in the history of American women have become a great factor in the selection of a presidential candidate, and the creation of a party's platform. They are seen everywhere here in Chicago in these pre-convention discussions where a very few years ago their appearance would have caused untold comment. And their influence is affecting every "deal" that the politicians are making. Greatest of all, they have just formed a "woman's party," the birth of which I saw as was started winging its way down the ages.

What does all this mean? What message does this hold for the women of America—of the world? The woman's party means more than votes for women. It is the symbol of our solidarity. It stands for the best national efforts of American women. It embodies the aspirations of millions of intelligent women—women who think, and have enlightened opinions. It focuses our struggle for independence. The woman's party stands for woman first. It means an individual allegiance to our ideal—the idea of sex equality and responsibility.

It means more and more united, effective co-operation. Women have discovered that they cannot rely on man's chivalry to give them justice—just as men before them found out that we cannot be saved by other people—we must save ourselves.

Man has fought hard for the extension of his franchise; it has sometimes cost bloodshed. Today women are met with the same arguments that were urged against the political emancipation of men. It was argued by their masters that the propertyless mob was not competent to vote; that they did not want the vote; that only a few noisy demagogues were stirring the people and filling their heads with foolishness. The idea that they were capable of taking intelligent interest in political questions was ridiculed.

But no ridicule, no argument, no force could daunt those who fought for manhood suffrage. The justice of our cause is as obvious, as compelling, as theirs. Our need to take part in controlling the affairs of the world is imperative. The love of power is strong in the human breast, and men, having once secured their suffrage, will keep it for themselves until we force them to extend it to women.

The time is ripe for us: there are now four million women voters in the United States. The party that turns them down is dead politically. Of course our victory is not won; we shall have to work long and endure much before our dreams are realized. But the new woman's party will give the two old parties a jolt at the presidential election that will set them thinking and acting.

At every stage of history there comes a moment when decisive action brings all the struggles of the past into realization. This is one of those moments in the nation's life and in the life of women.

How to Get Rid of a Cold.
Summer colds are serious. Read how C. E. Summers, Holdrege, Neb., got rid of his: "I contracted a severe cough and cold and could hardly sleep. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and the very first dose relieved me. I took a second dose before going to bed and can truthfully say I did not cough all night. By using as directed the next two days my cough was entirely cured and I give Foley's Honey and Tar full credit for my speedy recovery." Foley's always soothes and heals. Children love it. WINONA LAKE NEWS.

Winona Lake, Ind., June 8.—George V. Roscoe and his orchestra, of Goshen, will play at this place, beginning Thursday, July 13, for thirty days.

About five hundred Winona normal college students have enrolled for the first summer normal term of the Winona college. The 500 new students will bring the total well up towards a thousand, several hundred having already arrived and started their studies some weeks ago.

A special meeting of the directors of the Winona interurban lines was held at the main offices of the company, at Warsaw, Friday.

Theodore Roosevelt, former president; Thomas R. Marshall, vice president; Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president, and William J. Bryan, three times the nominee for president and former secretary of state, will be heard at Winona assembly this summer. Vice President Marshall's date is Monday, July 3rd.

George Dehoff has become Winona postmaster, succeeding John O. Motto. Mrs. Agnes Seyon, 97, mother of Milford H. Lyon, Winona evangelist, died at her Waterloo, Iowa, home last week. She was the only living survivor of the famous Fort Dearborn massacre.

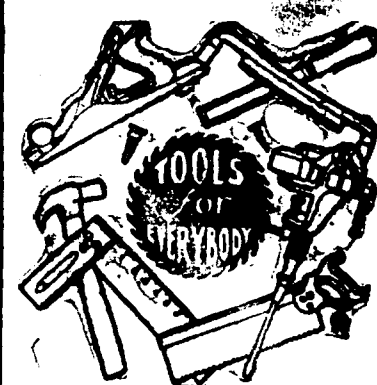

That nothing is going on in Winona lake is the opinion of many persons who have occasion to visit the lake at night. Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, rated as the world's greatest singer, is at Culver, where her son is a student in the military school.

GETS BABYLONIAN CYLINDER

President of Notre Dame Receives Record of Nebuchadnezzar.

Notre Dame, Ind., June 8.—A large burned clay cylinder telling of the works of Nebuchadnezzar, has come into possession of the very Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame university, who received it from Dr. Edgar J. Banks, of New York, an archaeologist. The cylinder was found recently in the ancient city of Marada, near the site of Babylon, in the walls of a temple. It is one of three found, the other two being in the New York public library and in the British museum at London.

The cylinder is about nine inches high and four inches in diameter, and it contains 145 lines, supposedly written by Nebuchadnezzar himself, giving an account of the building of the walls of Babylon and of the reconstruction of the great tower of Babel, which scholars have identified as the Biblical tower of Babel. The walls, which were 60 miles long, 300 feet high and 85 feet wide, were completed, according to the story on this cylinder, in fifteen days by a gigantic army of 2,000,000 men.

LARGER CROWDS COMING TO CITY

Trains on All the Roads Doing Better Than on Preceding Days.

Travel into Fort Wayne on account of the celebration was much greater today than on any of the previous days of centennial week. The special train on the Nickel Plate from Hammond and intermediate stations brought in over 400 people and the next greatest crowd—about 360 people—came in on Wabash train No. 21, from the east. The Wabash also brought in a good many people from the west, No. 28 being well filled with passengers. Travel out of the city on the Pennsylvania special train at 11 o'clock last night indicated a much greater crowd here from the towns west of the city yesterday than came in the preceding day. Last night this train had three coaches well filled when it pulled out of the station. It will have a larger crowd tonight, for all the early trains from the west today brought in centennial visitors. It is possible that the extra train service will be extended to Friday night. A request for it has been sent to the Pennsylvania officials at Pittsburgh and a favorable reply is expected. The original arrangement was for three nights—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—but the postponement of Tuesday's program to Friday makes it desirable to have the extra train that night.

"BOB" VOLZ IN NEW POSITION.

Balzer Volz has taken a position as sweeper in the Pennsylvania planing mills, succeeding Charles Volz, who went on the retired list June 1. "Bob" Volz, as the boys at the shops call him, was originally the wheel roller at the car machine shop and before he was injured two or three years ago, none could beat him in that work. He could handle a carwheel with apparently as much ease as an ordinary man handles a shovel or other tool. One day, however, "Bob" had one of his hands caught between two wheels and lost a part of the member and that accident discouraged him and resulted in his request to be transferred to other work. "Bob" Volz and Charles Volz, although of the same name, are not relatives.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR STUDENTS.

The 1915-1916 school season of the Concordia seminary at St. Louis closes tomorrow and the students will immediately start for their homes. For the accommodation of those east of this city, No. 28 will carry an extra coach Saturday morning. It will be cut out of the train here and attached to No. 18 and taken to Toledo. Students whose homes are reached through Detroit will continue on to that city on No. 28. Concordia college in this city will close next Thursday and an exodus of students will commence at once, making business for the Wabash, for most of them will use that line in going to their homes.

WILL ATTEND FAMILY REUNION.

Pennsylvania Conductor Harry H. Shelly has obtained a lay off for the purpose of attending the Parker family reunion, which will be held at Robinson park next Saturday. Ever since the death of Christian Parker, the head of the vast family, about twenty years ago, the survivors have held family reunions, most of them in Robinson park. Last year there were over 300 at the reunion, all related either by blood or marriage, and it is said Saturday. Of larger attendance next Saturday. Of the original family only two of the children, Christian Parker and his wife, are living. They are Oliver Parker, of Lake avenue, and Mrs. C. Halter, of Cedarville, both of whom are upwards of seventy years. Christian Parker resided many years on a farm on the Coldwater road, a few miles from the city.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS HERE YESTERDAY.

The New York Central and the Lake Erie and Western officials were in the city while yesterday conferring on matters of joint interest and taking a look at the companies' properties. Each had a special train, General Superintendent Wilson, of the N. Y. C., coming down from the north, and General Superintendent George Dryer, of the L. E. & W., coming in from the south. Each was accompanied by the division officials of their respective lines.

TO NEW YORK FOR VISIT.

Mrs. A. J. Schwartz, mother of Nickel Plate Passenger Fireman George Schwartz, left today, accompanied by her son, for New York, where she will spend a part of the summer with her daughter. Fireman Schwartz will also remain there two or three weeks, visiting relatives and friends. During his absence his place in the cab with Engineer Maroney will be filled by Fireman H. G. Weigman.

HAD TWO FINGERS CRUSHED.

Chris Demetra, a laborer in the foundry yards at the Bass works, had the first and second fingers of his left hand crushed at 3 o'clock last night. It is believed the digits will be saved. They were hurt by being caught in the coke and drag.

Boiler Inspector L. G. Nicholas, of the interstate commerce commission, is working in this vicinity at present, inspecting locomotive boilers.

Nickel Plate Engineer William Haezel is laying off to entertain some friends from Ohio who arrived in the city yesterday to attend the celebration.

Machinist Nick Merz resumed work at the Pennsylvania shops this morning. He was off duty a week on account of the death of his father, Peter Merz.

After an absence from the city of two weeks, during which he was at the lakes, Engineer D. H. Graybill reported for work this morning on the Nickel Plate.

George Likely, Nickel Plate engineer, is taking a two weeks' lay off and his run on the Knox local with Conductor D. W. Watterson is being taken by Engineer C. M. Crawford.

E. A. Drawery, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

R. W. Shaw, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, will go to Chicago Saturday to attend the races.

Nickel Plate Engineers A. E. Evans, Grover Miller and W. C. Hoppel have been off duty several days on account of the "doins" of the Moose lodge, of which they are members.

Conductors J. S. Habacher and W. H. Walker and Brakemen W. E. Forsythe and M. O. Brown, who had been taking in the celebration, resumed work on the Nickel Plate this morning.

General Foreman E. B. Hughes, of the Pennsylvania roundhouse, is host this week to Frank Longwell and family, of Van Wert, who are also attending the centennial celebration exercises.

W. O. Barry, senior mechanical engineer of the valuation department of the interstate commerce commission, was in the city today on business with the local Pennsylvania motive power officials.

Frank Schafer, assistant general foreman of the Pennsylvania machine shop, is laying off to entertain his brother, George Schafer, from West Virginia, who arrived in the city Tuesday to spend Centennial week.

While at work in the Pennsylvania tank shop this morning, G. Henlein was taken suddenly and violently ill and fell to the floor in a faint. The city ambulance was called and he was taken home, where he soon revived.

Master Mechanic E. E. Griest, of the Pennsylvania, accompanied Mrs. Griest and daughter Marjorie to Bloomington, Ind., this morning, where they will spend several days with relatives. Master Mechanic Griest will return home tomorrow. Foreman Ed Koehn, of the Pennsylvania shops, and his wife left this afternoon for Toledo, where they will attend the commencement exercises of a kindergarten training college, of which their daughter, Miss Hilda Koehn, is one of the graduates.

S. D. Erick, of the pattern department of the General Electric works, who has been confined to his home for three weeks with an injured leg, is improving and will soon be able to be out, though it will be some time before he is able to resume work.

Chief Clerk Harry C. Holliday, of Trainmaster R. E. Casey's office, G. R. & L., entered upon a two weeks' vacation this morning. He will remain in the city during pageant week and then take a pleasure trip into Ohio, visiting friends in Columbus, Cleveland and Akron. L. J. Kahoe, of the same office, resumed work this morning after a two weeks' vacation.

Machinist H. J. Wright had a finger badly lacerated and bruised yesterday when it was caught between some machinery he was handling. Machinist J. C. Moring also had a finger crushed and cut by getting it caught in the machinery he was operating. Both men are employed in the Pennsylvania shops and each will be off duty several days as a result of the accident.

WOUNDED ROBBER FIGHTS OFFICERS

After Shot He Gives Hard Battle as He Reaches the Hospital.

After receiving a serious gunshot wound in the leg, just below the hip, by a shot from Officer Gus Buuck's revolver, shortly before 1 o'clock Thursday morning, Joseph Tarasewicz, a Pole, gave the patrol wagon squad a desperate battle at the entrance to St. Joseph hospital and uncommon force had to be employed to get him subdued and within the institution for surgical attention. As the wagon stopped at the hospital and the stretcher was taken out, the Pole struggled to his feet and standing on his one good leg gave the squad of every officer for a few moments, but was finally brought into submission and carried to the operating room, where Police Surgeon J. Frank Dinnen attended him. He is under constant guard of an officer in his room at the hospital, policemen being detailed for short shifts to see that he does not escape. Tarasewicz was not arrested without offering battle, when he was discovered on the roof of an outbuilding on the premises of Gottlieb Niemann, 236 Brackenridge street, a half hour after midnight. He was ordered to come down from his perch behind the chimney and answered by hurling about a dozen bricks he seized from the smokestack at Patrol Drive Buuck. One brick hit the officer in the back and another landed on his head inflicting a scalp wound. The fusillade of bricks became so hot that Officer Buuck drew his gun and fired twice, one shot passing through the Pole's right leg near the hip. The prisoner was first seen on the roof of the Niemann building by C. J. Welker, who resides next door east, and he notified the police. A charge of assault and battery with intent to kill has been placed against Tarasewicz and his case continued until June 17 to permit him to recover sufficiently to be brought into court. His bond is fixed at $2,000.

One More Good Crook Stopped. Harry Ferguson, a veteran pickpocket, whose mug ornaments all well-appointed criminal galleries in the country and whose reputation is international, was booked on a loitering charge in the city court Thursday morning and was continued until June 19, under $1,000 bond. He was arrested Wednesday night by Detective Sergeant Martin A. Rundell and Detective Roach, of Indianapolis, near the centennial pageant grounds. He was completely identified not only by the officers, but by his portrait and record in Detective Sergeant Joseph P. Brennan's gallery at the local identification room, and finally admitted himself. Ferguson was the third seasoned pickpocket to be stopped by the detectives within two days.

Other Loiterers In. Sam Spelling, Nathan Gelman and Sam Kurland, three young fellows, who claimed to be trying to get a concession at the exposition grounds—for instantaneous photography, after having been denied license for pulling their work on the streets, were picked up by Detective Sergeant Rundell and Detective Shaffer, of Cincinnati. They were turned loose. Charles Lewis, who claimed to hail from Chicago and could give no good account of himself, was arrested by Officer Hill and was fined $10 and costs. Henry Clayton, a loiterer, was allowed to go.

Harry Howard, continued from Wednesday morning, was put over for hearing until June 15 and bond was fixed at $300. The police want to investigate him.

Other City Court Cases. Charles Swain and Art Williams, drunks, were fined $5 and costs each, and Warren Barney, another drunk, was tagged for $1 and costs. Henry Muster, also drunk, was allowed to go, as was Walter Thomas, a colored soue.

Clarence Largo, 215 West Main street, was having wordy trouble with a woman in front of the Hof Brau, Calhoun and Columbia streets, about midnight, and a great crowd gathered. Officer Edman took Largo in custody and George Gordon protested, and both were uted to the station. Largo was fined 5 and costs on disorderly charges, but Gordon was allowed to go. George Russell was tried for petit larceny for the theft of $1.25 from a pocketbook in the kitchen of Mrs. Evelyn Oestermeier's home, 338 Montgomery street. Circumstantial evidence was strongly against him. He was arrested by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who found on him a letter from his wife in Detroit, begging him to come home or their little child would die. Judge Kerr took the case under advisement until Friday.

ANNUAL FLOWER FESTIVAL

Arrangements have been completed for the annual flower festival of the Fort Wayne Normal school to be given Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at Lakeside park. A queen will be chosen who will be crowned by Miss Gladys Becker, the queen of last year. A program of singing and dancing will be rendered.

The annual festival is always attended by a large crowd each year and it is anticipated that this year's attendance will be larger than ever before, by reason of so many visitors in the city.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms of disease are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name, and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

neglected. I would advise balmwort tablets, a compound well suited to such cases. Obtain in sealed tubes with directions for home use.

C. O. C. asks: "I am constipated, tongue coated, have headache, dizzy spells and indigestion sometimes. Please advise?"

Answer: I advise that you begin using three grain sulphur tablets (not sulphur). These tablets are laxative, act on the liver, kidneys and bowels and tend to keep the blood pure by arousing the eliminative functions. Relief should follow quickly.

"Secretary" writes: "I have pains in my spine and frequent headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a 'has been' when it comes to performing accustomed work and duties. Please advise."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions and a powerful, harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find that great cadomene tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

Mrs. C. W. B. asks: "I suffer greatly owing to too much fat. Can you advise me of a good reduction remedy?"

Answer: Any well stocked pharmacy can supply you with 5 grain arbolone tablets, packed in sealed tubes with full directions for use. These tablets have proven wonderfully effective in reducing abnormal fat.

Miss "Constance" asks: "I am very thin and bloodless and want to increase my weight about 20 pounds. Please tell me what method to pursue?"

Answer: A regular and persistent use of three grain hypo-nutrine tablets will usually produce an increase of weight by aiding nutrition and building up the flesh tissues. Scores of patients have reported increases of from 10 to 40 pounds from the use of these tablets. Full directions come with each sealed package.

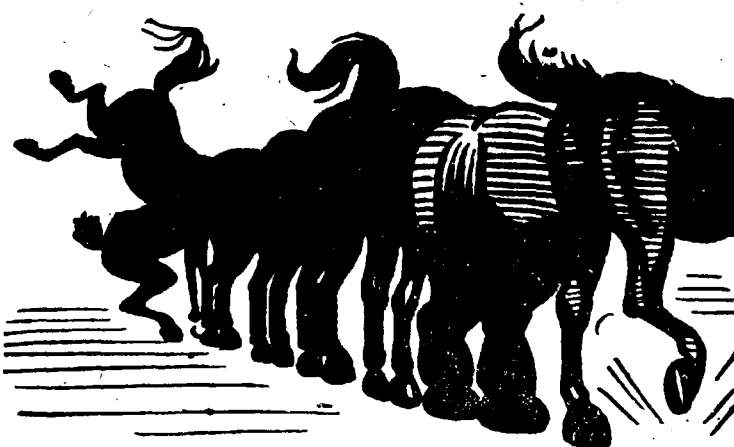

Mrs. X. asks: "My scalp itches terribly, is feverish and a great amount of oily dandruff is present. What is good for this?"

Answer: First shampoo the hair and then apply plain yellow mineral about once a week as per directions. This relieves the itching, overcomes the dandruff and makes the hair beautifully glossy and vigorous. Obtain in 4 oz. jars of druggists.

Mrs. "Annie R." writes: "My husband is surely afflicted with some kidney disease. He has become weak and suffers with headache and pains in his back and groin. Pains are like rheumatism. His ankles swell and his feet seem to tire all the time. Some days he has chills and no appetite. Please prescribe."

Answer: The symptoms indicate degeneration of kidneys and should not be

MANY ADOPT DRESS REFORM.

Church of God Holds Old Custom Too Conspicuous.

Anderson, Ind., June 8.—Contending that the custom of the men not wearing neckties and the women dressing only in black or gray gowns of the plainest styles, was making them too conspicuous, members of the Church of God, which is holding its annual general assembly here, are bringing about a change in wearing apparel. Many of the two thousand men at the assembly are wearing neckties and the women are dressed in the latest creations and colors.

Those favoring the reform, declare the old custom was against their religious doctrine, in that it attracted too much attention to the members when they appeared in public.

A Page of Interest for Milady

PESSIMISTS

BY EDNA EGAN.

THE woman who finds fault continually is a nuisance and a bore. She not only makes herself unhappy, because she is never satisfied with anything, but what is even worse, she makes every one who comes in contact with her feel the sting of her disagreeable disposition. Her outlook of life is soured. Instead of keeping her opinions to herself, she feels she must spread her venom, and proceeds to do so by tainting the viewpoint of those who must listen to her continual complaints.

For instance, if she is the wife of a business man whose work demands his presence late and early and makes living in the city a matter of necessity, she complains continually about the noise of the streets and the impure air, and begs him to take a little house in the country for the sake of her health. His convenience is as nothing compared to her wishes. If he refuses his life is made unbearable by the constant reference to the hardships she is enduring for his sake. Their apartment, a very nice one, indeed, is looked upon as a sort of prison, which is depriving her of every chance of health and happiness. Instead of adjusting herself to conditions, she expects conditions to adjust themselves to her, and when he finds she is expecting an impossibility she falls back upon complaints.

Fault-finding is, after all, only a matter of habit, but it is a habit which assumes tremendous proportions before one knows it if it is allowed to grow. Quickly the desire to criticize everything and every one takes a hold upon a person until it becomes part of the nature.

Take, for instance, a woman encountered recently at a summer resort. At first she seemed harmless enough, though one gathered after a few moments of introduction that this particular patron of the hotel didn't think much of the food or service rendered. You accepted these criticisms, however, for what they were worth, knowing that there were always some things in a summer hotel that were not desirable. After a week's stay you discover that the faults existed chiefly in the woman's mind. She was a born "fault finder." The coffee was "atrocious," according to her way of thinking, though every one else drank it without a murmur. Not she, however! Her own coffee, her own percolator were placed on her table so that she could make her own brew and know what she was making.

"Do let me give you a good cup of coffee," she would say loudly to a passing friend, thereby making the other guests wonder if, after all, the hotel's brand was undrinkable. Most of the guests, however, laughed secretly at her fussiness and put her down as a habitual complainer.

"Wasn't that a dreadful dinner?" she asked one evening, after a repast which consisted of soup, well cooked chicken, two vegetables, salad and delicious ice cream. "I couldn't find a thing to eat. I am positively starving."

"What was the matter with it?" demanded an exasperated friend. "I thought it was particularly good."

"Oh, I hate chicken cooked in that way. The vegetables were starchy, and my physician says I can't eat a bit of starchy food. I can't eat fresh fruit salad, and I hate chocolate ice cream."

Nothing, you see, the matter with the food, it simply didn't suit her taste. And so it was from one day to another. The laundry was wretchedly done, her waitress slow. Always something to find fault with, nothing to admire.

MENUS FOR CHILDREN

Great Care Must be Used In the Selection.

BY LUCILLE DAUDET.

MANY mothers have a good deal of difficulty in selecting the right kind of food for the children's menus. The little ones so often grow tired of the same kind of nourishment, and it is rather hard to keep a certain monotony away from the children's table. Nourishing dishes are essential and rich foods are forbidden, so that the choice is limited at best.

It is something in the nature of a calamity when the little ones tire of a dish which is particularly nutritious. Children of three or four often show a great disinclination to eat eggs. They are usually very fond of eggs for the first two years of existence, taking a spoonful of boiled egg or a codded egg with the greatest delight. Then a period of the most intense dislike for eggs, during which they cannot be coaxed, bribed or forced to eat one.

As eggs, along with milk, are the two most nutritious factors on the children's menu, it is almost impossible to do without them. And if the mother is clever in disguising the eggs in different forms, the kiddies will not have to do without them. It is easy to mix an egg into any number of dishes where the child will never suspect he is eating the hated food. It is only when it is served in the old recognizable shape that he will absolutely refuse it.

Eggs may be put in many nursery desserts. One way in which they may be served, is as follows: One egg should be beaten up very light until the white is frothy, then orange juice should be added with a little sugar. This can be drunk from a glass for breakfast or served as a dessert in a bowl, to be eaten with crackers.

Children are usually very fond of custard, which is of course, for the most part eggs. Any desserts which contain plenty of eggs and are not too rich are to be encouraged at the nursery table, especially while the child has an aversion against eggs in general. As they are really such a very important part of the infant's diet, it is necessary that they be taken in one form or another, and if the child will not eat them in the usual undisguised way, then the mother must give them in desserts.

Thinking about it made Elsie more nervous than ever, so she decided to discover the doctor, and going to the phone, she called up one of the men and informed him that she would be glad to take dinner with him that night. Which Man? Why, the one it were kindest to call. But whether that kindness was based on what she owed herself or on what she owed the Other (and unknown) Girl, only a woman can guess.

Elsie called up the man she had decided to marry. There were four peo-

WHEN A GIRL LOVES

Then Indeed Come the Most Trying Days of Decision and Indecision.

BY ANNETTE ANGERT.

NEVER willingly did Elsie hurt any living creature. In fact, she went out of her way to offer kindness and courtesy to all with whom she came in contact. She helped old ladies across crowded streets and she introduced young ladies to the charming men they might not otherwise have met in the crowded city.

Since Elsie was not particularly wise, her kindness was not always especially judicious. But she tried very hard not to make the stupid blunder of giving a book to the girl who wanted silk stockings for Christmas or the equally stupid one of introducing a frivolous little dancing girl to an equally frivolous dancing man when the girl knew plenty of those already.

She tried also not to overwhelm folks with reasons for gratitude nor to give them a feeling of boredom at the numerous times they had to say "thank you" to her. She devoted her not remarkable brain to an effort to make the world a pleasanter place because she happened to be in it.

But suddenly she fell in love. The man (so it seemed to her) was altogether fine and splendid and magnificent. He had come to the city from a nearby town and by dint of very hard work had made a tremendous success. No one knew about his past, but every one admired his present and hoped for his future. And all the concentrated kindness and sweetness of Elsie's nature turned into worhipful love for her splendid Paul.

When Elsie's love affair had begun to seem a life affair she discovered that back in the village where he came from there was Another Girl. The Other Girl loved Paul, too.

Elsie, who had always been kind, found that she could not now step aside and resign Paul to the Other Girl.

Somehow or other she worried herself into a state of nervous breakdown and was ordered four weeks of rest cure. All the people to whom she had been kind now showered kindness upon the semi-invalid. But most supremely considerate and supremely generous was a man whose friendship—and no more—she had always taken for granted.

YOUR WAIST

I WAS measured for a new corset today," said the "mild-mannered" woman, "and the woman who waited on me told me that all the new corsets were being taken in at the waist and that there's a strong tendency to make waists smaller. She said she wouldn't be a bit surprised if we'd be getting back to the old hour-glass form, now that we're wearing the wide skirts and tight basques and dinky little hats. Ever so often, she said, we had to go back to old styles and the time was just about ripe for the tiny waists to come around again."

"I'm sorry to hear that," declared the woman doctor, "though it will mean more business for me."

"Well—a small waist does look awfully neat," speculated the mild-mannered woman. "Mine used to be twenty-three inches, and my mother's was only eighteen when she was a girl, and she said her father used to brag that when he married grandmother he could span her waist with his two hands. Of course that's most too small—it makes a woman look like she might break in two. But I do think they've been overdoing the large waist effect. Why, some of the coats and dresses you see in the shops have waists that actually look bigger than any other part of the body."

"Just the same, I'd rather see a big waistline than a small one," insisted the doctor. "When women had small waists it kept the doctors busy. Of course it meant money for the doctors, but every physician I know would rather make less money and have healthier and happier people in the world. If women adopt the small waist styles again, it's going to mean a lot of misery for them, to say nothing of the effect on the unborn generation. Going still further, it's going to put unhappiness into a lot of homes, because no family can be a happy family when the women of the house are eternally ailing—which they must be if they take to squeezing in their waists."

LOOKING ON THE CHEERFUL SIDE WILL RELIEVE THE TENSE OF SEVERE LINES

MILADY'S BEAUTY

FEW women drink enough water to clear their skins. A new disciple of perennial youth preaches the doctrine of distilled water, in generous quantities, to dissolve the lime that means old age and its infirmities. Plain water may not be just as good, but it is a fairly good substitute and combined with fresh air there is a good chance of living a reasonably long life of usefulness.

DO not think because you cannot afford to visit a manicure you are to be excused for ill-kept hands. Five minutes a day given to the care of the nails will keep them in good condition. This should be done after the hands have been softened with washing. Once a week give them a thorough manicuring yourself. If you do not know how, pay a visit to a good professional and closely watch her methods.

WHEN applying a skin food see to it that the manipulations of the finger ends continue long enough to force a large quantity of the emollient into the skin. Only the finest, purest ingredients should be used. Cosmetics made entirely of vegetable oils cannot be preserved for any great length of time. Those creams that last forever are not made of almond oil, but are compounded of white vaseline, benzoated nut-tallow or lard.

LIGHT hair is apt to grow darker with age and anything that would be drying as to be injurious. There is a shampoo mixture, however, that will do no harm and may aid you. It is made of raw egg, a teaspoonful of powdered borax, half a teaspoonful of violet ammonia and a quarter of a teaspoonful of carbonate of potash. Beat well together and then stir into a quart of warm water. Wet the scalp and hair thoroughly, massaging at the same time. Use no soap.

BEAUTY specialists claim that the pink and white complexion is due to open pores; that if the skin is kept perfectly free from dust or dirt, nothing will naturally muddy complexion like exercise, which causes the perspiration to appear in little beads on the face. Then the face should be thoroughly washed with warm water and castile soap, rinsed in cold water and the face slightly powdered with rice powder. There is no need to apply oils to the face if one perspires, for the skin is naturally oily. When the skin is harsh and dry and perspiration scant, eat plenty of salad dressed with olive oil; do not use butter sparingly and if you can take an emulsion of cod-liver oil and wine. This will benefit the health—the clear complexion will follow.

EVEN though cold weather is here, keep the windows open. Impure air and darkened rooms are often the cause of poor health. One feels much better in a clear atmosphere with the sun shining brightly. Keep the window in the sleeping apartment open enough to give sufficient fresh air. Even though the room is unheated and cold, the window should be open just the same. A sleeper will soon breathe up all the fresh air and if there is not a constant supply of oxygen he simply breathes over and over again the poison thrown off by the lungs. Every morning the bedclothes should have a thorough airing in the sun. Plenty of covering is necessary, but it should be light in weight. There is no warmth in heavy home-made comfortables, especially after they have been washed once or twice.

ASOUTHERN woman with a complexion the envy of hundreds gives the secret to all who care to use the simple, harmless remedy. She uses orange juice for whitening and smoothing the complexion and she eats oranges for their medicinal properties. Orange juice is much milder than lemon juice and contains a gentle acid, which is wonderfully effective in bleaching the skin. The juice contains a certain percentage of oil, which heals a roughened face. After the warm bath in the evening, apply the orange juice as liberally as you desire, let it dry on the face, neck and arms, and in the morning wash it off with warm soap suds. The face and hands will be wonderfully smooth and noticeably clearer.

SILVER hair is always a becoming and enviable possession. In old age it gives an air of softness and sweetness to the face, while in conjunction with a young skin and fresh complexion nothing can be more charming. The silver tone of the hair throws up skin and eyes to perfection, besides adding an air of distinction to an otherwise every-day type of face. Women who up to now, have been foolish enough to hide their beautiful silver tresses under becoming and hardened hair dyes, are this season allowing it to be seen in all its natural beauty. This state of affairs being largely due to the fact that the tones of mulberry, claret and purple now so much look their best when worn by a woman possessed of snowy hair. White hair is now dressed high on the head, a la Pompadour, and it is becomingly waved and finished by clusters of the soft little curls of the empire period.

WHAT woman does not wish for long, curling eyelashes? They are one of the details that make a woman lovely. Attractive, and it does seem as though they could be cultivated. Vaseline—pure, white vaseline—rubbed on with a small brush every night, is a splendid tonic for these much-desired beauties. Keep the eye tightly closed, that the grease may reach the roots of the stubborn lashes, although if the vaseline is fresh and of good quality it cannot hurt the eye. In fact, one woman who has found the remedy successful says that, on the contrary, the eyes become brilliant under treatment, while the longer lashes make a marked improvement in the appearance.

ANYTHING which soothes the nerves will, as a rule, induce sleep. A light supper taken just before going to bed is often helpful. It is well to have a glass of milk standing by the bed. If wakefulness comes this should be sipped slowly. Lack of sufficient ventilation in a room often produces sleeplessness. Though the air should never blow directly on a bed, it is impossible to have too much. A bed should never be placed facing the light, for this hurts the eyes and affects the nerves. One of the best remedies for a nervous woman is to take a hot bath just before going to bed. The body should be immersed for fifteen minutes in water that is hot without being exhausting. An alcohol sponge is often found soothing by those sleepless on account of the heat. A tablespoonful of alcohol to a cup of cool water is the proper proportion for such a sponge.

ODDS ENDS

IT is remarkable what artistic talent has been awakened by the use of the hand-painted furniture. Girls rich and poor, are painting their own pieces of furniture, and varnishing the surface to make the pictures lasting. This new furniture is very pretty; landscapes, flowers, birds, butterflies are painted on a white or black background and varnished, and sometimes small medallions of highly finished work are set on a plain ground. One charming room had a white and gray wall, and the mouldings and furniture were painted lavender.

TO fringe with the least possible trouble, clip the edge of the crash or linen up from the bottom a distance of six or eight inches. Each clip should be the depth of the fringe you intend to make. The drawing out of these shorter threads will often prove less laborious and not so injurious to the material. It is well to know, also, that the drawing of linen threads is made easier if the dressing has first been removed. Brush a heavy lather made from good white soap along the space from which you wish to draw the threads. Let this dry in and it will disturb the original dressing so that the threads may be more readily drawn out.

WHITE silk stockings have a most annoying habit of acquiring a yellowish tinge after two or three washings, and this is usually due to their being washed out in a basin and hung up to dry without bleaching. Soak the stockings half an hour in cold water into which a pinch of borax has been dropped, then wash them in warm, but not hot, water made sudsy with some pure white soap. Rinse in three waters—this is very important, for the least bit of soap remaining will yellow the silk—and blue the last rinsing water just a trifle. Then hang the stockings in the sun and wind to bleach and dry.

Never touch them with a hot iron, but when thoroughly dry smooth out and roll up. Never put white silk stockings to soak with black or colored silk stockings, for the dye is very apt to run out and streak the white hose badly. White cotton stockings, now considered better taste with sport shoes than silk hose, may be washed in the same manner, but the cotton stockings look best if pressed with a hot iron so that the fuzzy nap in the weave is laid perfectly flat.

IT is easy to make a stocking box to fit a bureau or chiffonier drawer. Cut up a long paste-board box such as coats and which divide the long narrow box into compartments should be placed at intervals of about five or six inches apart, according to the length of the box. Cover all the pieces of paste-board with cretonne or cover the sides of the box on the outside with cretonne and the inside with pussy willow silk to match. Your silk stockings should be kept in this box, each one separate in one of these compartments. This makes it easier to elect just the right pair when in a hurry for the various occasions.

VARIOUS versions of the Norfolk coat suit are being adopted for the two-fold purpose of a skating suit and shopping costume. This type of suit is quite the happiest choice one can make from among the two-piece models. It has the trimness of the tailored suit in its making, modified by the comfortable modeling of a sports costume. English tweeds and mixtures present their claims for the fashioning of the Norfolk suit. These, of course, lack the richness of velours, but they possess an element of smartness that is worthy of consideration. Leather jackets have been introduced to wear with cloth skirts, and of exactly the same shade. The shape of these leather coats is rather of the medieval warrior type, but they are very soft and pliable, and they, like everything else, are lavishly trimmed with fur.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, June 8.—Reports of some improvement in demand at Liverpool helped to rally wheat here today and so did bullish predictions regarding the government crop report. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4¢ off to 1/4¢ up, with July at $1.04 1/2 to $1.05 and September at $1.06 1/2 to $1.07, were followed by a material advance all around.
The close was firm, 1/4¢ to 3/4¢ net higher, with July at $1.05 1/2 to $1.06 1/2 and September at $1.06 1/2 to $1.07.
Unwelcome rains had a slight effect on the corn market. After opening 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ higher, prices scored further gains. The close was firm at a rise of 3/4¢ to 1 1/2¢.
Oats hardened in value with other cereals. Advances, however, were checked by assertions that there was no effect on the market. Offerings were light on the provisions. Offerings were light on the provisions.

day's early dealings. Reading opened with a block of 6,500 shares at 106 1/2 to 106, soon advancing to 106 1/2, an extreme overnight gain of 1 1/2. Chesapeake and Ohio was taken in thousand share lots up to 65 1/2, an advance of 1 1/2, and Lehigh Valley changed hands in round amount at fractional gain. Shipping shares were next in favor, United Fruit advancing 2 1/2 to the new record of 169. Later New York Central, Northern Pacific, St. Paul and United States Steel were added to the list of strong issues. Specialties were relatively backward.

Leading stocks receded to almost two points and other issues suggested profit-taking. Meanwhile specialties of mixed descriptions, including Motors, Mexicans, Tobaccos, Minn Steel and similar industries had risen one to five points. United Fruit was especially feverish, surrendering most of its early gain, but speedily mounting to a new record. At midday general regularity prevailed. Bonds were firm despite a moderate concession in Anglo-French 5s.

ONLY SCHOOL OF KIND IN THE WORLD DEVELOPS EXPERTS TO FIGHT PLAGUE.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., June 8.—There has just opened here a school which is the only one of its kind in the world! Only 20 pupils listen to some half dozen instructors, yet the single aim of the school is to save the lives of 100,000 persons in this country every year—the victims of tuberculosis.

The school is the Trudeau School of Tuberculosis, founded in memory of and to carry on the work of the late Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, the world renowned physician, who introduced the open air cure for consumption into this country nearly half a century ago.

Years of campaigning roused the public to the need of fighting tuberculosis. Now, 20 at a time, the Trudeau school will turn out men trained to lead the crusades against consumption. They will be sent to every corner of this country. They will organize town, city and state-wide community fights.

MANY INTERESTED IN KNIGHT MOTOR

The story of the invention and development of the Knight sleeve valve motor is a romance of business.

According to Fred Gaskins, who has arranged for a series of lectures on the Knight sleeve valve motor to be given as a feature of the Centennial celebration, J. H. Knight, the inventor, will draw a parallel between the Knight motor and the discovery of the famous cobalt silver mine, which a few years ago held the attention of the world's financiers.

Mr. Cooper, according to Mr. Gaskins, is one of the country's best informed men on the subject of the Knight sleeve valve motor.

"Cobalt," says Mr. Gaskins, "seems a strange name for a silver. Many have wondered how the name happened to have been chosen, but few have heard the story."

"As a matter of fact, cobalt is the name of a mineral coloring material used in making paints and dyes. Its discovery in northern Ontario was claimed a great find, for cobalt has a high commercial value. But when the work was begun to mine for cobalt, silver was discovered in such paying quantities that the cobalt itself was far overshadowed. The miners turned their whole attention to the silver and cobalt was relegated to the scrap heap."

"Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the sleeve valve automobile motor, sought to produce an engine that would overcome the noisy hammering of the poppet valves. He succeeded, but he built better than he knew."

"The inventor of the Knight motor tried for years to interest American manufacturers, but was unsuccessful. At last he was able to secure the attention of the Daimler company, manufacturers of one of England's most famous cars."

"Mr. Knight told the Daimler company he had a quiet running motor—a motor that would appeal to connoisseurs. The Daimler company tested the Knight motor for this quality and found that it was quiet running; that it became more quiet with continual use."

"But the Daimler engineers found in this motor other good qualities—qualities that its inventor had overlooked; qualities that to experienced automobile men were of even greater importance than quietness of operation."

"Daimler engineers discovered that the Knight sleeve valve motor was more powerful than any poppet valve of equal gas capacity; that it was more flexible; that in proportion to the power developed it was more economical with gasoline."

"Nowadays automobile men who know the Knight motor tell you about these qualities first, for they are the most important advantages it offers. Quietness of operation is an advantage also, but to automobile men this is chiefly because quietness of operation is a true indication of absence of wear."

In spite of the bad weather, Mr. Cooper has attracted large crowds at the exposition grounds with his interesting lectures, and those interested in automobile mechanism will be deeply interested in the new light he will shed on motor problems.

SPENCERVILLE NEWS

Spencerville, Ind., June 8.—On Saturday evening a number of girls surprised Miss Cleo Bowser to remind her of her eleventh birthday anniversary. Those present were the Misses Minnie Wellmott, Ada Bowser, Nellie Scott, Marjorie Hollabaugh, Leatha Baker and Vivian Quasberry.

The quarterly meeting of the M. E. church will be held here next Sunday evening. The new district superintendent, Rev. W. W. Martin, of Fort Wayne, will preach and administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. A special song service by the young people and the choir will be given commencing at 7:30. The quarterly business conference will convene on Monday at 10 o'clock.

The C. C. club will be entertained on Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Ethel Metcalf, south of town.

The "True Blue" class of young ladies met and organized with Miss Daisy Carahan as teacher; Miss Mary Tyndall, president; Lavern Rhodes, secretary and treasurer. Social committee—Alec Rhodes, Julia Baker and Allison Allen. Welcome committee—May Barton and Nellie Kelley.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Fredrick, of Dutch Ridge, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Fredrick and family.

Frank Smith and daughters, Thursa and Leona, and Mrs. Laisley, of Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Vern Well-mott and family were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank House and family.

Miss LeAnna Wearley, who has been visiting at Akron, O., the past week, returned home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Keesler and family, of near Leo, visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keesler, and family Sunday.

Miss Pearl Kimes, of Butler, spent Sunday with her grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Kirt.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt Akey and children were Sunday guests of the former's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Akey, of Leo.

5,000 CHILDREN GET TREAT.

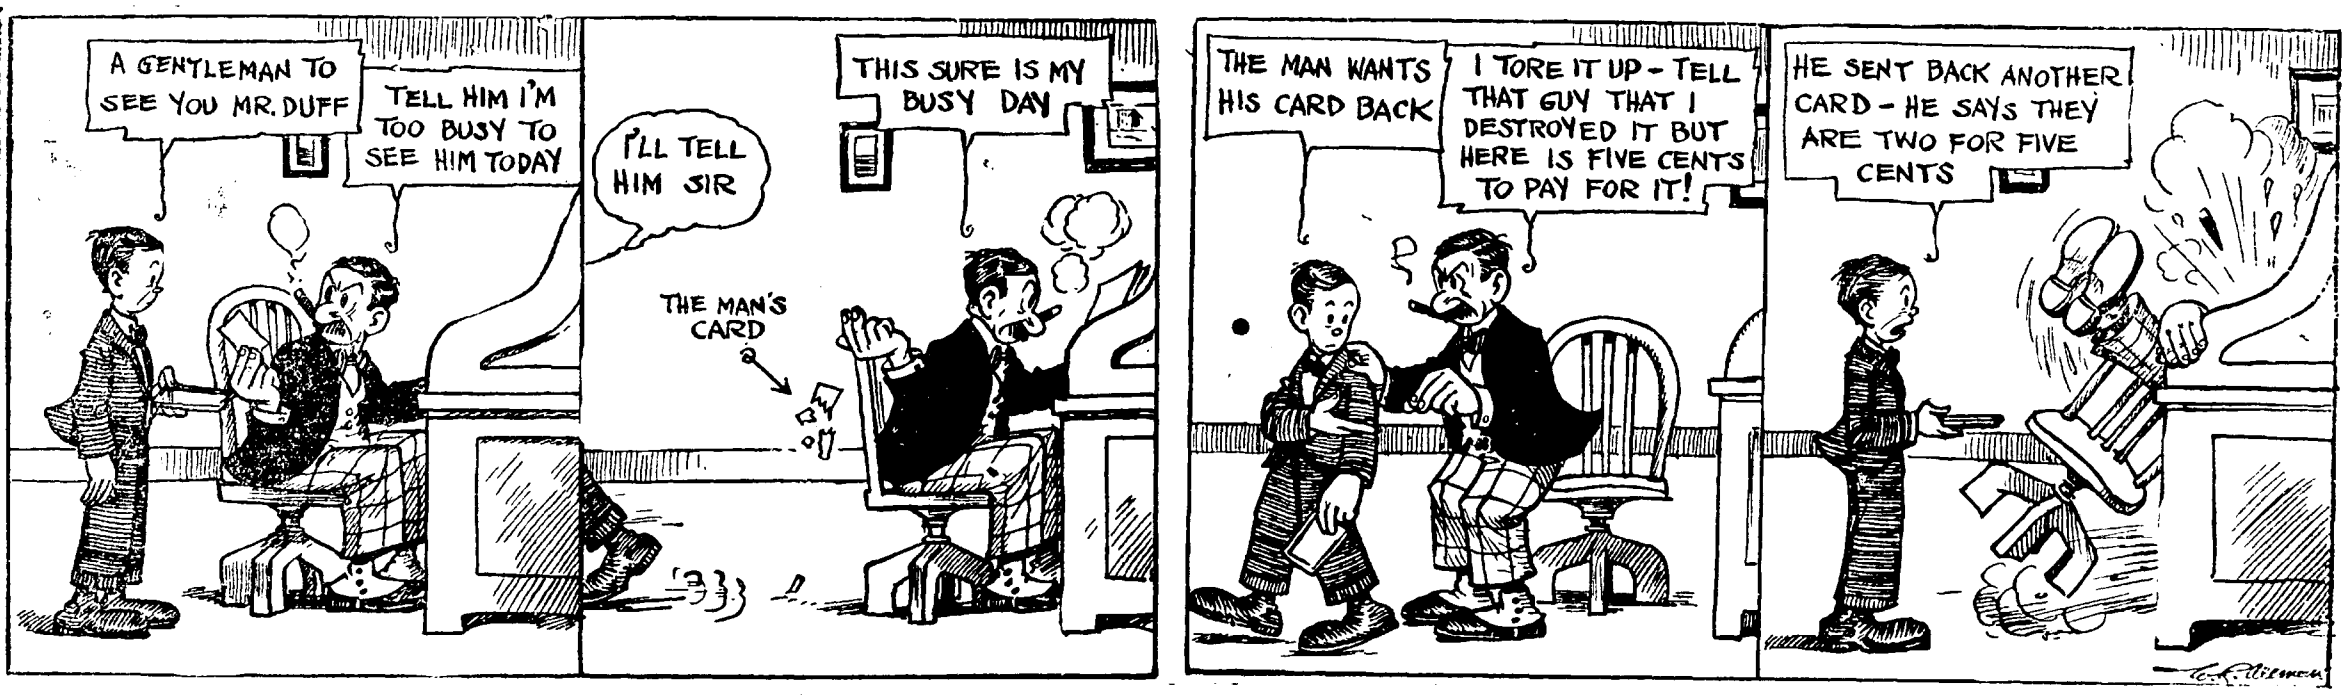

Auto Trip and Entertainment for Orphans and Destitute.

New York, June 8.—Five thousand orphan and destitute children of this city were invited to participate in the annual automobile ride into the country today as guests of the Orphans' Automobile Day association. The use of 300 automobiles and motor trucks was given to take the children to a grove on the shore of Long Island sound, where they were entertained with games, a theatrical performance and luncheon. Many of the children were cripples. They came from thirty institutions, as well as from the homes of the poor.

ROOSEVELT PUTS CHICAGO TRIP UP TO REPUBLICANS

WILL GO TO CHICAGO IF REPUBLICANS WANT HIM TO ADDRESS THEM

Roosevelt Makes Reply to Telegram of Maryland Senator Appealing to Him to Hurry to Convention City.

ASSAILS WILSON'S COURSE IN BITTER FASHION

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 8.—Col. Roosevelt will come to Chicago if "the republican convention desires me to address it."

This he announced today in a reply made to the invitation he received last night from Senator Wm. B. Jackson, of Maryland, asking him to come to Chicago.

The colonel declared in his answer that he hoped both the republicans and progressives would nominate a man who, if elected, would "place this nation where it belongs by making it true to itself and therefore true to all mankind."

Wilson is denounced.

President Wilson, he said, "had rendered to this people the most evil service that can be rendered to a great democracy."

Col. Roosevelt declared that the "differences that have divided not merely republicans and progressives, but good Americans of all shades of political belief * * * sink into nothing when compared with the issues now demanding decision. * * * the issues of unfair Americanism and national preparedness."

Col. Roosevelt further declared that "in the face of the awful world catastrophe, this nation has stood supine and helpless and that 'no excuse now' can be by those responsible for this inaction is entitled to serious consideration. It is for you and your associates to show the people that they have a worthy alternative to which to turn."

"Can we not," he asked, "forgetting past differences, now join for the safety and honor of our country, to enforce the policy of genuine Americanism and genuine preparedness?"

Colonel Roosevelt charged that "professional German-Americans" were seeking to terrorize the republican convention, and that they wished to elect as president a "vicerey of a foreign government."

Little Excitement Today as Progressive Delegates Assemble.

CHICAGO, Auditorium Hall, June 8.—(2:07 p. m.)—Some of the progressive leaders, including Chairman Murdock, of the national committee, were seriously considering immediate nomination today of Col. Roosevelt.

Murdock was quoted as saying it might be "too late" tomorrow.

By a vote of 25 to 11, Raymond Robinson today was chosen over Hiram Johnson by the permanent organization committee.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES PRESS WAGE ISSUE

New York, June 8.—Representatives of employees of the railroads of the United States today resumed their conference with the railroad managers, determined to press their questions as to where the roads stand on the wage scale, the objective point of the meetings here.

The managers yesterday declined to reply to the men's queries. Elsha Lee, representing the road, explaining that they were such that they could not be answered offhand. He said satisfactory replies would be given today. The union men declare today that inasmuch as they have responded frankly to questions put by the managers as to the employees' position in the wage scale question the managers would be considered guilty of bad faith unless they replied with equal readiness to the men's queries.

U. S. TROOPS IN CHINA ORDERED IN READINESS TO PROCEED TO PEKIN

London, June 8.—(12:32 p. m.)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Tien Tsin, China, says that the United States troops at that place have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Peking.

The dispatch also says French authorities have dispatched a strong force of native troops from the French protectorate at Annam to Peking. A delegation of officers of the body guard of the new president Li Yuan Hung, has assured him of the fealty of the guard.

NAMED COLLECTOR FOR ILLUMINATION

S. W. Greenland, of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, has been appointed collector for the fund for the illumination of the statue of Liberty in New York harbor. The proposed plan is to raise $100,000 which will be used to install a permanent electrical illumination of the statue and every citizen of the United States will be given an opportunity to subscribe something toward this fund.

Large contributions are not sought, but there must be many small ones to attain the purpose. A penny, a dime, a dollar will attest the donor's devotion to American ideals.

Men have been asked in all the cities of the country to get subscriptions for this fund. Thus far $1,112.32 has been secured.

FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE, PROHIBITION BARRED

Republican Committee Puts Equal Suffrage Plank in Platform Report to Convention.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 8.—The republican committee on resolutions, by a vote of 26 to 21, decided to incorporate in the platform a plank endorsing, in principle, woman suffrage.

It has also adopted a plank affirming that the United States should maintain perfect neutrality.

The provision adopted by the subcommittee, in addition to its censure of the democratic administration of affairs in Mexico, calls for the protection of American lives and property, not on the Mexican border alone, but throughout Mexico.

The platform especially calls for legislation for the protection against child labor and just as specifically declares for general compensation to workmen engaged in the federal service.

There is a plank devoted to merchant marine in general terms and another calling for the conservation of American resources, but the latter is modified so as to require that such conservation shall not be administered as to interfere with the utilization of the resources by the people of the country.

The Suffrage Plank.

Immediately after the committee reconvened Senator Borah, of Idaho, introduced the following plank in favor of woman suffrage:

"The republicans, reaffirming its faith in government of the people by the people and for the people, favors the extension of suffrage to women as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of this country."

The plank was discussed and debated for nearly an hour and a half, when a vote was taken and the plank adopted, 26 to 21.

The advocates of suffrage were widely enthusiastic over the endorsement of their measure. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the national association for woman suffrage, declared the insertion of the plank in the republican platform which a subcommittee had rejected before the main body upheld it.

Nothing Doing on Prohibition.

After deciding on the suffrage plank, the committee took up the discussion of prohibition. After a brief discussion the committee by an informal vote, decided against the inclusion of a prohibition plank in the platform.

An attempt to take up the discussion of a plank favoring the establishment of an embargo on munitions of war was ruled out of order. Notice was given that the subject would be raised again.

May Reconsider Suffrage.

A call for absentees an hour after the subcommittee had acted on the suffrage question was interpreted as indicating a possible reconsideration of the suffrage plank which a subcommittee had rejected before the main body upheld it.

The Mexican question came up for much discussion and it was thought the committee would decide on a plank broader than the Fall provision, which proposed protection to American citizens along both sides of the border.

Some of the committee members were said to be urging that every American citizen be guaranteed protection throughout

FLORAL AUTO PARADE WITH TAFT IN LINE

Many Very Gorgeously Decorated Cars in Brilliant Spectacle--Other Centennial Events of the Day.

The big floral automobile parade and the presence of former President William Howard Taft, who is Fort Wayne's guest for the day, were the outstanding features of Fort Wayne's celebration of Indiana's one hundredth anniversary as a state, Thursday.

Thousands of visitors were here—not as many perhaps as there would have been had warm weather prevailed—but throughout the entire day the streets were thronged and especially along the route of the parade.

More than one hundred gorgeously and elaborately decorated automobiles took part in the big parade that had been arranged by the women. The route of the parade touched as near as possible every section of the city, proceeding south on Calhoun street from Harrison street to the pageant grounds. The count by spectators showed 134 machines in line.

Former President Taft occupied the second car and was cheered along the entire route, during much of the time he stood bowing, his acknowledgement from right to left.

Rain intervened at the close of the automobile parade and just before Mr. Taft was scheduled to speak at the pageant grounds. On this account Mr. Taft was compelled to cancel the delivery of his address.

Governor Samuel M. Ralston did not come, although the local committee had every reason to believe that he would be here. Although he sent no word he was not coming, it was learned late Thursday afternoon that he was in Philadelphia as the principal speaker at the commencement exercises at Swarthmore college. Mrs. Ralston sent a telegram early Thursday morning that because of illness she could not come.

The judges of the cars in the parade were Mrs. Carver Wood, Mrs. Gaston Balke, Mrs. Edward Gimmartin, Mrs.

BULLETIN.

Chicago, June 8.—Late this afternoon in the progressive national convention a conference committee to confer with the republican convention was proposed by James R. Garfield.

"The one thing you ought to send to the republican convention," said Victor Murdock, "is the nomination of Roosevelt." The delegates went wild. Murdock got the crowd again when he said if the progressives want Teddy they "must nominate him" before this day is through.

OPERATE UNTIL 2 A. M.

General Manager Sam W. Greenland, of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, has announced that during the great Fort Wayne Centennial city cars will run on regular schedule until 12 o'clock and that between 12 o'clock midnight and 2 o'clock a m. 60-minute service will be maintained. The last car will leave the transfer corner on all lines at 2 a. m.

Today's War News Given in Summary

Loss of the 25,000 ton battle cruiser Lutzow, one of the big German warships which the British claimed to have sunk in the Jutland sea fight last week, is now admitted by the German admiralty, as is the loss of the cruiser Rostock, a cruiser of 4,900 tons.

The admitted German losses now comprise besides the Lutzow and Rostock, the battleship Pommern, the cruisers Wiesbaden, Elbing and Frauenlob and five torpedo craft.

The British have admitted the loss of the battle cruisers Queen Mary, Indefatigable and Invincible the armored cruisers Warrior, Black Prince and Defense, and eight torpedo boat destroyers. They have also admitted that the battleship Marlborough was torpedoed, but declared she was towed to port. Damage to the dreadnought Warspite, which the Germans claim to have sunk, has also been conceded.

Paris today admits the loss of Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun, capture of which Berlin announced in yesterday's official statement. The French still hold the outskirts of the fort and trenches on both sides of it. The fort was abandoned, says the French bulletin, after an incessant bombardment for seven days had reduced it to ruins.

AWAITING PLATFORM

Republican Convention in a Recess Until Report is Ready.

KILLS TIME IN EARLY SESSION

Mr. Depew, "Uncle Joe" Cannon and Others Heard in Brief Speeches.

OLISEUM, Chicago, June 8.—At 1:31 o'clock the republican national convention recessed until 4 p. m. to await the report of the resolutions committee which still was working on the platform.

The convention was in session about two hours and did nothing more than perfect its permanent organization and listen to some speeches.

Ex-Senator Depew, Ex-Speaker Cannon and Senator Borah were heard while the convention was killing time.

Rain Was Still Falling.

When the doors of the Coliseum were opened this morning two hours before the republican convention was due to begin business the pouring rain which has soaked the delegates and spectators for three days was still falling.

The hall was cold and damp, dripping rain coats and umbrellas soaked the floor but the bedraggled delegates made the best of it. The band up in the gallery endured the wait as the crowd began assembling.

The usual line of ticket speculators braved the rain, hawking admissions, the

FRENCH NOW ADMIT LOSS OF FORT VAUX

Concede Important German Gain in Fighting at Verdun.

Paris, June 8.—(12:01 p. m.)—Heavy fighting continues in the vicinity of Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun. The war office report of today says French troops still occupy the outskirts of the fort as well as trenches to the right and left of the works.

The loss of the fort itself, of which an intimation was given in last night's report, is conceded. The announcement says the fort was abandoned by the garrison after it had been reduced to a heap of ruins by an incessant bombardment of seven days. German attacks on the adjacent positions, thus far, have been unsuccessful.

West of the Meuse intermittent cannonading was carried on last night.

BOY SCOUTS AND TICKET TAKERS, ATTENTION!

Last night the crowds began to arrive at the pageant grounds at 6:30, but the doors could not be opened until 7:15 because many of the ushers, ticket takers and gatekeepers were not in their places. Tonight and every succeeding night of the pageant, every usher, gatekeeper and ticket taker, as well as all others connected with the handling of the audience, must be in their places at 6:30.

President Taft made a brief address, commending the D. A. R. for its work in marking historic spots for future generations. He spoke from a machine and was driven away before the unveiling was completed. Hundreds of school children, headed by a band, marched to the spot to participate in the exercises.

At Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, on the north bank of the Maumee, Mary Penrose Wayne chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, unveiled at 11 o'clock a great boulder, in which has been placed a tablet setting forth the significance of the spot. The ceremony was one of the most important of the centennial program.

Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, regent of the D. A. R., presided at the ceremonies. There was the rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the Citizens' band, the Fort Wayne hymn was sung by a chorus of school children and Mrs. Henry A. Beck, of Indianapolis, state regent of the D. A. R., spoke briefly after the unveiling, and prior to the address by Robert B. Hanna.

The marker is a huge boulder, nearly six feet high, and the bronze tablet is the work of a Fort Wayne artist, Homer Gordon Davidson.

Mr. Hanna's Address.

Mr. Hanna said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: We have gathered here today, at the invitation of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to commemorate the revolutionary battle known in history as 'Harmar's Defeat,' and to mark the historic spot known as 'Harmar's Ford.' I am sure that we all appreciate the compliment and the honor of being accorded the privilege of witnessing these pleasing and appropriate ceremonies, and I hope to do this important and creditable piece of work. The marker which has been placed here today is the only one of many monuments which have been erected by the fair hands of these noble women that the history of the United States, as it relates to the history of Indiana and to the history of Fort Wayne, may be written not only on parchment and on paper but in the very soil of the land itself. I feel sure that all of the people of Fort Wayne will join with me in congratulating the members of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the noble, important and patriotic work they are doing in marking the historic spots to be found in and around Fort Wayne—'The Glorious Gateway of the West.'"

Harmar's Defeat.

"It was after the Revolution had closed and the treaty of peace with Great Britain had been signed that the British refused to evacuate the western posts on American soil, including the fort at Detroit, which posts controlled all of the region of the Maumee and Wabash valleys. At this time, the site on Fort Wayne was the location of a strong Miami village known as Kekongwa. Its inhabitants were chiefly French fur traders whose success was dependent entirely upon the co-operation of the Indians. The three elements—British, French and Indians—worked together to keep the American colonists from coming west of the Allegheny river. It was a time of seeping raids on defenseless settlements in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Ohio. Prisoners by the hundreds were brought here, scalped and burned at the stake.

"In the midst of it all, George Rogers Clark came to the west and captured Vincennes, Kaskaskia and Cahokia on the Wabash and on the Mississippi rivers. Colonel Hamilton, going down through here from Detroit to the south Wabash region, was captured by Clark. The fierceness of the Indian-British hatred of the Americans increased as time went on.

"Washington, determined to open the west to the settlement of the pioneers, first made offers of peace, which were rejected, then sent General Josiah Harmar to the head of the Maumee river to establish here a post. The command under General Josiah Harmar marched northward from near Detroit on October 4th, 1790. It was composed of 1,433 soldiers, with only 329 regulars, the remaining number, 1,103, were militia from Kentucky. Some of the Kentucky militia were 'raw and unused to the gun or the woods.' General Harmar was much disheartened at the kind of people he had received from Kentucky, and he had much trouble, on his march from Detroit to Fort Wayne, or rather what was then Fort Washington and Kekongwa, in keeping the officers of his army with their commands, in their proper order.

The march was a long and a hard one but on the 17th of October, 1790, General Josiah Harmar, after crossing the Maumee river at the common fording place, reached the spot on which we now stand, about one o'clock in the afternoon. Three days of reconnoitering, with some fighting, were spent in this territory. On the 21st of October we find General Harmar and his army encamped at a point several miles down the Maumee river from this spot. But on that night Major Wyllys and Colonel Harding with a detachment of 400 men, started back and reached this point at sunrise, and it was on the day of this morning—October 22, 1790—that the disaster known in history as 'Harmar's Defeat,' occurred at this place. When those who survived this terrible defeat, of whom Major Wyllys was not one, at the hands of Little Turtle and his band of Indians, returned to the encampment of General Harmar, Colonel Harding requested the general to march back to this place with the whole army, but General Harmar gave Colonel Harding many good reasons why this should not be done, but as a matter of fact 'The general at this time had lost all confidence in the militia.' On the following day, October 23rd, General Harmar and his army took up the line of march for return to Detroit and reached there on the fourth of the next month, having lost in the expedition, one hundred and eighty-three killed, and thirty-one wounded.

Y. M. C. A. Campaign.

"My friends, I appreciate that only last week, while aroused civic spirit was getting under way, that we raised, here in Fort Wayne, by voluntary subscription over $300,000 for a Y. M. C. A. building, but magnificent as that achievement was, second to none in some respects in the history of Y. M. C. A. work, it is not one on which Fort Wayne is willing to rest her oars in community building. In fact, the work done in that campaign has only stimulated us to greater effort.

Civic Work of Women.

"I know of the work that the women of Fort Wayne are doing to help make Fort Wayne a still better place to live in; I know of their practical views, their breadth of vision and their soundness of judgment in matters pertaining to civic affairs, and knowing this, as I do, I feel at liberty to take advantage of this occasion to present for the consideration and judgment of both the men and women assembled here today, a few of the things that I feel might rightfully come out of the public spirit and home pride which has been aroused in the people of Fort Wayne during this centennial celebration.

Assembly Hall.

"Out of this aroused public spirit might come a large assembly hall for Fort Wayne, where the best music might be heard, the best plays witnessed and the best lectures listened to at a cost so small that no man, woman or child in Fort Wayne could afford to miss them; where in keeping with our republican form of government, and in a spirit of true democracy, we might meet to discuss national, state and municipal questions; where national and state conventions of the D. A. R. and other societies might be held, and where meetings and conventions and entertainments of all kinds might be had, to the enjoyment, enlightenment and profit of all the people of Fort Wayne.

Barge Canal.

"Out of this aroused public sentiment might come a voluntary subscription fund of $100,000 with which to conduct an educational campaign, for the next ten years if need be, dealing with the practicability and the necessity of the proposed Toledo, Fort Wayne and Chicago canal. This fund to be started in Fort Wayne and to be subscribed to by citizens of every city and town along the line of the proposed canal, from Chicago to Toledo and on to New York. The building of the Toledo, Fort Wayne and Chicago canal would be a no greater task for the men of today than was the building of the Wabash and Erie canal for the early settlers whose praises we love to sing at every birthday celebration of Fort Wayne and Indiana.

Chamber of Commerce.

"Out of this aroused public spirit might come a union of all our civic organizations, fostered by the Fort Wayne Commercial club, that would foster and encourage and enlarge home manufacturing institutions; that would build the Toledo and Ohio Central railroad from St. Marys, Ohio, to Fort Wayne, as the founders of Fort Wayne built the Pennsylvania line from Ohio to Illinois; that would be prepared financially, and in every other way, to promote and advance the welfare of Fort Wayne at every step along the road of progress.

Sewer-River-Flood Problem.

"Out of this aroused public spirit might come the execution of the plans for the solution of Fort Wayne's sewer-river-flood problem (and it is one problem, not three) and thus guarantee the suburban districts of Lakeside, Spivy Run, Bloomingdale and Nebraska against a repetition of the flood of 1913; give Fort Wayne a sewer system in keeping with her needs and her growing population and restore our three rivers to their original beauty and usefulness.

New City Charter.

"Out of this aroused civic spirit might come a municipal government more modern in form, more efficient in practice and more progressive in spirit than any yet enjoyed by the people of Fort Wayne.

"I had a small part in framing our present city charter, and I am not here today to condemn that instrument nor to criticize the men working under it. At the time we amended the original and thus secured our present city charter, we said that the city council should be reduced from twenty to fifteen members, and it was. In the light of the investigations and reports recently made by the National Municipal League, we might now reduce the city council from fifteen to six or nine members, with three elected at each succeeding election, and make still further reductions in the number of city officials, and still other changes in our present city charter, along the same line and much for the same reason that we amended our original city charter.

We amended our original city charter at that time that most kinds of work could be done better by a small than a large body of men, and so we took from the old council of twenty members the work now done by the board of public works, public safety, and by still other boards and individual officials. We abolished the office of city treasurer and made all city taxes payable at the office of the county treasurer. We afterwards wiped out the board of water works trustees, who its work to the board of public works, which meets every day, and which board, by the way, is the only municipal board the members of which are required to devote all of their time to the municipal duties assigned to them. By way of suggestion merely, for that is all one can possibly do in so short an address as this dealing with so many important questions, might it not be well, now that our city has grown from 45,000 to 80,000 in population since our present charter was secured, to do away with some of our numerous municipal boards, with their numerous members and appoint in their stead, for example, a director of health, director of works and director of safety, who would not only devote all of their working hours to the business of their respective departments but who would devote their lives to the study and solution of municipal problems. These directors, with the city attorney and city civil engineer, could be required to sit as a board, with the mayor at the head of the table, when the action of a board under the law is required. The combined salaries of the present numerous members of our numerous boards, would go a long way to paying the salaries of these directors and the additional sum needed, if any, might be made up by appointing instead of electing the city clerk, whose salary is larger now than it would be if he was not put to the expense of an election every few years, and by abolishing the office of city judge and allowing the work now done by him to be performed by the two justices of the peace of Wayne township.

"All appointive municipal officials and employees should be protected in the security of their respective positions by a civil service law.

"I feel that Fort Wayne should secure at the hands of the next session of the Indiana legislature not only the amendments to her city charter which I have hinted at, but also, all powers relative to city planning, flood prevention, drainage and similar municipal matters, which powers she may need and does not now hold. For instance, she might secure the creation of the drainage city of Fort Wayne, the same as we now have the school city of Fort Wayne, with power to issue bonds, to the end that this generation may not be called upon to pay the entire cost of Fort Wayne's proposed sewer-flood-river improvement. The officials of the city of Fort Wayne, proper, could be made ex-officio officials of the drainage city of Fort Wayne and thus put the tax payers to no additional expenses by reason of their securing these additional rights and powers. I know of no provision of Indiana's state constitution that stands in the way of securing any of the amendments to our city charter which I have in mind.

A $4,000,000 Loss.

Just to show that the founders of Fort Wayne, had some little idea of city planning, let me call your attention to the fact that when Barr and McCorkle laid out the original plat of Fort Wayne, that they donated all that part of Fort Wayne bounded by first alley west of Calhoun street on the west; Wayne street on the south, Barr street on the east, and the first alley north of Berry street on the north; together with all of the city block on which the court house now stands, as a site for public buildings—as a civic center. This land which today is worth, exclusive of improvements, $4,000,000, was sold by public officials for from $10 to $100 a lot and at a time, too, when taxing and borrowing power of the local government was greater than its real needs. For the want of this civic center, for the lack of city planning you and I have seen Clinton street destroyed for both residence and business purposes, by erecting thereon a few public and semi-public buildings, and we may yet see Berry, Wayne, Washington, Jefferson and Harrison streets go the same way.

Next Centennial.

"My friends, you and I have been strutting around during this centennial celebration in the garb of the fathers; have been singing their praises, orating about their virtues, erecting monuments on their battle fields. Why? Because the spirit of their courage, their wisdom, their virtue, abides with us today; because they made it possible for you and me to live here in the grandest country in the world, the greatest state in the Union, the best city in Indiana. Because we love our country, state and city and love to honor those who brought peace and prosperity and happiness to these lands of ours.

But how about a hundred years from now? What will the life of the next century bring forth? The history of the past century has been made; the story of 'The Glorious Gateway of the West' has been written and played and sung. We look now toward the rising, not toward the setting sun. With pride in the present and faith in the future, we believe that the historical pageant there will be played on the second centennial birthday of Indiana, will tell a story more glorious than the story told today, glorious in peace not in war; glorious in comfort not in hardship; glorious in happiness not in sorrow; glorious in national patriotism, state pride and love of home city; glorious in wisdom, enthusiasm and achievement; glorious in love, honor and virtue; glorious in the judgment of man; glorious in the 'sight of God.'"

100 AUTOS PROMISED FOR THE HOME TOUR

County Agent Henry announces that more than 100 automobiles have been promised to take part in Allen county's home tour, which will be conducted June 14 and 15. This will be the biggest tour ever held in Allen county and with the itinerary announced, everything is ready for the event. The county made a name for itself when it gave the alfalfa tour last year, but this year's tour will surpass the one of the preceding year in many respects.

The purpose of this tour will be to acquaint the people of the county with the many splendid homes which are located in this district and to learn the methods of arrangement and management of various farm places.

Mrs. Sewell will be the guiding spirit of the tour and many other state leaders will be here for the occasion.

Visitors From West Virginia.

T. A. Coleman, assistant county agent of West Virginia, has written County Agent Henry that he will be in this city Friday. He is coming to get ideas of the work that has been accomplished by the county agent of Allen county.

11,000 PEOPLE SEE PAGEANT

Large Audience Delighted With First Night's Production.

PIONEER SCENES MOST ACCURATE

Chairman Miller Thanks the Public for Support and Co-operation.

Before an audience of 11,000 people at Reservoir park the first of the three performances of Fort Wayne's pageant was given Wednesday night.

From the time the band started the introductory music until the grand finale the production was unhampered by delays. If the plot of the pageant had been omitted entirely there would be left beauty and simplicity in every scene.

The pioneer scenes were most appreciated by older persons. In every instance the reproduction of pioneer life was made as accurate as possible. Many descendants of the pioneers who took part in the original scenes years ago reproduced the incidents as they took place at that time.

"The attendance was more than up to expectations considering the cool weather and everybody is pleased beyond words. With half-way decent weather there is every reason to believe that the seating capacity of the pageant grounds will be taxed to the limit Thursday and Friday nights.

The large crowd was handled without the least confusion. Hereafter, however, spectators must be in their seats before 8 o'clock, the time for beginning the first act, or must wait until the beginning of the second act.

Chairman Miller Speaks.

Chairman E. C. Miller, who is in charge of the Centennial celebration, spoke briefly between scenes 1 and 2. "I do not see why I should be asked to speak," he said. "This is not my show; it belongs to the people of Fort Wayne. I want to thank you for your splendid support and co-operation. I hope that Fort Wayne will put on something of this kind each year."

Too much space would be required to give each actor individual mention. They all performed most creditably. Donald Robertson, director of the pageant, was given a round of applause when he made his appearance as "Thunderhead," a Prophet of the Miamis. Throughout the entire production the history of Fort Wayne is brought forth with a vividness that cannot be told in words.

Summary of Six Scenes.

The pageant is in six scenes, opening with the coming of French traders to Fort Wayne and closing with a scene on Fort Street, when the news of the firing on Fort Sumter was received. A summary of the six scenes is as follows:

Scene 1.

The first scene is most picturesque. In the virgin forest, beside the St. Marys river, where the Indians have chosen to locate their village and where their groups of teepees form a large section of the stage picture, are gathered the tribes living in their primitive state, while at the other side of the picture are two log huts of the French traders, illustrative of the coming of the first whites. The story of the first scene is that of the coming of the Jesuit priests to the wilderness, their great object being to make of the undeveloped savages a great Christian race.

Scene 2.

The second scene discloses Fort Miami, the French post on the bank of the St. Joseph river, as it appeared on the afternoon in the year 1763, shortly after the French and Indian war. A quarrel between Donaldson, an English settler, and Godfroi, the treacherous Frenchman, who seeks the destruction of the garrison, reveals the coming outbreak. Then follows the thrilling story of the betrayal of the commandant, Ensign Holmes, and the sensational capture of the post by the Indians and their French cohorts.

Scene 3.

This scene is in two parts, the first part bringing the audience into the forest on the night of August 19, 1794, on the eve of the battle of Fallen Timber. The chiefs of the Miamis, Delawares, Shawnees, Pottawatomies and Wyandottes are gathered about an immense council fire in the forest, with their British allies. Braves with war drums beat the instruments at the close of each of the fiery speeches of the chiefs who proclaim their readiness to go to war with General Anthony Wayne, whose army has approached within a few miles of the camp. Little Turtle leads the savages as they disappear into the forest to meet Wayne and his army. The climax comes with the appearance of General Wayne, mounted, as he dashes to the front of the stage surrounded by his victorious followers.

Scene 4.

The fourth scene opens with a view of the fort as it appeared on the morning of September 10, 1812. The audience is given a view of the interior of the fort, with the anxious members of the garrison and the women enjoying a brief respite from the severe attack of the savages on the fort. Interest in the opening of the scene centers strongly upon the women of the fort who appear less alarmed than their husbands. Suddenly one of the soldiers, severely wounded by a shot from an Indian rifle from without, falls from his place on the platform, which forms his post of sentry. The garrison is called out. A savage is seen crawling toward the fort from a distance. A shot from the fort fails to reach the approaching red man. Suddenly, a shout goes up from the garrison, "It's Logan come back! Logan come back!" Truly it is the faithful Shawnee brave returning with the message from General William Henry Harrison that his troops are on the way to save the garrison. Logan is received into the fort, and soon the relieving forces, under General Harrison, ride into the fort amidst the cheers of the garrison, which has striven for many days to avert the loss of the fort and the destruction of the lives of the men and women.

Scene 5.

Scene five opens with a view of Fort Wayne as it appeared on the afternoon of April 19, 1819, the day of its abandonment as a military post. Around the fort, evidences of the coming town and city, are the few houses erected since the coming of peace with the savages.

Introduced in this scene is the great "Ball of Fort Wayne," in which a company of one hundred and forty beautiful young girls in the costumes of the nationalities, which form the greater elements of the city of Fort Wayne, give a dance which was one of the most spectacular presentations ever seen in the middle west.

Scene 6.

The sixth and final scene shows a busy scene on Barr street, Fort Wayne. The old fort has disappeared and new boys cry the startling news that Fort Sumter has been fired on. Henry W. Lawton, William P. Segur, William H. Link and George Humphrey meet and discuss the news from the Carolinas. The crowds grow in numbers and patriotic enthusiasm. Among the citizens who thrill the "strongs with fiery speeches from the street corners are Mayor Franklin E. Randall, Hugh McCulloch, Allen Hamilton and others. The scene closes with the appearance of a great army of volunteers in full uniform, marching in review as they leave for the front and with a beautiful tableau, "The Spirit of 1916," bringing to an end the series of wonderful pictures which tell with vivid word and action the thrilling story of two hundred years of progress from savagery to peace and enlightenment.

WILL BE ONE BIG DAY.

Friday promises to be one great day.

The doings begin with the opening of the Industrial Exposition and Hippodrome at 9 o'clock. Band concerts galore will break loose shortly afterward, and music will fill the air until 3 o'clock when the great demonstration of physical culture by 1,500 pupils of the schools will be given on West Wayne street, between Harrison street and Fairfield avenue. The pageant (Elks') band will furnish music for the children's demonstration of physical training. The thousands who witness this display will appreciate the work of Prof. Henry Meyer, in charge of the department in the schools, and of Miss Carrie Suively, assistant, upon who falls much of the responsibility for the instruction of the boys and girls in this important branch of modern school work.

Pageant at Night.

At 8 o'clock in the evening, the pageant will be given in full. This is the night for which those who hold tickets for last Tuesday night, June 6, will be admitted. There are some good seats left, and all who are prompt will be able to secure seats for the evening presentation. Many who have already seen the pageant will see the great spectacle at least once more. If this is impossible tonight, the opportunity to go tomorrow night must not be neglected.

LOYAL SOUTH BENDERS.

Remain Over to the Great Historic Pageant—Are Delighted.

It will be remembered that a great delegation from South Bend came to the city to witness the pageant on Tuesday evening and were compelled to return home without satisfying their desire to see the production on account of the postponement because of rain.

Not all of them went away, however. Rotarians Frank C. Toepf, D. L. Gilfoyne and E. J. Twomey, with their wives, decided to stay by the pageant and witness the performance if the weather man would consent. They were there last night, and came away with such a delightful report that the entire South Bend delegation will doubtless return for the Friday night presentation of the play.

South Bend puts on its pageant in October, and the business men of that city are determined to learn from Fort Wayne just how to do it right.

BOY SCOUTS

They Did Splendid Work Last Night at the Pageant Grounds.

W. C. Schwier and E. J. Ehrman, head ushers at the pageant grounds, are delighted with the splendid work of the boy scouts who served as ushers in seating the vast first-night audience.

"I don't believe there was a mix-up during the entire evening," said Mr. Schwier. The rain washed off all of the markers on the chairs, which necessitated labeling all of them anew, but the work was completed in time for the reception of the audience. The ushers, ticket-takers and all, other connected with the care of the audience will be on hand hereafter at 6:30; to take care of the people. The gates did not open last evening until 7:15. They'll be open half an hour earlier hereafter.

DELPHOS MAN STABS WIFE

Harry Vondram in Van Wert Jail for Assault With Scissors.

Van Wert, O., June 8.—For stabbing his wife in the jaw with a pair of scissors while in an intoxicated condition, Harry Vondram, of Delphos, was placed in the county jail on his failure to provide a bond of $500 when he pleaded guilty at a hearing before Mayor Leasure, of Delphos. Vondram is alleged to have been taken to his home by a friend and soon after his arrival there to have accused his wife, Leota Vondram, of intimate relations with the friend and then to have stabbed her with the pair of scissors. The wound is not serious. Mrs. Vondram appeared before Mayor Leasure and swore out a warrant for his arrest. When he was given a preliminary hearing in mayor's court, he pleaded guilty. He was placed under a $500 bond, which he was unable to furnish and was bound over to the grand jury. He was brought to Van Wert by Chief Thompson of Delphos.

YOUTH DRINKS SULPHURIC ACID.

Clayton Gerst, Kendallville, Tries Suicide, Following Quarrel With Father.

Kendallville, Ind., June 8.—Clayton Gerst, age 19, son of Charles Gerst, 616 South street, is lying at the point of death at his home, with two physicians making strenuous efforts to save his life, the result of taking four ounces of sulphuric acid, apparently with suicidal intent. It is said the young man went upstairs shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon and drank the acid. His groans soon aroused members of the family, who found him struggling on the floor. Neighbors were called who administered medicine which created nausea, while awaiting the arrival of Drs. H. O. Williams and C. B. Goodwin. The young man got in an altercation with his father in the morning, which, it is said, prompted his rash act. He left a note, the contents of which have been withheld.

WARREN BOARD DEADLOCKED

Warren, Ind., June 8.—After balloting the greater part of the night, the town board of Warren could decide on but one of the two library board members which it must appoint. Mrs. Vienna Laymon, wife of Dr. H. E. Laymon, of Warren, was the selected member, but the board split on the second selection over the names of Calvin Perdue and E. M. Mossburg. The ballot stood two for Perdue and one for Mossburg until the end of the session. Four persons constitute the town board, and but three of them were present. A majority of the board is necessary, voting on a question, to pass it. Thus the two votes for Perdue were not enough to elect him. The school board, which will select the two remaining of the seven members of the library board, will meet for that purpose near the end of the week.

COUNTY WOULD SELL HEAT.

Auburn, Ind., June 8.—The members of the county board of commissioners are informally discussing the proposition of making an offer to the city of Auburn to furnish heat for the city hall and to the corporation owning the Court theater and the new Commercial club home to heat up those two buildings. The capacity of the county heating plant is great enough, not only to heat the court house, the new jail and the sheriff's residence, but also the other buildings. The heat can be furnished to the city, the theater and the Commercial club at a rate much below what it would cost these three individually to heat their buildings. The overhead expense would not be increased by the heating of the additional buildings and at the same time would yield a profit to the county.

LADY AGENT AT PONETO SUES.

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—Mrs. Ida Ramseyer today filed suit for divorce from John Ramseyer, alleging cruel treatment and failure to provide. In her complaint she recites that she is ticket agent for the interurban company at Poneto. The complaint recites that the couple were married September 19, 1885, at Tipton, and separated during the past winter. To their union was born one son, Bryan Ramseyer, aged 19. Mrs. Ramseyer charges her husband with habitual drunkenness, alleging that he is continuously under the influence of liquor and that he has so been during the past two years or more. She alleges that he has cursed her and called her names unfit to be put into print, also that he has an ungovernable temper and has threatened her with personal violence.

VAN WERT'S NEW SCHOOL HEAD

Van Wert, Ohio, June 8.—David B. Clark, of Milford, Ohio, was elected to the superintendency of the Van Wert city schools at a meeting of the city board of education. The election of Prof. Clark was by the unanimous vote of the board. In selecting a man to succeed Prof. Sharkey, the school board thoroughly investigated a field of nearly 35 applicants for the position. It is believed that in Mr. Clark a thoroughly competent man has been secured. He was highly recommended for the position by the authorities in every place he has been located. Prof. Clark is a graduate of Ohio State university.

DECATUR SCHOOL ELECTION.

Decatur, Ind., June 8.—By a vote of four to one D. B. Erwin was elected a member of the Decatur school board for a term of three years from the first of August 1916. The selection was made by ballot, without nomination and only two persons were voted for. Mr. Erwin and O. L. Vance. Neither of the gentlemen were candidates for the place, and it was purely a case where the council did the selecting on its own initiative and without the least outside influence being brought to bear. For two terms, a total of six years, Mr. Vance had faithfully filled the position.

PIERCETON GIRL INJURED.

Warsaw, Ind., June 8.—Margaret Bonar, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bonar, of Piercetown, was seriously injured when she stepped in front of an automobile, driven by Frank Gilbert, who resides four miles northwest of Piercetown.

The front wheel of the machine passed over the child fracturing her right arm and leg. The little girl was rendered unconscious and was carried to the office of Dr. Long, where opiates were administered and the fractures reduced. Dr. Leedy assisted.

ROANOKE WILL CELEBRATE

Roanoke, Ind., June 8.—Roanoke is planning for one of the biggest and best Fourth of July celebrations ever to be held in that town. The Fourth of July committees are working untiringly to give an entertainment for the day. The committees assure the people races, ball games, horse shoe contests, fireworks and other sports. Special care will be taken for the comfort of all visitors and automobilists and facilities to feed all horses. The advertising committees are laboring to secure the best attractions.

ALMOST $200,000 FOR ROADS

Portland, Ind., June 8.—The improvement of ten Jay county highways with brick or stone, under the three-mile road law, was ordered by the board of commissioners before they adjourned their session. The estimated cost of the improvements, which are situated in Richland, Pike, Greene, Noble and Wabash townships, is $181,499. Action on thirteen brick and stone road petitions was continued because the townships are now up to the limit in taxation allowed for improvements of this character.

RAISING MONEY FOR COLLEGE

Huntington, Ind., June 8.—Over $4,000

has already been raised toward the $50,000 financial campaign for Central college. Practically all of this money was raised from members of the faculty, the present student body and those who attended the exercises held at the college in connection with the opening of the summer term of school. The campaign for raising funds to be used in the erection of several new buildings at Central college has been under way for two weeks.

DEKALB ROAD ELECTION JUNE 8.

Auburn, Ind., June 8.—County Auditor Stanley P. Nelson was ordered by the board of commissioners to give notice of an election by publication in the Auburn Courier for three weeks that such an election will be held on July 25, 1916, and the voters of said township will decide whether the road shall be built as provided in said viewers report. S. P. Nelson, auditor, and Charles Newcomer and Robert L. Haverstock are named as election commissioners.

OSSIAN SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—Professor Charles G. Pepe, who was principal of the schools of Monroe, Adams county, last year, has been engaged by Trustee Ward Fryback as principal of the Ossian public schools for next year, as successor to Prof. Aaron Deich, who resigned. Prof. M. A. Aldred, who had charge of the English department at Ossian, has been tendered the principalship of the Petroleum schools, but the not yet signified his acceptance.

WHERE PURE FOOD LAW HIT HARD

Portland, Ind., June 8.—The Bourne and Hopkins meat market at Pennville, the only establishment of the kind in that town, was practically put out of business when an inspector of the state food and drugs department, condemned meats on hand and demanded that material changes be made looking to better sanitary conditions. A milk dealer was warned of changes necessary.

LINN GROVE BANK ELECTS.

Bluffton, Ind., June 8.—The stockholders of the bank of Linn Grove held their annual meeting Tuesday and officers and directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, L. O. Bears; vice president, Oral Huffman, and completing the board of directors are Albert Kindle, John Brown, Michael Miller, Andrew Sower and Michael Gattschalk.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

Psalm 116
1 When the Lord turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream.
2 Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for them.
3 The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.
4 Turn again our captivity, O Lord, as the streams in the south.
5 They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.
6 He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

Can you recall any compensation after severe pain? Is there any delightful calm in the relief of perfect rest? There are times in life when we must be "doing something," when activity spells joy; but these moments of peace after pain are such supremely delightful experiences, marred only by the haunting dread that the troubling agency may recur again. Have pain, sorrow and disappointment seemed to shadow much of your life? Remember, this is but a pilgrim life, only a span measured out of eternity. If marked by chasing shadows, the light shines more and more unto the perfect day, when there shall be no more pain, no more tears, no more shadows, for the glory of God did lighten it, and the lamb is the light thereof.

Reckoning With Roosevelt

The outstanding feature of the political hurly-burly at Chicago on Wednesday when the republican and progressive national conventions held their opening sessions was clearly and unmistakably the frenzied demonstration for Colonel Roosevelt which characterized the gathering of the progressives. Temporary Chairman Robins had spoken but three sentences of his keynote address when he made mention of the colonel's name and there instantly burst forth a pandemonium of blended applause, shouts, cheers, roars, chants and militant melody that utterly refused to be stilled until more than one hour and thirty minutes had elapsed. Devotees of Col. Roosevelt's cause marched and surged and swayed about the Auditorium hall giving vent to enthusiasm that would not longer be denied. Doubtless much of the show was staged—that is, the leaders had calculated upon and encouraged something of the sort as an object lesson to the republican assemblage in session but a few squares distant. The moral effect of a demonstration of this character is unquestioned, but it is to be doubted if even the most devoted adherents of the colonel's cause had correctly gauged the extent or the fervor of what followed the first out-break of the pent-up devotion.

All this is especially interesting because of the talk of peace between the republicans and the progressives—because of the effort to heal the old breach left by the secession of the progressive republicans from the convention which renominated Mr. Taft. It is interesting, too, because of the fact that from many quarters we have heard the preaching that Colonel Roosevelt was politically dead and that he had been duly and decently entombed in the political cemetery. It has a further interesting significance, too, from the fact that the colonel's adherents are by no means confined to the progressive organization. It will transpire that he has no inconsiderable following within the republican convention itself, even his enemies conceding him from 150 to 200 votes there. The progressive demonstration Wednesday makes substantial and definite claim stoutly maintained prior to that time—that the progressives have no second choice; that they will have Roosevelt or nobody. The task of reckoning with Colonel Roosevelt is a job that will be extremely distasteful to the majority of the gentlemen who make up the republican national convention, but it is a job that cannot be dodged. It is today the biggest element in the Chicago situation.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to deny the Twelfth district what it goes after in a political way. Alfred L. Moudy, of Waterloo, has just been nominated for governor of Indiana by the prohibitionists, and it is worthy of note, too, that he won the place at the head of the ticket after a contest with other aspirants for the honor. Mr. Moudy will probably not be elected. Indeed, it is doubtful if he is deluding himself with any impression that he will be victorious at the polls in November, but he will go into the fight with positive convictions and make the race as earnestly as though his chance were as good as an even break. In recent years, especially, the prohibition organization in Indiana has been putting no end of "pep" into its work, and it is interesting upon a serious hearing.

Vice President Marshall, who is enjoying a brief vacation at Indianapolis, refuses to be disturbed over the prospects for or against his renomination at St. Louis next week, and the statement is given out that "the political situation is not on his nerves at all." Throughout his political career Mr. Marshall has demonstrated the happy faculty of equanimity, and he has allowed the other fellow who believed worry were necessary to go to it and to do all of it. He has merely applied to politics a pretty good philosophy for other activities of life as well—a philosophy which all of us admit is excellent, but which not all of us are able to firmly and consistently put in daily practice.

Former Senator James A. Hemenway has been selected as republican national committeeman from Indiana to succeed Mr. Goodrich, who will be reasonably busy for some months running for governor. Well, it must be admitted that there is shown in the selection of Mr. Hemenway not the slightest disposition to put anybody but the old guard on guard. He is entirely free from even the faintest suspicion of any taint of bullmooseism.

Unofficial returns indicate that at the special election held in Iowa Monday the constitutional amendment providing for woman suffrage in that was beaten by about 4,600 votes. Hereafter we shall be under the painful necessity of ceasing to point to Iowa as a model of statehood. She has simply lost all caste by her latest performance.

Senator Harding in his keynote speech declared that the republicans and the progressives did not divide in 1912 on "fundamental principles." Perhaps he's right. At least, the progressive description of the occasion for the break sounded a good deal more sulphuric than "fundamental principles."

CHURCH OF BRETHREN GATHERS AT WINONA

Many Thousand Members in Important Church Conference.

Warsaw, Ind., June 8.—Many thousand members of the Church of the Brethren and their families, gathered at Winona Lake today, when the largest and most important conference in the history of the church opened.

Detailed plans for the advancement of one of the greatest foreign missionary projects ever attempted by the church will be worked out at this conference. A new system of unified Sunday school work will be another problem of the conference which will bring delegates from all parts of America and several from abroad.

Among the prominent men of the church who are on the program for addresses are Martin G. Brumbaugh, governor of Pennsylvania; H. C. Early, head of the Church of the Brethren in the United States; D. L. Miller, of Mount Morris, Ill., and J. L. Cunningham, Florida, Ind., secretary of the conference. Mrs. L. M. Neher, Warsaw, believes in "preparedness." She is president of the Sisters' Aid society of the church and in expectancy of the immense number of persons to be fed has already contracted for 150,000 buns, five hundred pies and meat by the hoghead for one of the big open air lunch counters alone. Every hotel, boarding and lodging house at Winona is making preparations for the coming of the Dunkards, and hundreds of residents of Warsaw are making arrangements to house and feed many of the visitors.

The conference this year will be the third held at Winona, the annual meetings having been held here in 1913 and in 1910. The conference will be in session from June 8 to 18.

GRABILL NEWS.

Grabill, Ind., June 8.—Miss Rosa Schertz, of Berne, is visiting her brother, Joseph Schertz, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Conner, of Hopeville, were here on business Saturday.

Mrs. Laura Howey, of Fort Wayne, is helping to care for her mother, Mrs. Nettiehorst, who is quite seriously ill. The Missionary church has been moved on the new foundation and will soon be remodeled.

Miss Lydia Conrad, who is attending the Tri-State college at Angola, has been home for a few days' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Steiner made a trip to Toledo in their touring car. While there they called on Mr. Steiner's sister and family.

Mrs. E. Coy Martz and children returned from a week's visit with her mother and other relatives at Decatur. Mr. and Mrs. Noah Goldsmith and Irvan Klopstein and family spent Sunday with Samuel Witmer and family at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Frank Holloper and children left for Decatur, where they will visit with relatives for some time.

Mrs. Harry Zent and daughter, of Huntington, spent a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Tope and other relatives.

Howard Klopstein made a business trip to Fort Wayne Tuesday.

"Wild Bill" Heath and his airship caused quite a bit of excitement here Monday when he landed on the C. C. Page farm adjoining town. The whole town turned out and he was quite effective in his Centennial advertising.

The Ohio-Indiana Sunday school convention of the Mennonite church will be held this coming Sunday all day in the town hall. The following speakers will be present and give talks on various subjects: Forenoon session—Levi Melinger, devotionist; Jacob Sumney, address of welcome; E. S. Gerig, "The Lesson Taught;" Mrs. Oswin Hilty on "The Child;" and Mrs. Oswin Hilty on "The Child." In the afternoon Andrew Gerig will have charge of devotionist; Aaron Roth, E. M. Slagle and Rev. J. K. Gerig will be the speakers. In the evening session Noah Stueckey will have charge of the Young People's meeting; Eli Lantz will have the devotionist, after which an evangelistic sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. K. Gerig, of Chicago. Special music has been arranged for the various sessions. Everybody is welcome to attend.

WHO WILL BE THE EIGHTEEN PRIZE WINNERS IN THE SENTINELS BIG PRIZE CAMPAIGN?

Exciting Race for $5,000 Prizes Closes Week from Saturday—All Prizes Ready to Be Turned Over to Honored Winners—Race Promises to Be Close and Exciting.

The one big problem that is now confronting the people of Fort Wayne and surrounding territory is, "Who are going to be the four automobile winners in the most exciting and interesting Sentinel campaign?" Scores and scores of solutions to this problem have been presented and astrologers, palmists and exponents of the occult sciences have been consulted by some in an effort to find out just how the campaign will result. All of these quests have been fruitless, for no one knows who the winners will be until the judges make their final announcement after they finish counting the votes. Meanwhile every candidate entered has an equal chance of winning one of the cars. Practically every young woman in the list is really trying during these last few days, and many who apparently have not show whatever, according to the standing in the paper, will spring surprises that will cause the too-confident ones to go down to defeat. Over-confidence is the biggest handicap under which a contestant can labor. This unwelcome attribute causes more disappointment than any other thing in a contest of this sort. The only way to be certain is to spend every possible moment in securing subscriptions, which, as far as the campaign manager can judge, every contestant is doing.

Subscriptions under the prevalent scale count up faster than you would imagine. Just stop and think—during this offer, which closes next Saturday evening, for every combination of $25 worth of new subscriptions, the candidate turns in, she will receive 80,000 extra votes. These votes are in addition to the regular number. Consider what is in store for the contestant who finishes first in the race, the handsome seven passenger, six cylinder Paige. Every minute that you can possibly spend at your quest, coupled with energy, will put you in position for one of the autos. You will never regret the minutes that you spend in getting subscriptions that will win one of the eighteen prizes for you.

Opportunity knocks at your door but once, according to the old adage, and this opportunity is the biggest one of your life, no doubt.

Realizing the immense value of the rewards in store for them and knowing that real effort during these last few days means, practically, victory or defeat, contestants all over the territory covered by this campaign are engaged in a big battle of ballots, assisted by their friends and relatives, and in many cases, have an array of supporters behind them that will, no doubt, spell "Paige Six" for one of them.

The spirit of rivalry, which has been rekindled in a pleasant way between the various candidates and towns, is going to mean a great deal to the respective communities when the close draws nearer. Many of the towns have united to a man behind their favorite candidate. Some of the towns have the utmost pleasure in coming out in head in various enterprises. The race promises to be a close one in each district, and victory will probably be snatched by a single subscription in some cases, as had happened heretofore in previous campaigns.

MERCHANT MARINE ENDORSED.

National T. P. A. Convention at Lafayette Goes on Record.

Lafayette, Ind., June 8.—A resolution was passed by the delegates to the national convention of the T. P. A., in session here, endorsing the merchant marine and urging immediate action by the government to enlarge the shipping facilities of the United States. Routine work of the convention was completed and officers will be elected at the concluding business sessions Friday.

An elaborate pyrotechnical display and water carnival on the Wabash river, which attracted over 20,000 people to Lafayette, was the feature of last night's program.

Lafayette Place Near High School Site

One of the advantages of Lafayette Place, the beautiful new addition on South Calhoun street, is the fact that it is but six blocks south of the site selected for the location of the new high school site. It is understood that this new school will not only include the present high school grades but also most of the lower grades, and parents are realizing that this feature together with the seven acres of playgrounds, parks, etc., which have been laid out in Lafayette Place make the addition an ideal spot for the raising of children. The wholesome surroundings which the restrictions placed upon this addition are sure to bring about are another point furthering this conviction. Additional information about Lafayette Place may be had from the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff Building, or any member of the Real Estate Exchange.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and cures the source of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Mr. Taft's Centennial Message to Fort Wayne

Following is the address which President Taft prepared for delivery in Fort Wayne on the centennial occasion. On account of the rain which intervened at the close of the automobile parade, however, Mr. Taft was unable to deliver his address.

"Citizens of Fort Wayne, Ladies and Gentlemen—I am glad to be present at this interesting centennial celebration of the birth of the state of Indiana. It is properly held at this, one of the most interesting historical places in the whole northwest. As early as 1830, now more than two centuries and a quarter ago, it was a gateway for the Indians and travelers from the lakes to the southwest. Here was the beginning of the Maumee-Wabash portage. Here was for a century an important French trading post. Here was the old French and English Fort Miami, and here was Fort Wayne, built by that distinguished American soldier who bore the sobriquet of 'Mad Anthony.' Built in 1794, after he had defeated the Indians at the battle of Fallen Timbers, it remained as a defense against the Indians until after the foundation of the city and the permanent settlement here in 1815. It would be difficult to find a spot about which more Indian associations cling than that upon which we stand today. Here alone we might find reasons enough in your history to give your state the name of Indiana. However much you may value evidences of prosperity in your rapid growth and your importance as a railroad center, you of Fort Wayne are exceptionally fortunate in your wealth of tradition. It is a pleasure to note that you accord to it the importance it deserves.

What Event Commemorates.

"We are here to commemorate the change of the Indians' territory into a state. The territory was carved out of that greater territory northwest of the Ohio river which was given a form of government in the Ordinance of 1787, and to which we must trace the origin of the great states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The present population and wealth of these five states, and the high standard of intelligence of their inhabitants, I need hardly dwell upon. I mention them only to say that they were the normal result of the natural resources of the country and a spirit of freedom and independence in the pioneers who settled them and in the fundamental instrument in which their institutions and government had origin—the Ordinance of 1787. That charter secured a proportionate representation of the people in the legislature, provided a bill of rights, forever forbidding human slavery within the territory, and was the first of all constitutions to declare against the injustice of the impairment of contract. The proximity of Indiana to Kentucky and Virginia, where slavery existed, and the migration from those two states into Indiana, easily explained the desire of some of the immigrants to bring with them a domestic and social institution which they deemed helpful in the building up of a new country. And so we find that in 1805 there were 175 slaves in Indiana; that a law was enacted providing for a form of indenture which really made slaves of those who were the subject of it, and that in 1810, there were 227 slaves. The indenture law was repealed in 1810 through the activity of Quakers who had settled in the state. Under the leadership of Jonathan Jennings, who was elected a territorial delegate to congress in 1809 and in 1811, and who was the first governor of the state from 1816 to 1822, the constitution adopted in 1816, reiterated the declaration of the Ordinance of 1787 against slavery and the institution soon disappeared.

Suggests a Topic.

"I have read the constitution of 1816 and it has suggested to me a topic for discussion. The indispensable basis of success for what we call a government of the people is certain duties of citizenship which must be fulfilled or popular government will fail. Your constitution of 1816 in its preamble stated the purpose of its framers to be 'to establish justice, promote the welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to the people of Indiana and their posterity,' and in its first article it declared that 'all men are born equally free and independent, that they have certain natural, inherent and inalienable rights among which are the enjoying and defending life and liberty and of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety.' The constitution further declares that all power is inherent in the people and that all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace and safety and happiness.

"Now we have heard and read such principles announced first in the Declaration of Independence, then in our federal constitution, and then in the constitution of the states, and in many other instruments of government. We recite them with entire satisfaction just as we recite creeds in our churches, but we do not always analyze their meaning. We do not always apply the proper qualifications to their sweeping generalizations, and especially do we frequently fail to appreciate the burdens and duties which the enjoyment of such government entails upon us. We are so prone to dwell upon our rights under a system of government that our obligations to maintain it.

Do Not Always Argue Out.

"We do not always argue out why we believe in popular government. We refer to the rule of the people as if it were an end and not a means. We say that the rule of the people brings us liberty and so we treat liberty as an end and not a means. The real end of life is the happiness of all and the happiness of all depends upon the happiness of the individuals and the recognition of the happiness of one individual will interfere with the happiness of another. The well known rule of law that a man must enjoy his own in such a way as not to injure another illustrates what I mean. Liberty is not license. Liberty must be regulated by law, that each may secure as much out of government as is consistent with the equal security of another in the pursuit of happiness by both. Why then do we favor popular government? If we can not state why we favor it, we are hardly worthy to deserve it and we certainly shall lack when the test comes in meeting the obligation to defend it and sustain it. We believe in popular government because we believe that in the long run a government in which a considerable part of the people direct the policy of the government, representatives of all classes have a chance to be heard, the interests of all classes are more likely to be regarded and taken care of than where the interest is one class is committed to the care and control of any other, no matter how altruistic that other may be. In the long run, it is better for each class of people to have some say, or opportunity to be heard, in the determination of what is to be done by the government and may affect them.

The Second Reason.

"The second reason why we prefer popular government is that where all classes have some say and some right to be heard in determining what the governmental policy shall be, even if their own views are not followed, the fact that they are consulted will lead them to support the government and give it solidarity. This solidarity will secure strength to it which makes permanence and stability. Permanence and stability of government are essential to continued peace and order and these are essential to the prosperity of all and to the equal opportunity of all to seek happiness.

"But we must not be misled by the generalization that popular government means literally the rule of the people. Such literal definition and interpretation gives rise to fundamental misconceptions in respect to our duties as citizens. It gives rise to the view that all the people make the law that they are called upon to obey, and thus that each individual in a properly constituted government makes and consents to every law which he is called upon to obey. This leads to the very demoralizing attitude of individuals and groups of individuals that when they are called upon to obey laws that they don't like, that they don't vote for, and that operate to their annoyance, they may recur to the fundamental idea that the enforcement of such a law is contrary to the rule of the people, and therefore they may properly disobey it and ignore it.

Attitude of the Anarchist.

"This conclusion really states the attitude of the modern anarchist. I do not mean that body of men called anarchists who manifest their hostility to society and seek to convince by the use of explosive and blowing their opponents up, but I mean a school of social thinkers who advance the view that we can trace all our evils in society to the restraints of government, and that the perfect state toward which we should work, and to which we should promptly come, is one in which, without government and without any restriction of any sort, each member of society, each child and man, will know what they ought to do in following their rights and fulfilling their duties to themselves and to others, and will conduct themselves accordingly. Following such views unconsciously there are many people who exhibit a dangerous lack of respect for authority and law. Kipling, in his poem on 'The American Spirit,' speaks of the American 'who flouts the laws he makes.'

Held Definite Views.

"Our ancestors who drafted the Declaration of Independence and the federal constitution and the constitution of 1816, of Indiana, had no such erroneous view, and did not intend that their declaration in favor of the rule of the people and of liberty of the individual should be construed in any such way. They believed in law and its enforcement.

"It is a fundamental error, as I have already said, to assume that in a democracy—or a republic—the only reason for obeying the law is because he votes for it or consents to it. In most cases such a reason does not exist. It is a misinterpretation of the meaning of popular government or rule of the people. It does not mean that all the people rule or that a majority of the people rule. Indeed, as a matter of fact, only a small percentage of the people rule. Take for an example the election of 1912. In that election the successful candidate had about 6,500,000 votes. The other two candidates received votes which aggregated 7,500,000, so that the president and the congress, whom the 6,500,000 had elected and who have directed the policy of the government for the succeeding three and a half years, were selected by only 6,500,000 people, a minority of those who voted in the election.

Small Percentage Governs.

"The total number of people entitled to vote in the United States is probably twenty million or twenty-one million. There were in the election of 1912 more people entitled to vote who did not vote than who voted for the successful candidate. All the people in the United States number about 100,000,000. Therefore, the federal laws and the federal officers selected to enforce those laws were the result of the votes of less than 7 per cent of the whole people. The other 93 per cent were made up first, of the women and children who cannot vote; second, of the aliens resident in the country who cannot vote; third, the seven millions who could vote and did not; fourth, the seven and one-half million who did vote, but did not vote for the successful candidate. For the last three and one-half years this 93 per cent have been under an obligation to obey laws which they had no agency in making and to which they did not consent. This is an easy arithmetical demonstration of the fact that therefore that if obedience to law were based on consent to the enactment of the law, in a republic or a democracy, we should have anarchy and not government. And yet no one can deny that peace and order as men are now constituted, depend upon obedience to law.

First Duty of Citizen.

"Therefore the first duty of a citizen is to obey the law, because it is a law, and because it represents the state which must be higher authority than any individual citizen and indeed higher authority than a majority of the people because under our system, considered from an arithmetical standpoint, the majority do not rule. Only a majority of the electorate rule, and they may take a different view from the majority of the people. In this respect, for the reasons I have heretofore given and possibly for other reasons, we seem to be falling away from the standard of respect for law that must be maintained if we are to be an effective government. Our children are not disciplined in the family as they used to be. They are not taught to treat their parents with the respect that they were once obliged to show. We have not thought it worth while to take the trouble to instruct and shape those whom we bring into the world and for whose character and usefulness in the community we are responsible. We consult their tastes and preferences too much. The kindergarten for children who have not reached an age of responsibility, and who are under six years, is a good thing, in that its methods are adapted to attract the child into attention to that which it is hoped he will study. His senses are gratified. He is amused in order that his intellectual process may be more or less stimulated.

FORMER PRESIDENT IS FORT WAYNE'S CENTENNIAL GUEST.

HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Mistake We Have Made.

"But the mistake we have made is in having introduced, or continued, kindergarten methods into the years of childhood and youth and budding manhood and womanhood when in order to frame character, discipline must be enforced. It is often a good reason for insisting that a boy or girl shall study a particular subject that he or she does not like the subject. It may and often does prove that this is the particular field for intellectual training that he or she should be compelled to enter and cultivate. There seems to have been encouraged in our public schools the idea that they are democracies and are to be controlled in their policies by the will of the pupils. We see this in the strikes of pupils against the removal of superintendents or of teachers who are favorites. Such rebellious attitude and disrespect for authority is encouraged by the foolish parents and the sensational newspapers. The children ought to be spanked and sent back to school and made to realize that the teachers who are put over them according to law are entitled to their obedience and respect because they are so appointed; that a school is not a democracy but a place for educating children and youth to become useful members of society and citizens of a democracy, and that they cannot become so unless they first learn the principles of obedience and respect for authority that lie at the basis of all successful governments and especially of the government of the people.

Error of Labor Leaders.

"We find the same error in the anxiety of labor leaders to prevent the enlistment and maintenance of an adequate militia or of a state constabulary because they think it will be used to suppress effectively disorder and lawless violence arising in labor controversies. Their course is merely an effort to prevent the enforcement of law by taking away the instrumentalities by which the officers of the law are to enforce it. It is really a reliance on force to accomplish economic victories rather than upon peaceful lawful methods.

Error of Labor Leaders.

"Nor is this lack of respect for law confined to wage earners. We find that it manifests itself among the rich in their efforts to evade taxes and among the great owners of corporate capital invested in railways and in large industrial enterprises. It was necessary to enact interstate commerce law to prevent unlawful discrimination by railroad companies in favor of large and rich shippers and against their smaller and poorer competitors.

"The railroads flouted the law and flaunted their disobedience in the eyes of the people. It took twenty years of amendments to make the law effective. So, too, the anti-trust law was enacted to prevent the abuses by combinations of the powerful to monopolize business and drive out of competition the smaller and weaker competitors. It took twenty years of prosecution and judicial decision to make that law effective.

Duty of the Majority.

"But while there is a duty on the part of all citizens to respect authority and obey the law, there is a corresponding quite as important duty on the part of the majority or plurality of the electorate to be broad, judicial, patriotic and unselfish in their regard for the welfare of all the people in deciding what the laws and governmental policy shall be. The justice of the law, its equity, the absence from it of tyrannical and arbitrary discriminations are ultimately the strength of the law and of the government that enforces it. Continued inequality and injustice in its operation, the granting of undue privileges to favored groups or persons, are certain in the end to create such bitterness in the minds of those unfairly treated by the operation of the law as to lead to rebellion against its authority, and this even though the group or class complaining are small as compared with the numerical strength of the remainder of the people. The majority of the electorate may not exceed 8 or 10 per cent of the whole people. They are not voting, when they vote, for themselves alone. This ballot is not for them to use in an arbitrary way. The ballot is not their property or an instrument with which to wreak vengeance to gratify their personal wish or enrich themselves unjustly at the expense of their fellows. They are representatives of the whole people in casting their ballots. Men who vote forget this. They often do not have clearly in their minds that they are merely acting as agents for all; that they are trustees upon whom rests the obligation of doing the best they can to preserve the trust which is in their hands, to wit, that of serving the welfare of the whole people. Unless they exercise this power that they have, equitably and justly, unless they restrain themselves from gratifying their personal desires and deal justly with those who are opposed to them politically, unless they approve measures as elect men constituting a government which, by and large, has only justice for its aim, then they will drive the minority of the electorate and possibly the majority of the people into revolution, and an instability of government will follow which will injure all.

Self-Restraint and Justice.

"In other words, the great duty of the electorate in a republic is to exercise self-restraint and to do justice to all in the votes cast. And this duty cannot be performed unless the voter realizes his responsibility to all the people and understands that it is not his government alone, that it is the government of his party alone, but it is the government of all who are entitled to live peaceably and prosperously and happily under the government and not to be discriminated against because they do not happen to belong to his party or his group.

"We do not have to look far for a confirmation of what I have said with respect to the necessity of obedience to law by all on the one hand and the exercise of justice and self-restraint by the controlling majority of the electorate on the other. Consider the history of some of the northern republics of South America. They are only so-called republics, and why? It is because with them popular government has been a failure. Why has it been a failure? The failure is proved by the revolutions that they have had. Their history has largely been a succession of new constitutions, elections and revolutions. What is the reason? When an election is held, those who are defeated take to the woods with rifles and begin an assault upon those successful in the election. Each government therefore maintains itself by force until it is overcome, and then others from the woods step into authority. The seat of the difficulty is said to be that the minority are bad losers in the election. This is only half the truth. The other half is that the majority are bad winners. Having won an electoral victory, they have shown by their course in the past and by what they do with the power they secure, that they believe that the government has been turned over to them for selfish enjoyment of the power conferred, that it is and should insure to their private personal benefit, and that the best way to dispose of the minority who do not agree with them is to imprison them or deprive them of their rights and property under the forms of law or indeed by direct invasion and forcible imprisonment.

Self-Government Is Character.

"Self-government, as President Wilson has said, is character. It is character that has been hammered out by discipline in the struggle for individual liberty and in the maintenance of it and in the recognition that general individual liberty cannot exist unless it is modified by respect for the rights of others and all obey the law.

"Popular government is a great boon to those who are fitted to enjoy it and so are able to enjoy it, but there are many people who have not been trained and educated sufficiently to understand it and carry it on successfully. Eighty per cent of the inhabitants of Mexico are the Indian people who cannot read or write. It is impossible to establish a successful popular government with universal adult male suffrage in such a country and hope to have it insure to the benefit of the people. The anarchy that now prevails in Mexico is an evidence of just what I say. We must look at these things with a broad vision and a clear understanding of what makes it possible for us to have the inestimable privilege of self-government and to preserve it. We must not be provincial to the point of thinking that all people are adapted to such a government, or that such a government is the best for all people when they are not fitted for it.

When Feeling Sways.

"But even among the most intelligent people there are times when justice and equity and fair dealing are departed from in the heat of partisan feeling and in the passionate emotion to which human nature, no matter how trained and cultivated, no matter how intelligent, is sometimes subject. A majority no matter how normally patriotic and just and equitable, may in moments of intense feeling be willing to adopt methods to achieve an end that are not just or fair to the minority or to the individual. Our ancestors knew this and knew when they were clothing the majority of the electorate with wide control over the affairs of the whole community and therefore over the welfare of the minority and the individual, that there was danger at times that the majority would forget the path of justice and depart from it. They therefore in a period of calm deliberation, when they considered only general principles and not the special instances so likely to arouse emotion, passion and prejudice, framed the constitution which besides providing for the organization of the government, imposed limitations upon its action which were in effect limitations upon the action of the majority of the electorate in favor of the minority and in protection of the rights of the individuals. They made these guarantees written, and they entrusted their interpretation and enforcement to a tribunal as independent of popular appeal and governmental control as possible. They vested in the supreme court the function and power to say what the limits of the action of the executive and legislative branches must be when dealing with the minority and in dealing with individuals. They thus deliberately imposed upon themselves as the people, restraints to keep themselves within the path of justice in exercising the power of government. We have lived under such constitution for 125 years, and we have vindicated to the world the rule of the people by the restraining use of the written constitution and its enforcement by an independent judiciary. These two things have secured us against the defects and passions of human nature and a departure from equity and fair dealing in the exercise of governmental power, and this result is what has given solidarity and permanence to government and has retained the support of all in the maintenance of lawful authority.

Hasty Action Unsafe.

"I wish to emphasize the fact that this written constitution providing just limitations for the exercise of governmental authority toward minorities and individuals was adopted and can only be adopted in the nature of things by the people in periods of calm deliberation, that hasty action in the adoption of such fundamental law is unsafe, unconservative and inconsistent with any wise theory of government organization.

Error of Judicial Recall.

"Herein is the fundamental error made by those who advocated the recall of judicial decisions and the recall of judges. Their argument was that people made constitutions and people understand how they ought to be enforced. Therefore, if courts enforced them, with a different result from that which the people intended, in particular cases, it was the right that the people should accordingly be given an opportunity at once to reverse the decisions of the courts and set aside their erroneous interpretations. Such a view ignores entirely the fact that these self-restraints in a written constitution are useful and effective because they are imposed when the people are in a deliberative state of mind as embodying general principles, in order to control the people and restrain them when they are aroused to passionate decision by particular instances involving personal emotion and partisan prejudices. The secret of the power and force and usefulness of a written constitution is in the fact that it is to be interpreted by an independent tribunal and not by the people in heat and emotion. A history of the supreme court of the United States will prove what I have said by reference to many cases in which at the time of the decision of the supreme court the people have differed from the action of the court and yet ultimately have acquiesced and never disturbed its interpretation.

"There are instances of course in which the people having found what the judicial interpretation of the constitution was changed the constitution in due and orderly method after a deliberation of a decade or more. That was the case with the question of the validity of an income tax levied without apportionment according to the population of the states. It is true that those opposed to slavery did not acquiesce in the justice of the Dred Scott decision, but it is also true that the war which ended slavery and reversed the Dred Scott decision was begun not by those opposed to slavery and differed with the court, but by those who upheld the decision. On the whole the history of the supreme court will show a remarkable acquiescence by the people in the decisions of the court, even though at the time of rendition the feeling may have been bitter and hot against it.

Need of Self-Restraint.

"But even within the discretionary power that is vested in a majority of the electorate the members of the electorate must themselves exercise great self-restraint. No constitution in a free government can so limit the majority that the majority may not constitutionally do gross injustice to the minority and to individuals, and if the republic is to endure, there must be cultivated in the minds of the ruling majority, the necessity for their being good winners by the wise, prudent and just exercise of the power which winning at an election gives them.

"Thomas Jefferson and Herbert Spencer advocated a system of government in which its functions should be limited to the administration of justice and the maintenance of proper police. Jefferson was in favor of a system of public education and led it. But he was very much opposed to a general paternalism. Spencer went further and opposed even education at the public expense, thinking that it ought to be left to private initiative and maintenance. We have long ago departed from any such restricted view of the proper functions of government, and we are engaged in fraternalism and paternalism to an extent that would have shocked many of our ancestors. It has seemed to the people that the government was fitted by reason of its great resources through the taxing power and the machinery that it must have in exercising many of its functions to do things that have heretofore been done through private enterprise if done at all, with more effectiveness than by individuals.

Too Much Good for Gain.

"In the last decade, too, we have been haunted by the conviction that in the generation just ended we have given too much time and absorbing thought to the accumulation of wealth and the chase for the dollar and that we should now occupy ourselves more than heretofore in encouraging those who have fallen behind in the race and who have not shared in the general prosperity. Politicians have seized upon this movement to be generous at the government expense in measures of doubtful wisdom. They have entered the field of social improvement by unduly restrictive legislation and are in danger of injuring the independence of personal initiative and of losing the force and impetus that have been the pride of America in her sons and daughters. Again undue paternalism because of excessive taxation to which it necessarily leads, will burden the industries and discourage the energy of capital and reduce the wage fund for the thrifty and prudent and industrious in order to benefit the lazy, the shiftless, the imprudent and the unfortunate. In this way the majority with a false generosity may do injustice to those valuable members of the community, the wage earners, whose prudential virtues make continued progress possible.

Injustice Is Taxation.

"Again there seems to be a tendency among legislatures today to find a means of only taxing the wealthy and relieving those of moderate or limited means from paying any of the expenses of government. We have seen this illustrated in the income tax. I fully approve the principle of graduating the income tax so as to make those with the larger incomes pay toward the expense of the government not only a larger amount but at a larger rate per cent, but I think it is a bad principle adopted merely for political reasons, which exempts from the same tax, however small the rate, incomes under $3,000 a year. It was avowed in congress that the reason why the exemption was put so high and was not carried down to $1,000 or $500 a year was because those responsible for the law were afraid it would lose them and their party votes. The danger of such a plan is that it takes away from the great body of the people who are in the exempt class a lack of interest in governmental expenses and a lack of responsibility in scrutinizing governmental extravagance. If a man pays a tax, no matter how small, the human nature in him urges him to question how the fund to which he has contributed has been expended, and it creates in the electorate a desire for economy in government that is indispensable unless we go into bankruptcy.

All in the Same Boat.

"Growing out of a just feeling on the part of the people that during the generation just ended we have been in great danger of corporate and corrupt government and a plutocracy, there has been aroused an hostility to corporations and to accumulated wealth generally which has made politicians feel that the way to popular approval and preferment is by bitter attack and unjust dealing with all corporations and with all business success. I am hopeful that there has been a reaction from this spirit, but it existed long enough and was intense enough to put on the statute book a number of laws entirely unjust and likely to disturb honest business and to injure the welfare of all.

"We are all in the same boat and any class legislation that gives undue privilege to one or imposes undue restrictions upon another, ultimately and inevitably injures the whole body, public and social. I am an optimist. There is, as I have said, a reaction from many of those injurious tendencies which I have pointed out, and it seems to me that that reaction may be stimulated by examining and emphasizing the fundamental truths that lie at the foundation of our success as a republic and our vindication of the rule of the people as the best source of government when the people are trained to obedience to law and to self-restraint in its adoption and in its enforcement."

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN IS HELD FOR THEFT

Mrs. Philomena Rosselot, of Third street, widow of the late Fred P. Rosselot, a veteran saloonkeeper and politician, was charged in the city court Thursday morning with larceny and her hearing was continued until Saturday. She has given bond of $500 for her appearance. Mrs. Rosselot's arrest, which has greatly shocked a wide circle of acquaintances, was made late Wednesday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Peter Junk and Detective Shaffer, of the Cincinnati police headquarters, on West Wayne street, after she had committed a robbery in the store of Gates & Co., West Berry street, and another at Stillman's Grand Leader, Calhoun and Wayne streets. Complaint first came from Gates' store, where the pocketbook of a lady customer was stolen from the counter and was later found rifled in the toilet room. A description of the suspected thief was obtained and she was traced to Stillman's. After leaving that store she was questioned by the officers, who learned her name and took her to the Gates store, where she was identified as having been a short time before. The money stolen there was found in her purse and she had a purse taken at Stillman's. She confessed that she had repeatedly committed robberies in this way.

FAVOR MORE WALKING STEPS.

Dancing Masters Urge Opportunity for Conversation.

New York, June 8.—Dancing masters attending their annual convention here have decided to encourage their pupils in the practice of more walking steps in learning modern dances. The purpose is to give the dancers a better opportunity for conversation. "Heretofore dancers have been so intent upon thinking what steps are coming next that they have no opportunity to talk to their partners," said Charles McCrea, of Philadelphia. "The mental strain of trying to remember how to dance has been so great that it has been impossible to think of anything else. It is this condition we are fighting."

WOMEN TAKE IMPORTANT PART IN CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Fort Wayne women worked as hard as the men to make the Centennial celebration a success. In the upper pictures, left to right, are the following girls who came to the Woman's building in the attire of their grandmothers Wednesday: Miss Virginia Carey, Miss Marie Landenberger, Miss Irma Cole, Miss Maribel Olds, Miss Phyllis Kendall, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Miss Dorothy Dietzer and Miss Margaret Hanna. Miss Lavon Sperry, on the right, was dressed as an Indian and in that costume entertained the guests. In the lower row are teachers, pupils and patronesses of the vocational school girls' exhibit.

WILL GIVE CAMP MEMORIAL

Alumni of Culver End Training and Provide for Monument.

Culver, Ind., June 8.—After stacking arms for dismissal, the eighty alumni who have been in a military training camp here for a week, announced that they had raised money to erect on the Culver academy grounds a suitable memorial to the first alumni camp. The monument will be selected after a consultation with the trustees and superintendent. E. R. Culver accepted the proposed monument on behalf of the trustees and announced that the board would double the contribution by the alumni.

Colonel Gignilhat complimented the alumni on their spirit in the strenuous work of the camp and on the results achieved, expressing the belief that the success of the first camp would insure its repetition and cause other institutions to follow Culver's lead.

The reception at the Woman's building at 4 o'clock this afternoon, at which time the public was invited to meet former President W. H. Taft, Gov. Ralston and other notables was a beautiful affair. There was keen disappointment because of the inability of Mrs. Ralston and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall to be present, but there were a number of other guests. In the receiving line were, in addition to the Fort Wayne women and Mr. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson and son and Mr. Wallace Rice, whose work in the Fort Wayne pageant has endeared them to hundreds of citizens; Miss Frances Rice, Mr. Rice's sister, and Father John Cavanaugh, of Notre Dame university. The Fort Wayne women receiving were the committee of whom Mrs. W. M. McKinnin was the chairman, and included besides Mrs. McKinnin, Mesdames C. S. Knight, S. C. Lumbard, W. H. W. Peltier, C. R. Fairbank, M. B. Fisher, C. D. Gorham, F. J. Hayden, S. B. Fleming, Newton Gilbert, H. C. Paul, J. H. Bass, P. A. Hamilton, R. A. Magee and Miss Sadie Fleming. The reception room was a beautiful spot, for the high window sills were just the place for baskets of flowers, so large they gave a genuine "color scheme" of pink, white and green, all around the two sides of the room that formed a background for the receiving party. Tall brown wicker baskets were filled with branches of syringa, peonies and long stemmed snapdragon blossoms and besides there were few jardiinieres filled with peonies so that even with many people in the room the decorations were still very noticeable and were the subject of many admiring remarks. A punch was served by another committee of ladies and music was near enough to contribute to the pleasure of the visitors. The building was thronged and every room of the woman's display was seen and admired. The assisting ladies were Mesdames Margaret Olds, C. E. Bond, A. E. Nelson, W. K. Noble, A. E. Fauve, J. W. White, Russell Hawkins, H. R. Freeman, Sam Wolf E. H. Olds, W. M. Griffin, M. C. Norton, Lawrence Eberbach, Hal Behrer, C. J. Schno, Austin Stults, Roger Fisher, Otto Bruggerman, Mrs. F. H. McCulloch, Mrs. E. E. Stouder, Mrs. E. G. Hoffman, Miss MacDougal and Mesdames Josephine Dinnen, Alice Knight, Phyllis Randall, Georgiana Bond, Julia Snyder, Virginia Carey, Dorothy Dietzer, Alma Dreier, Helen Peters.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sherron, of Cleveland, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Studer. Mrs. Sherron is a home comer who first settled in this city in 1854.

John Reuss comes home from Notre Dame university, on Thursday, to remain over the week-end, and is accompanied by a college friend.

Miss Rosetta Wenstrup, of Cincinnati, has arrived for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Dietrich Meyer, of West Wayne street.

Herman Rensler, of Notre Dame university, is coming here on Thursday to spend a few days at the home of Miss Bertha Stille.

Mrs. C. J. Sanger and son, of Detroit, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Striker, of South Calhoun street. Mr. Sanger is to join his family later in the week.

Mrs. H. L. Archbold, of South Pasadena, Cal., is in the city visiting relatives and friends and the guest of her mother, Mrs. Edward Miller, 215 East Lewis street.

Miss Velma Bueckner and Miss Beatrice Hamlett have returned from Chicago, where they have been attending school. Miss Hamlett will spend the week in the city and will then return to her home in Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. B. W. Kovar is in Toledo, O., for a few days attending commencement exercises of the Law-Proebel Kindergarten Training school from which her daughter, Miss Esther, will be graduated this month.

Dr. A. K. Zartman celebrated his birth anniversary Thursday and his daughter and her husband, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Dieffenbach, of Bluffton, and Dr. C. E. Zartman, of Winona Lake, came to spend the day and assist Rev. Zartman in an observance of the anniversary.

Mrs. W. E. Lipsett, Mrs. J. R. Meriwether, Misses Jane Meriwether and James Meriwether, Boyd Lipsett and "Gala week" at Purdue university, from which James Meriwether and Ruth McClure were graduated Wednesday.

Mrs. H. W. Luhnman, of West Main street, entertained a few friends on Wednesday afternoon at the New Palace hotel, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Oscar Miller, of Milwaukee. The company spent a delightful time.

The Fort Wayne Normal school invites the public to its flower festival at 3:30 o'clock next Saturday, which will take place in Lakeside park. The queen chosen this year will be crowned by Miss Gladys Becker, the queen of the previous year. There will be a program of singing, dancing and dramatization.

Dr. Ray G. Manchester, a son of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Manchester, of this city, was graduated from the Kirkville, Mo., College of Osteopathy last Saturday and has arrived in the city for a short visit with his parents. Roy C. Manchester, another son, from Greenville, Ky., has also come home for a visit. The latter young man is secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The S. M. T. club members were entertained recently at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meyer, when the members gave a shower on their sister, Miss Frances Brase, who is to wed this month. There was an elegant luncheon and a beautiful decoration of spring flowers. Progressive bureau was the amusement, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Mahala Drewett. Other guests were Agnes and Edna Meyer, Edna Gutermuth, Fern Ashton, Bertha Imbody, Elsie Ulrich, Mrs. Frieda Vocker, Mrs. Mahala Drewett, Mrs. Lena Miller and Miss Brase, who assisted Mrs. Meyer in serving.

Miss Violet Fields is receiving considerable attention in the way of pre-nuptial parties and there have been two this week. On Tuesday evening Miss May Staub and Miss Lilla Fields united in entertaining for Miss Fields at the home of Miss Staub in Fairfield avenue. When the guests arrived they were supplied with sewing materials and asked to make lovely silk sachet bags for the bride-elect. After that agreeable pastime there was a guessing contest and then refreshments in the diningroom with yellow roses for decoration and tempting things to eat and drink carried out in the same coloring, yellow and white. Miss Fields received a beautiful gift from her two hosts.

A delightful time was spent on Monday evening at the home of Miss Edna Gutermuth, of Oakland street, in honor of Miss Frances Brase, a bride-to-be of this month. A number of beautiful gifts were presented to her. The rooms looked extremely pretty with decorations of bride roses and ferns. A luncheon was served at a prettily decorated table, with the color scheme executed in pink and white. A large white bell hung over the table and pink table cloths were tied to dainty baskets of nuts, used also as favors. The guests were members of the S. M. T. embroidery club, and are Miss Gutermuth, Miss Bertha Imbody, Mrs. Lena Miller, Mrs. Frieda Voelker, Miss Brase; guests from out of town were: Miss Margaret Rader, of Muncie, Miss Emily Billman, of Pittsburg, who are visiting Miss Gutermuth, and Miss Dorothy Smith, of Logansport, and Miss Lola Ford, of Morley, Mich. The prizes were won by Miss Lena Miller, Miss Rager and Miss Brase.

Schaefer-Harmeyer.

A beautiful home wedding took place on June 1, at the home of Mrs. Caroline Harmeyer, when her youngest daughter, Pauline, was united in marriage to William Schaefer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Schaefer. Rev. Paul Miller, of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiated. The bride looked very pretty in a bridal gown of crepe de chine, with an overdraped of marquisette and trimmings of silver lace. Her veil was festooned with bride roses and swansonia, and she carried a shaver bouquet of roses and swansonia. Miss Hanna Schaefer was maid of honor and she made a pretty appearance in a gown of white with yellow girdle, slip-on and flowers. Miss Charlotte Bachelier was in white with pink girdle and slippers, and Miss Louise Schaefer, another bridesmaid, wore white, with blue accessories. Messrs. Fred Schaefer and Arthur Bachelier were groomsmen. There were nearly three hundred guests present. A beautiful supper was served.

Stock-Schmidt.

A wedding of much interest to many friends of both bride and groom took place on Sunday, June 4, when Miss Clara Schmidt and Rev. Walter Stock were united in marriage by the father of the groom, Rev. S. I. Stock, at 2:30 o'clock at the church. The bride was attended by Misses Martha Schmidt and Emma Meyer and the bridegroom by Messrs. Walter Niemeier and Ed Moeller. The ushers were Messrs. Will Niemeier and Harry Moeller. The bride made a very sweet appearance in a white gown of satin and her veil was caught to her hair with a wreath of flowers. The bridal bouquet was composed of white roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in white and their flowers were bouquets of pink and white sweetpeas. At the reception and dinner after the church service, held at the bride's home, about two hundred guests participated. Rev. Mr. Stock and his bride are to leave very soon for their home in Alberta, Canada, where he is in charge of a Lutheran parish. They received the heartiest of congratulations from their many friends.

Lampe-Schmidt.

A beautiful wedding took place on

Sunday afternoon, June 4, at 2 o'clock, in St. Peter's Lutheran church, when Miss Alma Lampe, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lampe, became the bride of Mr. Daniel Schmidt, a son of Mrs. O. Schmidt, of Putney, O. Rev. A. C. Doerflinger performed the ceremony in the presence of many relatives and friends of both bride and groom. The bride was beautifully gowned in a white crepe de chine made with satin and silver trimmings. The bride wore a veil fashioned in cap effect that was fastened to her hair with a cluster of swansonia blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses and a shower of ribbon and swansonia. Miss Dorothy Baral, a cousin to the bride, was maid of honor and wore a handsome gown of pale green crepe de chine with trimmings of tiny pink rosebuds and her flowers were pink carnations. The bridesmaids were Misses Josephine Schmidt, sister to the groom, and Bertha Goeglein. Miss Schmidt wore a pink silk voile and Miss Goeglein wore a blue gown of the same material. Both dresses were trimmed with lace and taffeta and both maids held pink carnations and wore swansonia blossoms in their hair. Mr. Edwin Lampe, brother to the bride, and Mr. Paul Richter were groomsmen. The house was beautifully decorated with white wedding bells, and many peonies, lilies and roses. A reception to relatives and friends was held in the afternoon at the home of the bride on the Hicksville road. There were about 225 guests. An orchestra furnished music during the afternoon and evening. Guests from away were the groom's mother, Mrs. G. Schmidt, of Pomeroy, O.; Mrs. J. Hildinger and children, of Novelty, O. Both bride and groom are highly esteemed by all who know them. For the present the bride and groom will make their home with the bride's parents.

TIME, PLACE AND THE GIRL.

Dressed in faultless attire, the favorite little comedy with lyrics, "The Time, Place and the Girl," is being given a lavish production by the Boyle Woolfolk musical comedy company at the New Palace this week. Fresh from an extended tour as a road company, the LaSalle entourage, is welcoming its six week engagement in Fort Wayne as a vacation and the fact is manifest in the zealous enthusiasm with which the lassies of the chorus and the principals enter into their work. The bright, snappy musical numbers, with which the comedy is invested, are amplified by several selections rendered by the LaSalle quartet of male voices and a number of interesting dance specialties are introduced by Harrie Lee, the dainty little ingenue.

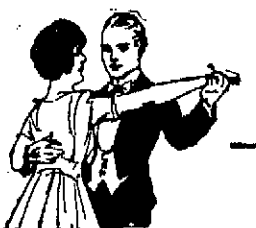

It is a typical Boyle Woolfolk company, brimming over with youth and the splendid beauty of fresh young health, which Mr. Woolfolk has found the American public peculiarly susceptible to. Opening next Monday evening the company will present the recent hit, "The Girl Question." This week daily dime matinees are being given, starting immediately after the parades.

ATTENTION MOOSE!

All Moose members are requested to meet at Moose home at 1 p. m. Saturday, June 10th, to participate in the Fraternal parade.

BIG FETE BREAKS
COURTS' BUSINESS

Centennial Affairs Put a Perfect Muffler on the Sound of Trouble.

Fort Wayne's big centennial fete put an almost complete muffler on the noise of human strife in the Allen county courts, Thursday. There was nothing. No new suits were filed and the circuit court did practically nothing with old ones. Another half holiday was taken by the whole body of officialdom. Thursday afternoon, but the building was open and hundreds of visitors from out of town inspected the beautiful structure.

NOTES OF THE COURTS.

The circuit court has reduced to $300 the bond of Walter Wedlaw, negro restaurant keeper charged with keeping a blind tiger. Wedlaw was convicted in the city court and given a heavy fine and sentenced to the penitentiary, whereupon he took an appeal to the circuit court in which tribunal he was fined last April and given a suspended jail sentence on a similar charge.

LICENSED TO WED.

J. Earle Black, farmer, and Irene M. Curtis.
William H. Lange, machine hand, and Alice A. Menschen.
George R. Wilden, farmer, and Constance A. Hartle.
Robert E. Anderson, clerk, and Caroline Boegel.

HILBORN.

Seized with a coughing spell while at the supper table at the home of his sister, Mrs. O. C. Brewer, of 629 East Wayne street, George Hilborn, of Chicago, died shortly afterward before medical aid could arrive. Mr. Hilborn, who was visiting here, started to cough during the course of the evening meal and with the help of Mr. Brewer left the house. When he arrived in the back yard he began coughing blood and a hemorrhage of the lungs caused death a few minutes later.

Dr. Harrod, who lives near by, was summoned, but when he arrived all signs of life were extinct. The deceased had been visiting at his sister's home for the past two weeks and was in poor health. He had been here seven weeks last fall, but returned to Chicago, thinking that his health had improved to such an extent that he could again go to work. However his condition became worse and he returned to this city.

Besides the sister, at whose home he died, he is survived by another sister, Mrs. A. K. Reed, of Marion.

The deceased was a member of the Red Men's lodge, of the Loyal Order of Moose and the Painters' union of Chicago.

The body was shipped to Marion for burial Thursday afternoon.

SMITH.

Mrs. Beatrice A. Smith, wife of Eugene Smith, died Wednesday evening at St. Joseph's hospital at the age of twenty-three years. The deceased was born and reared in Portland and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hearn, of that city. She had resided in Fort Wayne for the past three years and was a member of the Amaranth circle of the Crescent avenue Evangelical church.

Besides the husband and the parents she is survived by a daughter, aged ten days, four brothers, Wendell, Everett, John and Francis Hearn; one sister, Mildred Hearn, of Portland; one step-brother, Roy Miller, of Gary, and a step-sister, Mrs. Konelekken, of Portland.

Private funeral services Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, Rev. C. E. Boyer officiating. Interment at Lindenwood.

Friends may view the remains until Friday noon.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Roussey.—Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Roussey will be held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the residence, 1010 Erie street, and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church. Interment at New Haven Catholic cemetery.

Cutshall.—Funeral services for Mrs. Angeline M. Cutshall will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, Rev. Overdeer and Rev. Grist officiating.

Frazier.—Funeral services for Charles Frazier will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 at Schone & Ankenbruck's parlors.

witted as permanent chairman of the progressive convention. No ballots were cast for any other official. Half an hour before the progressive convention was scheduled to assemble, not more than one hundred persons were present. A band played to the empty house.

Little Excitement at Outset.

Although a routine program, including permanent organization, adoption of rules and a platform was the political menu when today's session of the progressive convention opened at 2 p. m. another demonstration for Col. Roosevelt like yesterday's record breaker was thought possible. In marked contrast to the opening session, there was little excitement as the delegates assembled this afternoon. Few delegations marched in en masse and both the delegates and spectators gathered slowly.

Before the convention opened the small crowd of delegates started the enthusiasm by cheering and standing while the band played patriotic airs. Small knots of delegates gathered to earnestly debate when nominations should be made.

Only Way to Stop Rain.

Three straight days of rain did not appear to have dampened the pre-Roosevelt ardor of delegates who sang "Teddy" songs and cheered Col. Roosevelt frequently while the crowds were filing in.

As they marched into the hall the Massachusetts delegation introduced a new song, the burden of which was that "it will never stop raining until we nominate T. R."

Ramond Robins received a telegram from Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, (democrat) extending congratulations on his speech yesterday as temporary chairman, and proposing "if the progressives fail to purge the republican party of old guard control" that the progressive republicans will join with progressive democrats "and exchange prisoners."

The regular midweek meeting of the board of works, Thursday evening, will be marked by an absence of kickers and a light schedule of routine matters. There are no hearings booked, but the engineering department may have a plat for the vacation of Greeley street ready for the board's consideration. Centennial week has had the effect of making the routine of affairs rather easy in the city building.

NO FORMAL RENEWAL MADE.

The board of works has not received any formal renewal of the offer made some weeks ago by Messrs. Brothers & Johnson, of Cleveland, to dispose of the city's collected garbage at 50 cents a ton, though the board has been informed that the offer will continue to stand. The board has received other proposals along the same line that it considers more advantageous, if for any reason the project to build a new municipal garbage plant should be abandoned.

THE BIRTH RECORD.

To Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammill, 523 Hough street—a girl.

To Mr. and Mrs. Rhone Zimmerman, 456 Beltz street—a boy.

AUTOMOBILE MISSING.

It was reported to police headquarters at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon that a five-passenger Reo touring car belonging to Samuel Weaver, and bearing Indiana license number 17895, had been taken from in front of the Anthony hotel. All cities and towns within fifty miles of Fort Wayne were notified at once by telephone to look out for the car.

YOUNG LIPPES IS AGAIN IN TROUBLE

Fort Wayne police headquarters has received word that Robert Lippes, aged 16, of 115 Masterson avenue, is under arrest in Michigan charged with stealing an automobile. Lippes was one of a gang of youngsters run to ground here, some three weeks ago, by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel and made to confess a series of automobile thefts. Lippes and Merritt Monroe, aged 17, of 2707 Lillie street, were fined $25 and costs and given suspended jail sentences by the circuit court, for unlawful possession of an automobile. Lippes, Monroe and some other lads were concerned in the theft of cars belonging to Henry C. Pequin and John Wilding, of this city, and Henry Roth, of Gracill. All the cars were recovered. They were prosecuted for taking the Pequinot car.

FORD STOLEN NEAR PAGEANT.

Joseph Hartman, 1049 Tennessee avenue, reports to police headquarters that his Ford car, bearing Indiana license number 13831, was stolen shortly after midnight from the place where it had been parked at Clinton and Sutherland streets, near the pageant grounds.

MR. TAFT ARRIVES.

Ex-President Taft was met at the Pennsylvania station at 10:25 o'clock by Hon. Newton W. Gilbert, former vice governor of the Philippine Islands, who is here on a short visit; Hon. Samuel M. Foster and Chairman E. C. Miller.

As he was escorted from the station to the waiting automobile he faced a battery of camera men including the cinema operators that are filming the pageant as a permanent record of Fort Wayne's celebration. The famous Taft smile was very much in evidence.

Speaks to School Children.

The distinguished visitor was taken north on Calhoun street to the south side of the court house on Berry street, where a chorus of over 1,000 school children greeted him with waving of flags and cheer after cheer. After the demonstration had subsided Mr. Taft spoke as follows:

"I greet you with congratulations that you are Americans. I don't have to ask you if Fort Wayne is prosperous here before me it is a demonstration of it. As I am to speak again, I will not tire you with a speech at this time. Good-bye and God bless you."

As the ex-president's car moved slowly away the children sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He was taken direct to the dedicatory exercises of the marker at Harman's ford, Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, Lakeside, where he spoke briefly. From there he was taken to the home of Hon. Samuel M. Foster, on Fairfield avenue, where he was entertained at lunch. During his stay in the city he was entertained at Mr. Foster's home.

Mr. Taft, following his afternoon address, paid a visit to the Woman's building, where he was received by a committee headed by Mrs. W. M. McKinnie.

This evening he will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Anthony hotel, following a reception there.

Roosevelt as willing to come to Chicago if the republican convention wanted him to address it, was handed to Chairman Harding. He showed it to Senator Borah, Murray Crane, Charles D. Hilles and it was then passed around to others. Senator Harding had no comment to make, but Senator Borah said:

"If I were sure that Roosevelt actually said that himself, I would be in favor of inviting him here."

ONLY PASSING INTEREST.

Chicago, June 8.—Col. Roosevelt's telegram created only passing interest among progressive leaders.

"The republicans won't invite him to address them," Gov. Johnson commented laughingly. "Why the republicans even are afraid to have Roosevelt's name mentioned in their convention," said George Von L. Meyer.

"I greet you with congratulations that you are Americans. I don't have to ask you if Fort Wayne is prosperous here before me it is a demonstration of it. As I am to speak again, I will not tire you with a speech at this time. Good-bye and God bless you."

As the ex-president's car moved slowly away the children sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He was taken direct to the dedicatory exercises of the marker at Harman's ford, Edgewater avenue and Dearborn street, Lakeside, where he spoke briefly. From there he was taken to the home of Hon. Samuel M. Foster, on Fairfield avenue, where he was entertained at lunch. During his stay in the city he was entertained at Mr. Foster's home.

Mr. Taft, following his afternoon address, paid a visit to the Woman's building, where he was received by a committee headed by Mrs. W. M. McKinnie.

This evening he will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Anthony hotel, following a reception there.

WILL GO TO CHICAGO IF REPUBLICANS WANT HIM TO ADDRESS THEM

the rules committee was being read to the republican convention an Associated Press dispatch from Oyster Bay, quoting Col. Roosevelt as willing to come to Chicago if the republican convention wanted him to address it, was handed to Chairman Harding. He showed it to Senator Borah, Murray Crane, Charles D. Hilles and it was then passed around to others. Senator Harding had no comment to make, but Senator Borah said:

"If I were sure that Roosevelt actually said that himself, I would be in favor of inviting him here."

ONLY PASSING INTEREST.

Chicago, June 8.—Col. Roosevelt's telegram created only passing interest among progressive leaders.

"The republicans won't invite him to address them," Gov. Johnson commented laughingly. "Why the republicans even are afraid to have Roosevelt's name mentioned in their convention," said George Von L. Meyer.

Charles A. Horton and Mrs. C. L. Biedercroft.

In the Foremost Cars.

Those who occupied the first seven cars were the following:

First car—Dr. Enrick, marshal of the parade; Mr. Biedercroft, Mr. Martin, two policemen.

Second car—Former President William H. Taft, Mrs. A. E. Faive, chairman; Edward Miller and Mayor W. J. Hosey.

Third car—Prof. Woodburn, of Indiana university; Prof. Lindley, of Earlham college; Newton W. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Foster.

Fourth car—W. C. Langdon, of Indianapolis, pageant master of the capital city; H. McK. Landon, chairman state pageant committee; Prof. W. C. Woodward, Indianapolis; Miss Elliott, assistant to Prof. Woodward; Paul Mossman.

Fifth car—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson and son, Mrs. E. C. Miller, Dr. C. E. Barnett.

Sixth car—Mr. Wallace Rice, Miss Frances Rice and Miss Flora Wilber.

Seventh car—Mr. and Mrs. James B. Craukshaw and Mrs. Henry A. Brock, of Indianapolis, state regent for the D. A. R.

MR. TAFT ARRIVES.

Ex-President Taft was met at the Pennsylvania station at 10:25 o'clock by Hon. Newton W. Gilbert, former vice governor of the Philippine Islands, who is here on a short visit; Hon. Samuel M. Foster and Chairman E. C. Miller.

As he was escorted from the station to the waiting automobile he faced a battery of camera men including the cinema operators that are filming the pageant as a permanent record of Fort Wayne's celebration. The famous Taft smile was very much in evidence.

Speaks to School Children.

The distinguished visitor was taken north on Calhoun street to the south side of the court house on Berry street, where a chorus of over 1,000 school children greeted him with waving of flags and cheer after cheer. After the demonstration had subsided Mr. Taft spoke as follows:

"I greet you with congratulations that you are Americans. I don't have to ask you if Fort Wayne is prosperous here before me it is a demonstration of it. As I am to speak again, I will not tire you with a speech at this time. Good-bye and God bless you."

BREACH AT CHICAGO WIDENS; 2 TICKETS NOW SEEM CERTAIN

Chicago, June 8.—As political leaders gathered for the second day's sessions of the republican and progressive national conventions it became more and more apparent that there would be two tickets in the field.

Victor Murdock, chairman of the progressive national committee, summed up the whole situation when he said today: "Well, we left the door open and the the convention will adjourn before Saturday. Ostensibly the session will be prolonged to give more deliberate consideration than is usual to a nomination for second place, but the real purpose, it is believed, is to avoid adjournment before the progressive convention has acted.

Not Before Saturday.
The progressive convention probably will not nominate before Saturday. There will be only a few hours' session today and that will be devoted to platform making and other routine. The delegates are confident that on Saturday they will name as their ticket Roosevelt and Johnson, their standard-bearers of four years ago.

While there has been little real discussion by republicans of vice-presidential possibilities and it is recognized that geographical conditions and political expediency will govern considerable talk was heard today indicating that there might be concentration on either former most support has been gathered. There are some among the progressives and among Roosevelt republicans as well who still believe that the colonel himself could save the day if he would come to Chicago. Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, who was defeated for republican delegate at large from Massachusetts on a Roosevelt ticket pleaded with progressive leaders to bring Col. Roosevelt on without delay.

Roosevelt Reply Later.
Word came from Oyster Bay, however, that Col. Roosevelt had received the telegram from Republican National Committeeman Jackson, of Maryland, sent yesterday urging him to come here in the interest of harmony. While the colonel announced it was not his present intention to accept the invitation he would make public his reply later, and he did not indicate what its tenor would be.

didate for the short term as United States senator, and Elwood Haynes, of Kokomo, was nominated for the long term in the senate. The platform was adopted and a state ticket selected. The remainder of the state ticket follows:

Lieutenant governor, Albert Stanley, Indianapolis; secretary of state, Ransom Pope, Elkhart; auditor of state, Harry Peacock, Union City; treasurer of state, A. W. Benham, Crothersville; attorney general, T. E. Ballard, Crawfordsville; superintendent of public instruction, E. A. Devore, Indianapolis; reporter of supreme court, F. Agnew Gillespie, Indianapolis; chief of bureau of statistics, Mrs. Laura B. Leonard, Indianapolis; judges of supreme court, John H. Parker, of Greensburg, and Benjamin F. Watson, of Indianapolis; judges of appellate court, A. T. Riley, of Greencastle, and Albert B. Kirkpatrick, of Kokomo.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE STILL KEEPING BUSY

Chicago, June 8.—Suffrage activities today will be marked with a public reception tendered the National American Woman's association at the new municipal pier by the Illinois Equal Suffrage association. The national association will also hold informal meetings throughout the day and the congressional union for woman suffrage will hold sessions and informal meetings.

The climax of the suffrage activities came yesterday in the parade in which more than 5,000 suffragists braved a rain and wind storm to march to the Coliseum, where leaders presented to the resolutions committee of the convention a petition.

OHIO STUDENT GETS IT.

Lafayette, Ind., June 8.—Paul L. Walker, of Canton, Ohio, was awarded the western conference gold medal for combined excellence in scholarship and athletics during his four years at Purdue university. He won his varsity letter in three branches of sport and is a member of the honorary engineering fraternity, Tau Beta Pi.

SAYS HE WAS HELD IN DETENTION CAMP

Lured from Buffalo Over the Canadian Line, is the Charge Made.

New York, June 8.—Eugene Stitz, 23 years old, told the officers of the Hebrew sheltering home for immigrants today that he had been lured from Buffalo over the Canadian line and interned for nine months in a Canadian detention camp. Stitz, who arrived here last night, said he had walked from Buffalo in twenty-six days.

He declared that he had served for three years in the German army and that he came to America in 1914 and obtained work in a dye works at Buffalo. While he was employed there, he said, a stranger offered him a better position in "another neighboring town" and Stitz accepted it. After a ride of about an hour on a train they alighted and Stitz was seized by six men and taken to a barracks where, he said, he was kept a prisoner of war and made to scrub floors and clean the officers' quarters. He said he thought this was in Toronto.

Stitz asserted that he was released after he had convinced the officers that he was a Rumanian. He rode a freight back to Buffalo, but remained there only two hours. "I was afraid they would catch me and take me back to Canada," he added.

REMAINS ARE CREMATED.

The remains of Mrs. Ellen Bittenger, wife of Lawrence Bittenger, of 833 Washington boulevard west, who died Tuesday at the family home, were cremated Wednesday. The ashes were placed in a copper box and buried in Lindenwood near the resting place of her mother, who will be remembered as Mrs. Mary Baker.

Mrs. Julia M. Stapleford and Mrs. J. H. Orr, sisters of the deceased, who were here to attend the funeral left Wednesday evening for their home in Colorado Springs, Col.

Lafayette Place Company Builds Tennis Courts

Four of what are probably the finest tennis courts in the city have been laid out in Lafayette Place, one of the newest restricted additions of the city, which is located on South Calhoun street, squarely in the path of Fort Wayne's great southward growth.

These new courts are of macadam construction, and are a part of the Lafayette Place Company's plans for the improvement of the addition, which include the building of a $5,000.00 community club house, playgrounds for children, a 210 foot street that will be called Lafayette Esplanade and will be the broadest street in the city. For further particulars see the Wildwood Sales company, Sheaff Building, or any member of the Real Estate Exchange.

MANUEL, SHORN OF HIS TITLE BY WOMAN, REGAINS ANOTHER ON TENNIS COURT.

EX. KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL

King Manuel, of Portugal, who lost his crown on account of a woman, has won a new title with the aid of another member of the fair sex. Paired with Mrs. Lambert Chambers, the former king annexed the Red Cross mixed doubles on the Queen's club courts recently. According to reports of the game King Manuel's share in the joint victory was a powerful forehand drive. However, the strategist of the side was Mrs. Chambers. During his reign Manuel was an enthusiastic sportsman and devoted much of his time to golfing, riding and playing tennis.

SHAKE-UP IN CHICAGO CUB CAMP.

Chicago, June 8.—That a big shakeup is under way on the Chicago Cubs was evident today when President Weeghman announced that he had released both Mike Doolan and Steve Yerkes to the Atlanta club of the Southern association and that he would leave tomorrow for New York with the hope of completing a deal that would add a couple of men to the team to take the places of those released. Both Doolan and Yerkes held iron bound contracts for large salaries, both players having been taken by the Cubs from the Federal league. Doolan had a contract with the Chicago club and Yerkes with the Pittsburgh club in the defunct league. Weeghman, of course, carried Doolan on his new Cub team and purchased Yerkes in the spring from Owner Gwinner, of the Pittsiders.

HERE'S AN AWFUL THING TO HOPE FOR

Twin Cities Wish to Get the Fulton-Willard Fight.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 8.—Hope for a Jess Willard-Fred Fulton bout for the heavyweight boxing championship to take place in the Twin cities was revived today when it was learned there was a chance to obtain a special permit from the boxing commission.

The bout practically had been given up because of the failure to obtain this permit, but upon word today that the commission might grant the permit the promoters, Harry Sherman, Robert Seiberlich, and Jack Elliott, renewed their efforts to land the match.

The option on Willard's services expires Saturday. A meeting took place this afternoon and Sherman will go to Chicago tomorrow to confer with Tom Jones, Willard's manager, relative to renewing the option.

HERE'S NOVEL USE FOR GOLF LINKS.

Natives of Afghanistan have adopted a new method of presenting petitions to the Amir. They deposit them at night in the holes on their ruler's golf course at Kabul, in the hope they will be discovered when his majesty is putting the next day.

Even if he does hole a long putt to become one up on his lord chamberlain, he must be robbed of much of his satisfaction if, at the bottom of the tin, he find a request from the ladies of the harem for equal rights and a political franchise. He has ordered that all such petitions are to be burned unread.

BEN ERLICH IS STATE CHAMPION

Indianapolis, June 8.—Ben Erlich, of Terre Haute, won the state amateur championship yesterday during the eleventh annual tournament of the Trapshooters' League of Indiana. R. H. Bruns, of Brookville, easily won the doubles event and Mrs. B. F. Remy, of Indianapolis, was the winner of the women's championship of the state.

Erlich broke 292 out of a possible 300 targets in his shooting yesterday and today and this brought him the state title. Bruns broke 45 out of a possible 48 in the doubles. Mrs. Remy broke 41 targets out of 50 shots.

RUTH IS MAINSTAY OF BOSTON STAFF.

Babe Ruth's good left arm is doing its share to keep the crippled Boston Red Sox, holders of the world championship, from falling to pieces in the present flag campaign. The Babe rang up his third shutout victory of the year when he turned Foh's Cleveland Indians 5 to 0, the triumph giving him a record of eight wins in eleven starts.

The Nationals, Yankees and Indians have been the only clubs to beat Ruth to date. In the 192 1-3 innings he has worked the Boston side wheeler has allowed 63 hits and 24 runs. Ruth started with a rush, copping four straight engagements, bowling over the Athletics twice and Washington and New York each once. Washington stopped him May 1 and Cleveland walloped him May 10, but Babe came back and won two straight from St. Louis and Detroit, then lost another to the Yanks. Washington fell before him June 1 and he followed this feat by calumniating the Indians on their own reservation.

HELEN KELLER HAILS NEW WOMAN'S PARTY

Noted Blind Writer Calls It Dawn of Freedom for Her Sex.

(Copyright 1915 by Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

Chicago, Ill., June 8.—For the first time in the history of American women have become a great factor in the selection of a presidential candidate, and the creation of a party's platform. They are seen everywhere here in Chicago in these pre-convention discussions where a very few years ago their appearance would have caused untold comment. And their influence is affecting every "deal" that the politicians are making. Greatest of all, they have just formed a "woman's party," the birth of which I saw as was started winging its way down the ages.

What does all this mean?
What message does this hold for the women of America—the world?

The woman's party means more than votes for women. It is the symbol of our solidarity. It stands for the best national efforts of American women. It embodies the aspirations of millions of intelligent women—women who think, and have enlightened opinions. It focuses our struggle for independence.

The woman's party stands for woman first. It means an individual allegiance to our ideal—the idea of sex equality and responsibility.

It means more and more united, effective co-operation.

Women have discovered that they cannot rely on man's chivalry to give them justice—just as men before them found out that we cannot be saved by other people—we must save ourselves.

Man has fought hard for the extension of his franchise; it has sometimes cost bloodshed. Today women are met with the same arguments that were urged against the political emancipation of men. It was argued by their masters that the propertyless mob was not competent to vote; that they did not want the vote; that only a few noisy demagogues were stirring the people and filling their heads with foolishness.

The idea that they were capable of taking intelligent interest in political questions was ridiculed.

But no ridicule, no argument, no force could daunt those who fought for manhood suffrage.

The justice of our cause is as obvious, as compelling, as theirs. Our need to take part in controlling the affairs of the world is imperative. The love of power is strong in the human breast, and men, having once secured their suffrage, will keep it for themselves until we force them to extend it to women.

The time is ripe for us; there are now four million women voters in the United States. The party that turns them down is dead politically. Of course our victory is not won; we shall have to work long and endure much before our dreams are realized. But the new woman's party will give the two old parties a jolt at the presidential election that will set them thinking and acting.

At every stage of history there comes a moment when decisive action brings all the struggles of the past into realization. This is one of those moments in the nation's life and in the life of women.

How to Get Rid of a Cold.
Summer colds are serious. Read how C. E. Summers, Holdrege, Neb., got rid of his: "I contracted a severe cough and cold and could hardly sleep. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and the very first dose relieved me. I took a second dose before going to bed and can truthfully say I did not cough all night. By using as directed the next two days my cough was entirely cured and I give Foley's Honey and Tar full credit for my speedy recovery." Foley's always soothes and heals. Children love it. WINONA LAKE NEWS.

Winona Lake, Ind., June 8.—George V. Roscoe and his orchestra, of Goshen, will play at this place, beginning Thursday, July 13, for thirty days.

About five hundred Winona normal college students have enrolled for the first summer normal term of the Winona college. The 500 new students will bring the total well up towards a thousand, several hundred having already arrived and started their studies some weeks ago.

A special meeting of the directors of the Winona interurban lines was held at the main offices of the company, at Warsaw, Friday.

George Dehoff has become Winona postmaster, succeeding John O. Mott.

Mrs. Agnes Seyon, 97, mother of Milford H. Lyon, Winona evangelist, died at her Waterloo, Iowa, home last week. She was the only living survivor of the famous Fort Dearborn massacre.

That netting is going on in Winona lake is the opinion of many persons who have occasion to visit the lake at night.

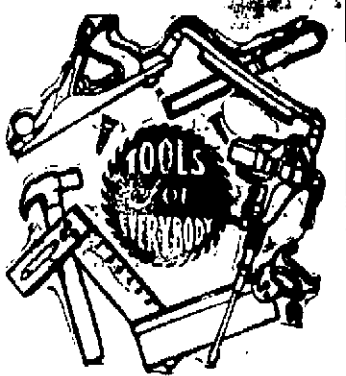

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, rated as the world's greatest singer, is at Culver, where her son is a student in the military school.

INDIANA MAN'S EXPERIENCE.
Frank Moseley, Moore's Hill, Ind., writes: "I was troubled with almost constant pains in my sides and back and attributed it to weakening of my kidneys. I got a package of Foley Kidney Pills. Great relief was apparent after the first doses and in 48 hours all pain left me."

If you have rheumatism, backache, swollen, aching joints or stiff, painful muscles, why not try Foley Kidney Pills? They stop sleep-disturbing bladder ailments, too. Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

GETS BABYLONIAN CYLINDER
President of Notre Dame Receives Record of Nebuchadnezzar.

Notre Dame, Ind., June 3.—A large turned clay cylinder telling of the works of Nebuchadnezzar, has come into possession of the very Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. A., president of Notre Dame university, who received it from Dr. Edgar J. Banks, of New York, an archaeologist. The cylinder was found recently in the ancient city of Marad, near the site of Babylon, in the walls of a temple. It is one of three found, the other two being in the New York public library and in the British Museum at London.

The cylinder is about nine inches high and four inches in diameter, and it contains his lines, supposedly written by Nebuchadnezzar himself, giving an account of the building of the walls of Babylon and of the reconstruction of the great tower of Babel, which scholars have identified as the Biblical Tower of Babel. The walls, which were 60 miles long, 300 feet high and 85 feet wide, were completed, according to the story on this cylinder, in fifteen days by a gigantic army of 2,000,000 men.

LARGER CROWDS COMING TO CITY

Trains on All the Roads Doing Better Than on Preceding Days.

Travel into Fort Wayne on account of the celebration was much greater today than on any of the previous days of the centennial week. The special train on the Nickel Plate from Hammond and intermediate stations brought in over 400 people and the next greatest crowd—about 300 people—came in on Wabash train No. 21, from the east. The Wabash also brought in a good many people from the west, No. 28 being well filled with passengers. Travel out of the city on the Pennsylvania special train at 11 o'clock last night indicated a much greater crowd here from the towns west of the city yesterday than came in the preceding day. Last night this train had three coaches well filled when it pulled out of the station. It will have a larger crowd tonight, for all the early trains from the west today brought in centennial visitors. It is possible that the extra train service will be extended to Friday night. A request for it has been sent to the Pennsylvania officials at Pittsburgh and a favorable reply is expected. The original arrangement was for three nights—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—but the postponement of Tuesday's program to Friday makes it desirable to have the extra train that night.

"BOB" VOLZ IN NEW POSITION.

Balzer Volz has taken a position as sweeper in the Pennsylvania planing mill, succeeding Charles Volz, who went on the retired list June 1. "Bob" Volz, as the boys at the shop call him, was originally the wheel roller at the car machine shop and before he was injured two or three years ago, none could beat him in that work. He could handle a curved wheel with apparently as much ease as an ordinary man handles a shovel or other tool. One day, however, "Bob" had one of his hands caught between two wheels and lost a part of the member and that accident discouraged him and resulted in his request to be transferred to other work. "Bob" Volz and Charles Volz, although of the same name, are not relatives.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR STUDENTS.

The 1915-1916 school season of the Concordia seminary at St. Louis closes tomorrow and the students will immediately start for their homes. For the accommodation of those east of this city, No. 28 will carry an extra coach Saturday morning. It will be cut out of the train here and attached to No. 18 and taken to Toledo. Students whose homes are reached through Detroit will continue on to that city on No. 28. Concordia college, in this city, will close next Thursday and an exodus of students will commence at once, making business for the Wabash, for most of

WILL ATTEND FAMILY REUNION.

Pennsylvania Conductor Harry H. Shelly has obtained a lay off for the purpose of attending the Parker family reunion, which will be held at Robinson park next Saturday. Ever since the death of Christian Parker, the head of the vast family, about twenty years ago, the survivors have held family reunions, most of them in Robinson park. Last year there were over 300 at the reunion, all related either by blood or marriage, and it is said there will be a larger attendance next Saturday. Of the original family only two of the children of Christian Parker are living. They are Oliver Parker, of Lake avenue, and Mrs. C. Halter, of Cedarville, both of whom are upwards of seventy years. Christian Parker resided many years on a farm on the Coldwater road, a few miles from the city.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS HERE YESTERDAY.

The New York Central and the Lake Erie and Western officials were in the city awhile yesterday conferring on matters of joint interest and taking a look at the companies' properties. Each had a special train, General Superintendent Wilson, of the N. Y. C., coming down from the north, and General Superintendent George Dryer, of the L. E. & W., coming in from the south. Each was accompanied by the division officials of their respective lines.

TO NEW YORK FOR VISIT.

Mrs. A. J. Schwartz, mother of Nickel Plate Passenger Fireman George Schwartz, left today, accompanied by her son, for New York, where she will spend a part of the summer with her daughter. Fireman Schwartz will also remain there two or three weeks, visiting relatives and friends. During his absence his place in the cab with Engineer Maroney will be filled by Fireman H. G. Weigman.

HAD TWO FINGERS CRUSHED.

Chris Demetra, a laborer in the foundry yards at the Bass works, had the first and second fingers of his left hand crushed at 3 o'clock last night. It is believed the digits will be saved. They were hurt by being caught in the coke and drag.

Conductors J. S. Habacher and W. H. Walker and Brakemen W. E. Forsyth and M. O. Brown, who had been taking in the celebration, resumed work on the Nickel Plate this morning.
General Foreman E. B. Hughes, of the Pennsylvania roundhouse, is host this week to Frank Longwell and family, of Van Wert, who are also attending the Centennial celebration exercises.
W. O. Barry, senior mechanical engineer of the valuation department of the interstate commerce commission, was in the city today on business with the local Pennsylvania motive power officials.
Frank Schaefer, assistant general foreman of the Pennsylvania machine shop, is laying off to entertain his brother, George Schaefer, from West Virginia, who arrived in the city Tuesday to spend Centennial week.
While at work in the Pennsylvania tank shop this morning, G. Healea was taken suddenly and violently ill and fell to the floor in a faint. The city ambulance was called and he was taken home, where he soon revived.

Master Mechanic E. E. Griest, of the Pennsylvania, accompanied Mrs. Griest and daughter Marian to Bloomington, Ind., this morning, where they will spend several days with relatives. Master Mechanic Griest will return home tomorrow.

Foreman Ed Koehn, of the Pennsylvania shops, and his wife left this afternoon for Toledo, where they will attend the commencement exercises of a kindergarten training college, of which their daughter, Miss Hilda Koehn, is one of the graduates.

S. D. Erick, of the pattern department of the General Electric works, who has been confined to his home for three weeks with an injured leg, is improving and will soon be able to be out, though it will be some time before he is able to resume work.

Chief Clerk Harry C. Holliday, of Trainmaster R. E. Casey's office, G. R. & L., entered upon a two weeks' vacation this morning. He will remain in the city during pageant week and then take a pleasure trip into Ohio, visiting friends in Columbus, Cleveland and Akron. L. J. Kahoe, of the same office, resumed work this morning after a two weeks' vacation.

Machinist H. J. Wright had a finger badly lacerated and bruised yesterday when it was caught between some material he was handling. Machinist J. C. Moring also had a finger crushed and cut by getting it caught in the machinery he was operating. Both men are employed in the Pennsylvania shops and each will be off duty several days as a result of the accident.

WOUNDED ROBBER FIGHTS OFFICERS

After Shot He Gives Hard Battle as He Reaches the Hospital.

After receiving a serious gunshot wound in the leg, just below the hip, by a shot from Officer Gus Bauck's revolver, shortly before 1 o'clock Thursday morning, Joseph Tarasewicz, a Pole, gave the patrol wagon squad a desperate battle at the entrance to St. Joseph hospital and uncommon force had to be employed to get him subdued and within the institution for surgical attention. As the wagon stopped at the hospital and the stretcher was taken out, the Pole struggled with his feet and standing on his one good leg gave a fine account of himself for a few moments, but was finally brought into subjection and carried to the operating room, where Police Surgeon J. Frank Dinnen attended him. He is under constant guard of an officer in his room at the hospital, policemen being detailed for short shifts to see that he does not escape. Tarasewicz was not arrested without offering battle, when he was discovered on the roof of an outbuilding on the premises of Gottlieb Niemann, 236 Brackenridge street, a half hour after midnight. He was ordered to come down from his perch behind the chimney and answered by hurling about a dozen bricks he seized from the smokestack at Patrol Drive Bauck. One brick hit the officer in the back and another landed on his head inflicting a scalp wound. The fusillade of bricks became so hot that Officer Bauck drew his gun and fired twice, on shot passing through the Pole's right leg near the hip. The provided was first seen on the roof of the Niemann building by C. J. Walker, who resides next door east, and he notified the police. A charge of assault and battery with intent to kill has been placed against Tarasewicz and his case continued until June 17 to permit him to recover sufficiently to be brought into court. His bond is fixed at $2,000.

One More Good Crook Stopped.

Harry Ferguson, a veteran pickpocket, whose mug ornaments all well-appointed criminal galleries in the country and whose reputation is international, was booked on a loitering charge in the city court Thursday morning and was continued until June 19, under $1,000 bond. He was arrested Wednesday night by Detective Sergeant Martin A. Randall and Detective Roach, of Indianapolis, near the centennial pageant grounds. He was completely identified, not only by the officers, but by his portrait and record in Detective Sergeant Joseph P. Brennan's gallery at the local identification room, and finally admitted himself. Ferguson was the third seasoned pickpocket to be stopped by the detectives within two days.

Other Loiterers In.

Sam Speeling, Nathan Gelman and Sam Kurland, three young fellows, who claimed to be trying to get a concession at the exposition grounds for instantaneous photography, after having been denied license for pulling their work on the streets, were picked up by Detective Sergeant Randall and Detective Shaffer, of Cincinnati. They were turned loose. Charles Lewis, who claimed to hail from Chicago and could give no good account of himself, was arrested by Officer Hill and was fined $10 and costs. Henry Clayton, a loiterer, was allowed to go.

Other City Court Cases.

Charles Swain and Art Williams, drunks, were fined $5 and costs each, and Warren Barney, another drunk, was tagged for $1 and costs. Henry Muster, also drunk, was allowed to go, as was Walter Thomas, a colored son.

rdman took Largo in custody and George Gordon protested, and both were tried to the station. Largo was fined $5 and costs on disorderly charges, but Gordon was allowed to go.

George Russell was tried for petty larceny for the theft of $12.50 from a pocketbook in the kitchen of Mrs. Evelyn Ostermeier's home, 338 Montgomery street. Circumstantial evidence was strongly against him. He was arrested by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who found on him a letter from his wife in Detroit, begging him to come home or their little child would die. Judge Kerr took the case under advisement until Friday.

ANNUAL FLOWER FESTIVAL

Arrangements have been completed for the annual flower festival of the Fort Wayne Normal school to be given Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Lakeside park. A queen will be chosen who will be crowned by Miss Gladys Becker, the queen of last year. A program of singing and dancing will be rendered.

The annual festival is always attended by a large crowd each year and it is anticipated that this year's attendance will be larger than ever before, by reason of so many visitors in the city.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms and diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Edge, College-Edwards St., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name, and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

neglected. I would advise balmwort tablets, a compound well suited to such cases. Obtain in sealed tubes with directions for home use.

C. O. C. asks: "I am constipated, tongue coated, have headache, dizzy spells and indigestion sometimes. Please advise."

Answer: I advise that you begin using three grain sulphur tablets (not sulphur). These tablets are laxative, act on the liver, kidneys and bowels and tend to keep the blood pure, arousing the eliminative functions. Relief should follow quickly.

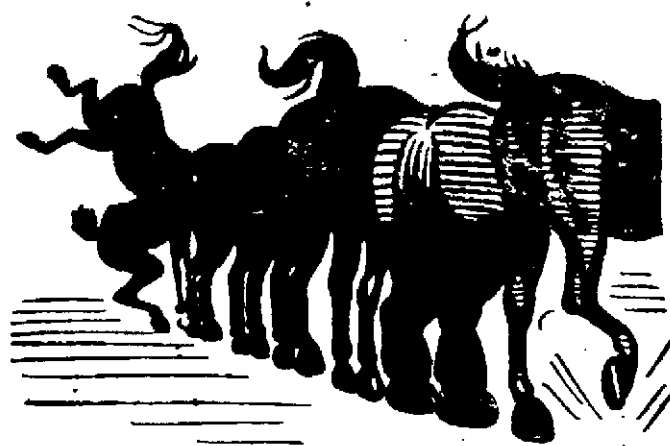

"Secretary" writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a has been," when it comes to performing accurate work and duties. Please advise."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions and a powerful, harmless tonic treatment is needed. Find three grain cadomene tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

Mrs. C. W. B. asks: "I suffer greatly owing to too much fat. Can you advise me of a good reduction remedy?"

Answer: Any well stocked pharmacy can supply you with 5 grain carboline tablets, packed in sealed tubes with full directions for use. These tablets have proven wonderfully effective in reducing abnormal fat.

MANY ADOPT DRESS REFORM.

Church of God Holds Old Custom Too Conspicuous.

Anderson, Ind., June 8.—Contending that the custom of the men not wearing neckties and the women dressing only in black or gray gowns of the plainest styles, was making them too conspicuous, members of the Church of God, which is holding its annual general assembly here, are bringing about a change in wearing apparel. Many of the two thousand men at the assembly are wearing neckties and the women are dressed in the latest creations and colors. Those favoring the reform, declare the old custom was against their religious doctrine, in that it attracted too much attention to the members when they appeared in public.

PESSIMISTS

BY EDNA EGAN.

THE woman who finds fault continually is a nuisance and a bore. She not only makes herself unhappy, because she is never satisfied with anything, but what is even worse, she makes every one who comes in contact with her feel the sting of her disagreeable disposition. Her outlook of life is soured. Instead of keeping her opinions to herself, she feels she must spread her venom, and proceeds to do so by twisting the viewpoint of those who must listen to her continual complaints.

For instance, if she is the wife of a business man whose work demands his presence late and early and makes living in the city a matter of necessity, she complains continually about the noise of the streets and the impure air, and begs him to take a little house in the country for the sake of her health. His convenience is as nothing compared to her wishes. If he refuses his life is made unbearable by the constant reference to the hardships she is enduring for his sake. Their apartment, a very nice one, indeed, is looked upon as a sort of prison, which is depriving her of every chance of health and happiness. Instead of adjusting herself to conditions, she expects conditions to adjust themselves to her, and when he finds she is expecting an impossibility she falls back upon complaints.

Fault-finding is, after all, only a matter of habit, but it is a habit which assumes tremendous proportions before one knows it if it is allowed to grow. Quickly the desire to criticize everything and every one takes a hold upon a person until it becomes part of the nature.

Take, for instance, a woman encountered recently at a summer resort. At first she seemed harmless enough, though one gathered after a few moments of introduction that this particular patron of the hotel didn't think much of the food or service rendered. You accepted these criticisms, however, for what they were worth, knowing that there were always some things in a summer hotel that were not desirable. After a week's stay you discover that the faults existed chiefly in the woman's mind. She was a born "fault finder." The coffee was "atrocious," according to her way of thinking, though every one else drank it without a murmur. Not she, however! Her own coffee, her own percolator were placed on her table so that she could make her own brew and know what she was making.

"Do let me give you a good cup of coffee," she would say loudly to a passing friend, thereby making the other guests wonder if, after all, the hotel's brand was undrinkable. Most of the guests, however, laughed secretly at her fussiness and put her down as a habitual complainer.

"Wasn't that a dreadful dinner?" she asked one evening, after a repast which consisted of soup, well cooked chicken, two vegetables, salad and delicious ice cream. "I couldn't find a thing to eat. I am positively starving."

"What was the matter with it?" demanded an exasperated friend. "I thought it was particularly good."

"Oh, I hate chicken cooked in that way. The vegetables were starchy, and my physician says I can't eat a bit of starchy food. I can't eat fresh fruit salad, and I hate chocolate ice cream."

Nothing, you see, the matter with the food, it simply didn't suit her taste. And so it was from one day to another. The laundry was wretchedly done, her waitress slow. Always something to find fault with, nothing to admire.

YOUR WAIST

I WAS measured for a new corset today," said the "middling-stout" woman, "and the woman who waited on me told me that all the new corsets were being taken in at the waist and that there's a strong tendency to make waists smaller. She said she wouldn't be a bit surprised if we'd be getting back to the old hour-glass form, now that we're wearing the wide skirts and tight basques and dinky little hats. Ever so often, she said, we had to go back to old styles and the time was just about ripe for the tiny waists to come around again."

"I'm sorry to hear that," declared the woman doctor, "though it will mean more business for me."

"Well—a small waist does look awfully neat," speculated the middling-stout woman. "Mine used to be twenty-three inches, and my mother's was only eighteen when she was a girl, and she said her father used to brag that when he married grandmother he could span her waist with his two hands. Of course that's most too small—it makes a woman look like she might break in two. But I do think they've been overdoing the large waist effect. Why, some of the coats and dresses you see in the shops have waists that actually look bigger than any other part of the body."

"Just the same, I'd rather see a big waistline than a small one," insisted the doctor. "When women had small waists it kept the doctors busy. Of course it meant money for the doctors, but every physician I know would rather make less money and have healthier and happier people in the world. If women adopt the small waist styles again, it's going to mean a lot of misery for them, to say nothing of the effect on the unborn generation. Going still further, it's going to put unhappiness into a lot of homes; because no family can be a happy family when the women of the house are eternally ailing—which they must be if they take to squeezing in their waists."

MILADY'S BEAUTY

FEW women drink enough water to clear their skins. A new disciple of perennial youth preaches the doctrine of distilled water, in generous quantities, to dissolve the time that means old age and its infirmities. Plain water may not be just as good, but it is a fairly good substitute and combined with fresh air there is a good chance of living a reasonably long life of usefulness.

DO not think because you cannot afford to visit a manicure you are to be excused for ill-kept hands. Five minutes a day given to the care of the nails will keep them in good condition. This should be done after the hands have been softened with washing. Once a week give them a thorough manicuring yourself. If you do not know how, pay a visit to a good professional and closely watch her methods.

WHEN applying a skin food see to it that the manipulations of the finger ends continue long enough to force a large quantity of the emollient into the skin. Only the finest, purest ingredients should be used. Cosmetics made entirely of vegetable oils cannot be preserved for any great length of time. Those creams that last forever are not made of almond oil, but are compounded of white vaseline, benzoinated nut-tallow or lard.

LIGHT hair is apt to grow darker with age and anything that would entirely prevent this would be so drying as to be injurious. There is a shampoo mixture, however, that will do no harm and may aid you. It is made of raw egg, a teaspoonful of powdered borax, half a teaspoonful of violet ammonia and a quarter of a teaspoonful of carbonate of potash. Beat well together and then stir into a quart of warm water. Wet the scalp and hair thoroughly, massaging at the same time. Use no soap.

BEAUTY specialists claim that the pink and white complexion is due to open pores; that if the skin is kept perfectly free from dust or dirt nothing will beautify a muddy complexion like exercise, which causes the perspiration to appear in little beads on the face. Then the face should be thoroughly washed with warm water and castile soap, rinsed in cold water and the face slightly powdered with rice powder. There is no need to apply oils to the face if one perspires, for the skin is naturally oily. When the skin is harsh and dry and perspiration scant, eat plenty of salads dressed with olive oil; do not use butter sparingly and if you can take an emulsion of cod-liver oil and wine. This will benefit the health—the clear complexion will follow.

EVEN though cold weather is here, keep the windows open. Impure air and darkened rooms are often the cause of poor health. One feels much better in a clear atmosphere with the sun shining brightly. Keep the window in the sleeping apartment open enough to give sufficient fresh air. Even though the room is unheated and cold, the window should be open just the same. A sleeper will soon breathe up all the fresh air and if there is not a constant supply of oxygen he simply breathes over and over again the poison thrown off by the lungs. Every morning the bedclothes should have a thorough airing in the sun. Plenty of covering is necessary, but it should be light in weight. There is no warmth in heavy home-made comfortables, especially after they have been washed once or twice.

ASOUTHERN woman with a complexion the envy of hundreds gives the secret to all who care to use the simple, harmless remedy. She uses orange juice for whitening and smoothing the complexion and she eats oranges for their medicinal properties. Orange juice is much milder than lemon juice and contains a gentle acid, which is wonderfully effective in bleaching the skin. The juice contains a certain percentage of oil, which heals a roughened face. After the warm bath in the evening, apply the orange juice as liberally as you desire, let it dry on the face, neck and arms, and in the morning wash it off with warm soap suds. The face and hands will be wonderfully smooth and noticeably clearer.

SILVER hair is always a becoming and enviable possession. In old age it gives an air of softness and sweetness to the face, while in conjunction with a young skin and fresh complexion nothing can be more charming. The silver tone of the hair throws up skin and eyes to perfection, besides adding an air of distinction to an otherwise every-day type of face. Women who up to now, have been foolish enough to hide their beautiful silver tresses under becoming and hardened hair dyes, are this season allowing it to be seen in all its natural beauty, this state of affairs being largely due to the fact that the tones of mulberry, claret and purple now so much look their best when worn by a woman possessed of snowy hair. White hair is now dressed high on the head, a la Pompadour, and it is becoming lavishly waved and finished by clusters of the soft little curls of the empire period.

WHAT woman does not wish for long, curling eyelashes? They are one of the details that make a homely woman attractive, and it does seem as though they could be cultivated. Vaseline—pure, white vaseline—rubbed on with a small brush every night, is a splendid tonic for these much-desired beauties. Keep the eye tightly closed, that the grease may reach the roots of the stubborn lashes, although if the vaseline is fresh and of good quality it cannot hurt the eye. In fact, one woman who has found the remedy successful says that, on the contrary, the eyes become brilliant under treatment, while the longer lashes make a marked improvement in the appearance.

ANYTHING which soothes the nerves will, as a rule, induce sleep. A light supper taken just before going to bed is often helpful. It is well to have a glass of milk standing by the bed. If wakefulness comes this should be sipped slowly. Lack of sufficient ventilation in a room often produces sleeplessness. Though the air should never blow directly on a bed, it is impossible to have too much. A bed should never be placed facing the light, for this hurts the eyes and affects the nerves. One of the best remedies for a nervous woman is to take a hot bath just before going to bed. The body should be immersed for fifteen minutes in water that is hot without being exhausting. An alcohol sponge is often found thrown off by the lungs. Every morning the bedclothes should have a thorough airing in the sun. Plenty of covering is necessary, but it should

BY LUCILLE DAUDET.

MANY mothers have a good deal of difficulty in selecting the right kind of food for the children's menus. The little ones so often grow tired of the same kind of nourishment, and it is rather hard to keep a certain monotony away from the children's table. Nourishing dishes are essential and rich foods are forbidden, so that the choice is limited at best.

It is something in the nature of a calamity when the little ones tire of a dish which is particularly nutritious. Children of three or four often show a great disinclination to eat eggs. They are usually very fond of eggs for the first two years of existence, taking a spoonful of boiled egg or a codded spoonful of the greatest delight. Then a spoonful of the most intense dislike for eggs, during which they cannot be coaxed, bribed or forced to eat one.

As eggs, along with milk, are the two most nutritious factors on the children's menu, it is almost impossible to do without them. And if the mother is clever in disguising the eggs in different forms, the kiddies will not have to do without them. It is easy to mix an egg into any number of dishes where the child will never suspect he is eating the hated food. It is only when it is served in the old recognizable shape that he will absolutely refuse it.

Eggs may be put in many nursery-desserts. One way in which they may be served, as follows: One egg should be beaten up very light until the white is frothy, then orange juice should be added with a little sugar. This can be drunk from a glass for breakfast or served as a dessert in a bowl, to be eaten with crackers.

Children are usually very fond of custard, which is of course for the most part eggs. Any desserts which contain plenty of eggs and are not too rich are to be encouraged at the nursery table, especially while the child has an aversion against eggs in general. As they are really such a very important part of the infant's diet, it is necessary that they be taken in one form or another, and if the child will not eat them in the usual undisguised way, then the mother must give them in desserts.

Thinking about it made Elsie more nervous than ever, so she decided to disobey the doctor, and, going to the phone, she called up one of the men and informed him that she would be glad to take dinner with him that night. Which Man? Why, the one it were kindest to call. But whether that kindness was based on what she owed herself or on what she owed the Other (and unknown) Girl, only a woman can guess.

Elsie called up the man she had decided to marry. There were four peo-

WHEN A GIRL LOVES Then Indeed Come the Most Trying Days of Decision and Indecision.

BY ANNETTE ANGERT.

NEVER willingly did Elsie hurt any living creature. In fact, she went out of her way to offer kindness and courtesy to all with whom she came in contact. She helped old ladies across crowded streets and she introduced young ladies to the charming men they might not otherwise have met in the crowded city.

Since Elsie was not particularly wise, her kindness was not always especially judicious. But she tried very hard not to make the stupid blunder of giving a look to the girl who wanted silk stockings for Christmas or the equally stupid one of introducing a frivolous little dancing girl to an equally frivolous dancing man when the girl knew plenty of those already.

She tried also not to overwhelm folks with reasons for gratitude nor to give them a feeling of boredom at the numerous times they had to say "thank you" to her. She devoted her not remarkable brain to an effort to make the world a pleasant place because she happened to be in it.

But suddenly she fell in love. The man (so it seemed to her) was altogether fine and splendid and magnificent. He had come to the city from a nearby town and by dint of very hard work had made a tremendous success. No one knew about his past, but every one admired his present and hoped for his future. And all the concentrated kindness and sweetness of Elsie's nature turned into worshipful love for her splendid Paul.

When Elsie's love affair had begun to seem a life affair she discovered that back in the village where he came from there was Another Girl. The Other Girl loved Paul, too.

Elsie, who had always been kind, found that she could not now step aside and resign Paul to the Other Girl.

Somehow or other she worried herself into a state of nervous breakdown and was ordered four weeks of rest cure. All the people to whom she had been kind now showed kindness upon the semi-invalid. But most surprisingly considerate and supremely generous was a man whose friendship—and no more—she had always taken for granted.

ODDS & ENDS

IT is remarkable what artistic talent has been awakened by the craze for hand-painted furniture. Girls, rich and poor, are painting their own pieces of furniture, and varnishing the surface to make the pictures lasting. This new furniture is very pretty; landscapes, flowers, birds, butterflies are painted on a white or black background and varnished, and sometimes small medallions of highly finished work are set on a plain ground. One charming room had a white and gray wall, and the mouldings and furniture were painted lavender.

TO fringe with the least possible trouble, clip the edge of the crash or linen up from the bottom a distance of six or eight inches. Each clip should be the depth of the fringe you intend to make. The drawing out of these shorter threads will often prove less laborious and not so injurious to the material. It is well to know, also, that the drawing of linen threads is made easier if the dressing has first been removed. Brush a heavy lather made from good white soap along the space from which you wish to draw the threads. Let this dry in and it will disturb the original dressing so that the threads may be more readily drawn out.

WHITE silk stockings have a most annoying habit of acquiring a yellowish tinge after two or three washings, and this is usually due to their being washed out in a basin and hung up to dry without bleaching. Soak the stockings half an hour in cold water into which a pinch of borax has been dropped, then wash them in warm, but not hot, water made sudsy with some pure white soap. Rinse in three waters—this is very important, for the least bit of soap remaining will yellow the silk—and blue the last rinsing water just a trifle. Then hang the stockings in the sun and wind to bleach and dry. Never touch them with a hot iron, but when thoroughly dry smooth out and roll up. Never put white silk stockings to soak with black or colored silk stockings, for the dye is very apt to run out and streak the white hose badly. White cotton stockings, now considered better taste with sport shoes than silk hosiery, may be washed in the same manner, but the cotton stockings look best if pressed with a hot iron so that the fuzzy nap in the weave is laid perfectly flat.

IT is easy to make a stocking box to fit a bureau or chiffonier drawer. Cut up a long paste-board box such as coats and suits are delivered in. The partitions which divide the long, narrow box into compartments should be placed at intervals of about five or six inches apart, according to the length of the box. Cover all the pieces of paste-board with cretonne or cover the sides of the box on the outside with cretonne and the inside with pussy willow silk to match. Your silk stockings should be kept in this box, each one separate in one of these compartments. This makes it easier to elect just the right pair when in a hurry for the various occasions.

VARIOUS versions of the Norfolk coat suit are being adopted for the two-fold purpose of a skating suit and shopping costume. This type of suit is quite the happiest choice one can make from among the two-piece models. It has the trimness of the tailored suit in its making, modified by the comfortable modeling of a sports costume. English tweeds and mixtures present their claims for the fashioning of the Norfolk suit. These, of course, lack the richness of velvets, but they possess an element of smartness that is worthy of consideration. Leather jackets have been introduced to wear with cloth skirts, and of exactly the same shade. The shape of these leather coats is rather of the medieval warrior type, but they are very soft and pliable, and they, like everything else, are lavishly trimmed with fur.

ONLY SCHOOL OF KIND IN THE WORLD DEVELOPS EXPERTS TO FIGHT PLAGUE.

Some of the cottages of Trudeau sanatorium at Saranac Lake.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., June 8.—There has just opened here a school which is the only one of its kind in the world! Only 20 pupils listen to some half dozen instructors, yet the single aim of the school is to save the lives of 100,000 persons in this country every year—the victims of tuberculosis.

The school is the Trudeau School of Tuberculosis, founded in memory of and to carry on the work of the late Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, the world renowned physician, who introduced the open air cure for consumption into this country nearly half a century ago.

Years of campaigning roused the public to the need of fighting tuberculosis. Now, 20 at a time, the Trudeau school will turn out men trained to lead the crusade against consumption.

They will be sent to every corner of this country. They will organize town, city and state-wide community fights.

They will point out to the people that:

- Tuberculosis is preventable and is the chief cause of death in middle life;
- That its annual death toll in the United States is 160,000 lives;
- That four years of the civil war cost 205,970 lives, whereas in a period of four years the tuberculosis germs kill 600,000 persons.

The late Dr. Trudeau was called "The Pioneer," because of his remarkable efforts to wipe out tuberculosis. The founding of a school to turn out men trained to fight the plague was his life's aim. He himself was a sufferer from the disease.

The dean of the school is Dr. E. R. Baldwin, director of the Saranac laboratory for the study of tuberculosis. With him are associated five of the country's best known tuberculosis experts.

The first 20 students are picked men drawn from various sections of the country. When they graduate they will start a nation-wide co-operative campaign against a scourge, which now costs this country at least $20,000,000 annually.

With the campaign once fairly well launched in this country the Trudeau school then plans to send experts to every corner of the globe.

MANY INTERESTED IN KNIGHT MOTOR

The story of the invention and development of the Knight sleeve valve motor is a romance of business.

According to Fred Gaskins, who has arranged for a series of lectures on the Knight sleeve valve motor to be given as a feature of the Centennial celebration, J. H. Cooper, the lecturer, will draw a parallel between the Knight motor and the discovery of the famous cobalt silver mine, which a few years ago held the attention of the world's financiers.

Mr. Cooper, according to Mr. Gaskins, is one of the country's best informed men on the subject of the Knight sleeve valve motor.

"Cobalt," says Mr. Gaskins, "seems a strange name for a silver. Many have wondered how the name happened to have been chosen, but few have heard the story.

"As a matter of fact, cobalt is the name of a mineral coloring material used in making paints and dyes. Its discovery in northern Ontario was acclaimed a great find, for cobalt has a high commercial value. But when the work was begun to mine for cobalt, silver was discovered in such paying quantities that the cobalt itself was far overshadowed. The miners turned their whole attention to the silver and cobalt was relegated to the scrap heap.

"Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the sleeve valve automobile motor, sought to produce an engine that would overcome the noisy hammering of the poppet valves. He succeeded, but he built better than he knew.

"The inventor of the Knight motor tried for years to interest American manufacturers, but was unsuccessful. At last he was able to secure the attention of the Daimler company, manufacturers of one of England's most famous cars.

"Mr. Knight told the Daimler company he had a quiet running motor—a motor that would appeal to motorists. The Daimler company tested the Knight motor for this quality and found that it was quiet running; that it became more quiet with continual use.

"But the Daimler engineers found in this motor other good qualities—qualities that its inventor had overlooked: qualities that to experienced automobile men were of even greater importance than quietness of operation.

"Daimler engineers discovered that the Knight sleeve valve motor was more powerful than any poppet valve of equal gas capacity; that it was more flexible; that in proportion to the power developed it was more economical with gasoline.

"Nowadays automobile men who know the Knight motor tell you about these qualities first, for they are the most important advantages it offers. Quietness of operation is an advantage also, but to automobile men this is chiefly because quietness of operation is a true indication of absence of wear."

In spite of the bad weather, Mr. Cooper has attracted large crowds at the exposition grounds with his interesting lectures, and those interested in automobile mechanism will be deeply interested in the new light he will shed on motor problems.

5,000 CHILDREN GET TREAT.

Auto Trip and Entertainment for Orphans and Destitute.

New York, June 8.—Five thousand orphan and destitute children of this city were invited to participate in the annual automobile ride into the country today as guests of the Orphans' Automobile Day association. The use of 300 automobiles and motor trucks was given to take the children to a grove on the shore of Long Island sound, where they were entertained with games, a theatrical performance and luncheon. Many of the children were cripples. They came from thirty institutions, as well as from the homes of the poor.
